EVACUATION ON IN NEW MADRID FLOODWAY AREA

CHARLESTON USES SCHOOLS AS REFUGE

Worst Flood Since 1937 Expected on Lower Mississippi River—Red Cross Prepares to Give Aid.

CHARLESTON, Mo., Jan. 17 (AP)—With conditions along the flooded Mississippi and Ohio rivers paralleling those of 1937 —one of the worst flood years on record—evacuation of all persons living in the extreme north end of the Birds Point-New Madrid floodway was being conducted today by the United States Army Engineers and the American Red Cross.

Several hundred families had been evacuated by midafternoon.

100 Trucks Employed.

Lt. Earl Davis of the State Highway Patrol said about 100 trucks were being used in evacuating residents of the floodway on which the Federal Government owns flowage rights.

Schools in Charleston were ordered to close and the school buildings will be used as Red Cross relief points. School busses have been offered for use in transporting displaced persons from the floodway to the Malden Army Air Base.

All of the 12,000 residents of the 200-square-mile floodway were sent "official notices" late yesterday by Col. L. H. Foote, United States district engineer at Memphis, Tenn., informing them that it might be necessary to open the floodway to relieve pressure on other levees upstream on the Mississippi and on the Ohio river around Cairo, Ill.

Floodway Opened in 1937.

The floodway has been opened only once before, in 1937, when the worst flood since the 1927 disaster that drove 600,000 persons from their homes, hit the Mississippi and its tributaries.

Forty Army trucks were pressed into service to take all persons out of the floodway near the point where the levee "fuse plug" will be dynamited in case it is found necessary to open the 139,000-acre basin. Engineers explained the evacuation is merely a precautionary move. It has not been definitely decided if the floodway is to be opened.

The State Highway Patrol was asked to keep all roads open for evacuation of resident of the

COLOR TV RECEIVER SET UP FOR TRUMAN AT THE BLAIR HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (UP). PRESIDENT TRUMAN is one of the few persons in Washington who has color television in his home, it was learned today.

A color receiver was set up recently in Blair House, the temporary White House, by engineers for the Columbia Broadcasting System which currently is testing its equipment in the Washington area.

Whether the President or his family is taking advantage of the chance to see the new entertainment medium is not known. C.B.S. runs its tests three times daily.

GOSSIP OF TRUMAN, BARKLEY WIVES' FEUD IS DENIED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (UP)—It was bound to happen, Washington being the feud-promoting town that it is.

Mrs. Alben W. Barkley has been in town less than a month but gossip already has her at sword's point with Mrs. Truman.

Mrs. Truman's rumored dislike for Mrs. Barkley, the former Mrs. Carleton S. Hadley of St. Louis, was reported today to Mrs. James M. Helm, White House social secretary. Newspaper women wanted to know if there is any truth to it.

"Good gracious, no," replied Mrs. Helm.

The social secretary said that Vice President and Mrs. Barkley have already paid a call at Blair House, temporary quarters for the Trumans.

President and Mrs. Truman will entertain at two formal social dinners for the Barkleys — the first on Thursday night.

OIL STATION MAN HIS OWN DETECTIVE; TURNS UP SUSPECT

Amateur detective work by Irvin Fey, co-owner of a gasoline station at 1204 Delmar boulevard, resulted in the issuance of warrants today by the circuit attorney's office, charging William H. Parsons, Negro, employe of the station, with a burglary in which $30 was taken from the establishment.

Fey, discovering the money had been taken from the safe last Oct. 9, noticed part of a broken key in the safe lock. He called in his three employes, all of whom have keys to the safe, to inspect their key rings. Parsons had left town, but his wife brought in his key ring. It carried just the stump of the safe key.

When Parsons, who lives at 1523 Franklin avenue, returned to St. Louis yesterday from Haiti, Mo., where he said he had been living with relatives, Fey turned him over to the police. Fey quoted Parsons as saying he had intended to leave a memorandum in the safe saying he had taken the money, but had neglected to do so.

DRUNKEN DRIVER BARS PLANES FROM LANDING AT AIRPORT

CHICAGO, Jan. 17 (AP)—Plane traffic over Chicago's busy Midway (municipal) airport came to a standstill last night while a prankster ruefully learned that he could not take off in a gasoline truck.

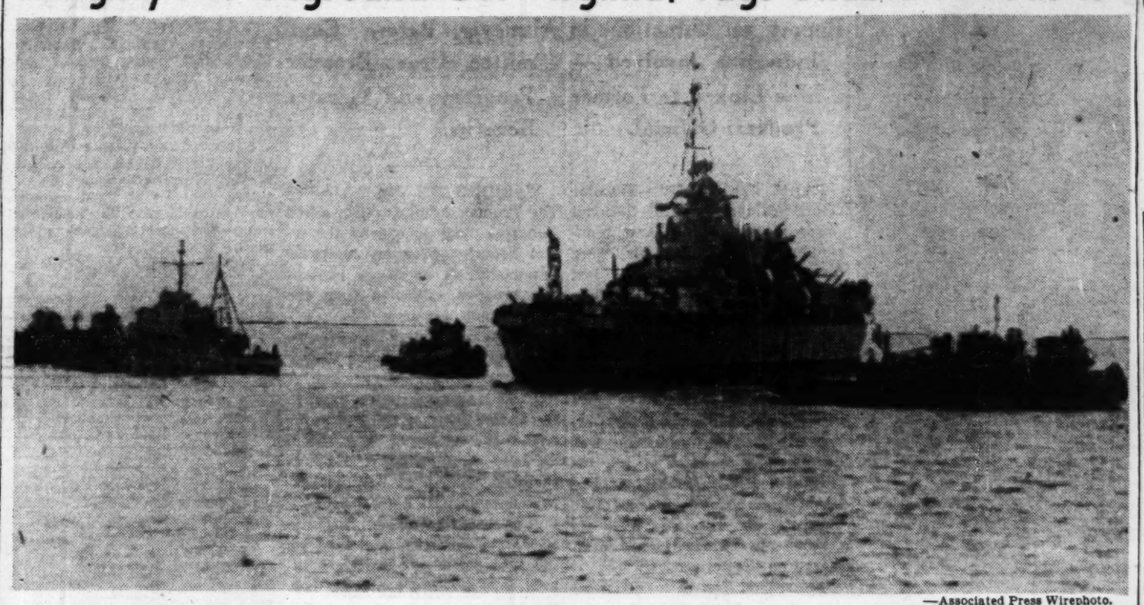

The prankster gave his name as Charles Martin, 23 years old. He told police he had been drinking No charge was placed against him immediately. Control tower officials first saw an Eastern Airlines gasoline truck hit the wingtip of an American Airlines plane that had just landed from Washington.

They called the police and fire department. When they arrived, Martin speeded up the truck and raced down a main runway. But he had 3000 gallons of 100 octane gas aboard and no wings, so he failed to get off the ground. He doubled back on another runway and finally came to a stop. While the chase was on, two airliners circled the airport waiting for clearance so they could land.

GOVERNOR SIGNS MEASURE FOR CITY PARKING PLACES

Bill Allows St. Louis to Buy or Rent Lots or Buildings for This Purpose.

By BOYD F. CARROLL
Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 17—A bill authorizing the city of St. Louis to operate off-street parking facilities was signed today by Gov. Forrest Smith. The law is effective March 9.

Intended to relieve traffic congestion, the measure permits the city to buy, rent or lease lots or buildings for parking space. The city is authorized to condemn property, except buildings used for residential purposes.

Under provisions of the law, St. Louis may operate parking lots itself or lease the lots or garages. If the facilities are leased, the city is required to get competitive bids and award the lease to the highest bidder.

Financing of Projects.

To finance the parking facilities, the city may use general revenue funds, including money derived from leases; may issue property bonds or revenue bonds, based on operation of the facilities, or may make special benefit assessments against real estate in the affected area.

Gov. Smith conducted a hearing last Wednesday on the bill. He heard representatives of the city, of the Chamber of Commerce and of business groups, who spoke in favor of the bill. He also heard representatives of owners of private parking lots and garages, who were strongly opposed to the measure.

Sponsor of the bill, passed by the 1949 Legislature, was Senator Milton F. Napier of St. Louis. The 1948 Legislature passed a similar bill applying to all cities except St. Louis.

Proposed Sites.

At the hearing before Gov. Smith, it was pointed out there are about 275,000 automobiles in the St. Louis area. About 94,000 of these are driven to the downtown district, where only 22,000 parking spaces are available.

Parking sites proposed by the city include: Jefferson Memorial site on the riverfront; Memorial Plaza, except for Soldiers' Memorial block; Fifteenth-Eighteenth - Chestnut - Market; the old Customs House at Eighth-Ninth-Locust-Olive; Eighth-Ninth-Pine - Chestnut; Sixth - Ninth - Lucas-Delmar, except existing Stix, Baer & Fuller garage; Broadway - Eighth - Market - Walnut, except York Hotel and Seven-Wal garage, and Thirteenth Fifteenth-Lucas-Gay.

ASSASSINS MISS ARMY CHIEF, KILL AIDE IN PHILIPPINES

MANILA, Jan. 17 (AP)—Unidentified assassins tonight tried to kill Maj. Gen. Mariano Castaneda, chief of staff of the Philippines army. His senior aide, Lt. Col. Valentin Salgado, was killed.

The attack occurred as the general, his aide and a stable orderly were riding horseback in Quezon City, eight miles north of Manila.

Gen. Castaneda was not hurt. He said several bullets were fired at the party by persons armed with an automatic gun.

High Tide Tonight Awaited for Refloating Battleship—Craft in Chesapeake Bay Apparently Undamaged.

NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 17 (AP)—The Battleship Missouri ran aground in Chesapeake Bay one and a half miles east-northeast of Old Point Comfort today.

Naval spokesmen had no explanation for the accident. The 45,000-ton Missouri grounded on the edge of the channel near Thimble Shoal light. It was outbound for Guantanamo, Cuba, for routine operations.

The Missouri, on whose deck the formal Japanese surrender took place, is the only United States battleship in active service.

Twelve tugs were unable to pull the "Mighty Mo" free and a spokesman for Atlantic Fleet headquarters said there was little hope of floating it before the next high tide, at 8:40 p.m.

The Navy said in Washington that the ship was in no danger and that there was no apparent damage.

Early this afternoon the fleet tanker Chemung came alongside the Missouri and began removing the battleship's supply of fuel oil to lighten it in preparation for tonight's floating attempt.

RECORD G.M.C. PROFIT, 600 MILLION IN 1949

Chairman Sloan Figures Tax Payments of All Types at Billion.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (UP)—General Motors Corp. made record net profits of more than $600,000,000 last year, Alfred P. Sloan Jr., chairman of the board, disclosed today. He figured corporation and personal income taxes and excess and other levies had taken a billion dollars.

Addressing 500 leaders in industry, finance and civic affairs at a "Forward From Fifty" luncheon, preliminary to his company's annual automobile show, opening Thursday, Sloan termed 1949 a "satisfactory" year for the industry and for General Motors.

Last year's profits, he said, "are likely to move up to over $600,000,000." Such a figure is well over $13 per share on outstanding common stock, on which 1949 dividends totaled $8 per share. In 1948, net income amounted to $440,447,724, or $9.72 a common share; while common dividends that year aggregated $4.50.

Comparison With 1936.

"If we compare 1949 with 1936," he said, "we find that the return on capital employed rose only 3 percentage points. To accomplish this we had to increase our sales in terms of 1949 dollars from $2,500,000,000 for 1936 to $5,500,000,000 in 1949."

G.M. had available for taxes and profits in 1949, he said, something over $1,100,000,000.

"The only way the stockholders can get their profits," he continued, "is through dividends. Of this $1,100,000,000, the Government 'take' in corporation and individual income taxes, based on 1949 profits, is estimated to be more than $600,000,000. Thus there is left for the stockholders spendable income of about $500,000,000. But, in addition, the business that the stockholders created paid the Government $400,000,000 in excise and other taxes for 1949. It would seem to me that the politicians should be inclined to encourage a performance of this magnitude."

Restriction on Earnings.

In recent years, Sloan warned, "economic incentive has been weakened by the ever-increasing 'take' of Government. I fear the effect is beginning to be felt on the economy.

"No matter how great his accomplishment, the individual today cannot hope to earn much more than enough to provide for his current needs and for a pension at retirement."

The responsibility and self-reliance of the individual, Sloan said, "can be diluted by the oversolicitude of a welfare state."

The motor industry, Sloan asserted, "is not yet in a truly buyers' market." However, he predicted, the second half of 1950 "will definitely bring a buyers' market for all makes." He softened this prediction, however, with the remark that "I thought exactly the same thing a year ago."

TRUMAN TO SPEAK AT RIVERFRONT IN JUNE

Will Take Part in Dedication of Memorial After Address in Columbia.

President Truman will speak here June 10 at ceremonies dedicating the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial on the riverfront, Mayor Joseph M. Darst announced today in Washington.

The President also will speak here at a reunion of the Thirty-Fifth Division the afternoon of June 9, Mayor Darst announced, after a White House call.

President Truman will fly to Columbia, Mo., June 9 to receive an honorary doctor of laws degree from the University of Missouri and to speak at commencement exercises. In the afternoon, he will come to St. Louis.

Tentative schedule for the division reunion includes a ball and show, with the President and his party as guests, at 8 p.m. June 9 in Kiel Auditorium convention hall; a parade at 11 a.m. June 10, memorial service at 12:30 p.m. on Memorial Plaza, and a reception for the President and his party at 3 p.m. at Grant's Farm on Gravois road.

The President commanded Battery D, 129th Field Artillery, of the Thirty-fifth Division in World War I. He regularly attends the division's annual reunions.

After the White House meeting, Mayor Darst told reporters President Truman expressed much interest in the proposed St. Paul to New Orleans parkway and in the riverfront memorial. He added that there was no discussion of Missouri politics.

Accompanying Darst on the visit to the White House were Peter S. Miravalle, president of the Thirty-Fifth Division Reunion Association, and Maj. Gen. Ralph E. Truman (retired) of Kansas City, the President's cousin.

Darst and other St. Louis officials were hosts at a luncheon for executives of the Federal Housing and Public Roads agencies. Later today they were to meet with John Taylor Egan of the Public Housing Administration to seek approval of the proposed fourth low-rent public housing facility here.

TRUMAN RISES LATER NOW; LATE-SLEEPING STAFF LIKES CHANGE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (UP)—President Truman may be "just a farmer from Missouri" like he says, but his White House staff is glad he's getting to be an old city slicker in one respect: He gets up later now.

Truman, an early riser, used to set out for his morning walk at 6 or 7 a.m. Then he would slide behind his White House desk at 8, and begin his daily conference with the staff around 9.

But things are different now. He goes for a walk around 8, shows up at his office at 9, and holds his staff meeting about 10 or later.

White House sources said he changed his schedule because of the late winter dawn and because the old one interfered with Secret Service shifts and was hard on his late-sleeping staff.

CREW SAVED AS SHIP SINKS

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 17 (UP)—The Honduran motorship Ingot sank off Cayo Frances, near Cuba, but all crewmen aboard were saved by a fishing boat, the Coast Guard here reported today.

The 70-foot Ingot had been missing since Jan. 13 on a voyage from Port Everglades, Fla., to Caiberian, Cuba.

DENHAM READY TO USE TAFT ACT IN MINE STRIKE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (UP)—Robert N. Denham, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, today prepared to invoke the injunctive powers of the Taft-Hartley act against John L. Lewis and his coal miners.

Denham's staff aids said he plans to issue a formal complaint against Lewis and the United Mine Workers probably tomorrow with a view to ending the current strikes.

"Hopes" to Act Soon.

Denham, who has been studying coal operators' complaints against Lewis for the last week, told the United Press he has completed his investigation and "hopes" to act soon. (The Associated Press quoted Denham as saying "paper" work would not be completed before tomorrow afternoon.)

His action might be tempered, however, by White House decisions. President Truman still is resisting demands for a presidential crack-down against Lewis, but Government officials said "one big blizzard" could force him to seek a Taft-Hartley injunction without waiting for the NLRB general counsel to act.

An appeal by Senator Brewster (Rep.), Maine, to invoke the Taft-Hartley Act against Lewis was rejected by Truman. After seeing the President today Brewster told reporters the President said he felt "the time has not yet arrived" to use the national emergency provisions of the law.

Under the emergency provisions of the act, the President could seek a court injunction to restore full production in the coal mines for 80 days.

"Not Allergic" to Law.

The President made it plain, Brewster said, that he is "not allergic" to the Taft-Hartley Act, since he has used it seven times.

"The President said he would not hesitate if a situation arose in which he could satisfy a court that a national emergency exists," Brewster said.

"But he said he still feels that the time has not yet arrived."

Meanwhile the latest coal strike had made 79,000 miners idle in

NUMBER OF HOUSES BEGUN LAST YEAR SETS RECORD; CONSTRUCTION COST DROPS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (AP) HOUSING construction set an all-time record in 1949 with work started on 1,019,000 dwelling units. Of those 983,700 were privately financed.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said today the total is about 9 per cent above the previous record of 937,000 units started in 1925. The 1948 figure was 931,300.

Construction in 1949 reached a peak in September with 102,900 starts, continuing a high rate through the fall and winter months. An estimated 79,000 units was started in December, the highest number since 1939.

The BLS said the average construction cost of one-family houses in the July-September period was $7625 or $400 below the figure for the same period in 1948.

FOREST FIRE OUT OF CONTROL NEAR COLORADO SPRINGS

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.)

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Jan. 17 (AP)—Flames, running on winds of hurricane force, swept a tinder-dry 50-square mile area just south of here today. They destroyed ranch houses and summer cabins, roared among the wooden buildings of Camp Carson and surrounded the famed Cheyenne mountain zoo.

Twelve hours after the fire broke out, an estimated 7000 firefighters including 3000 soldiers, still were fighting a losing battle. Many had been blistered or overcome by smoke. No deaths were reported.

The blaze was out of control on three sides. Along the north edge, it had been halted in the open ground surrounding the exclusive Broadmoor Hotel and the wealthy homes nearby.

Backdrafts were lashing it west up the timbered slopes of Cheyenne. The wind, blowing southeast around 50 miles an hour with gusts up to 72, had fanned the fire 10 miles east, across two main highways.

In one giant leap of 1000 yards, flames topped a ridge and bulldozed firelines into the Camp Carson buildings. Within seconds, 15 of them were aflame, according to Colorado Springs Fire Chief Fred Lausch.

Meanwhile, 35 persons, including Associated Press reporter Ben Funk, were encircled at the Bensberg ranch, near here. Funk, in a telephone conversation with the Associated Press bureau in Denver, said Camp Carson soldiers in the group were fighting to keep the flames from the ranch house.

BRITON WHO FITTED COWS WITH FALSE TEETH GETS YEAR

WINCHESTER, England, Jan. 17 (AP)—A cattle dealer charged with fitting false teeth to cows to make them look like heifers, has a year in which to think up new ideas.

Douglas Frederick Clay, 26 years old, was sentenced to a year in jail today on each of five charges of obtaining money under false pretenses, the terms to run concurrently.

Prosecutor N. R. Fox-Andrews said Clay duped the Ministry of Food into buying the cows by pulling their mature teeth and substituting teeth from calves. Clay denied he did it with intent to defraud.

RETAINS LEVY ON FREIGHT TRANSPORT

Truman Assails as 'Backward Looking' Proposal to Restore Old Power to House Rules Committee.

Today in Congress

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (AP)—Backers of straight-out repeal of oleomargarine taxes today beat a dairy state substitute, 48 to 37, in a Senate test.

The margin indicated the oleomargarine repealers had control of the Senate and eventually would put through their measure, already passed by the House.

However, Senator Langer (Rep.) North Dakota, whose state is a big dairy producer, launched an effort to tack "civil rights" amendments to the repealer.

Langer called up the first of his amendments—one to tie an anti-lynching provision to the measure. He said he was doing that "to find out whether the Senate at long last is going to give the poor people, Negroes as well as whites, a square deal."

Langer also offered a separate resolution calling for an investigation by the Judiciary Committee of whether the Democratic party has put civil rights lobbyists on the Government payroll.

Debate on these could run at length—and perhaps lead to defeat of the measure by arousing Southern opposition.

Vote of Missourians.

The so-called "dairy state" substitute would have repealed oleomargarine taxes, but would have barred shipment of yellow-colored oleomargarine across state lines.

Before rejecting the substitute, the Senate:

1. Turned down 56 to 33 an amendment by Senator Cordon (Rep.), Oregon, to repeal the 3 per cent tax placed on transportation of property in 1942.

2. Refused by voice vote to strike from the substitute a section that would have cut back to 1942 levels excise taxes on such items as furs, jewelry, luggage, telephone bills, admissions and transportation tickets. Senator Magnuson (Dem.), Washington, offered the motion.

This section, of course, was then junked when the whole dairy substitute was defeated.

The repeal backers accepted without argument an amendment by Senator Frear (Dem.), Delaware, which would required colored oleomargarine sold at retail to be packaged in a triangular form.

Debate on the bill, the first

WOMAN GETS YEAR IN WORKHOUSE FOR AIR PISTOL HOLDUP

Mrs. Delores Kirschner, 21-year-old housewife of 1113 Angelica street, who obtained $20 in the holdup of a confectionery, was sentenced today to concurrent one-year terms in the workhouse by Circuit Judge Eugene J. Sartorius on her plea of guilty of assault with intent to rob and carrying a concealed weapon. The weapon she carried in the holdup was an air pistol.

Mrs. Kirschner.

The guilty plea followed a conference of counsel, with Judge Sartorius after a panel of 34 prospective jurors had been qualified to try Mrs. Kirschner for robbery with a deadly weapon and carrying a concealed weapon. Mark Hennelly, Mrs. Kirschner's attorney, said his client had been extremely nervous following the death of her baby before the robbery and had been under a physician's care. The charge of robbery with a deadly weapon was reduced to assault with intent to rob, making the workhouse sentence possible.

Mrs. Kirschner held up Mrs William Brawner, confectionery proprietor at 2610 Park avenue last June 1 and fled in a taxicab. She was arrested two days later at Ninth and Locust streets when policemen recognized her black raincoat and white shoulder-strap purse as articles mentioned in the holdup description. Admitting the robbery, she told police that her husband makes $150 a week as a cabinet maker and that she did not know why she committed the holdup.

U.S. Hearing on How Much Insect Poison on Produce Is Dangerous

The Food and Drug Administration opened a public hearing on that question today.

It is the first step in the agency's plan to set up regulations barring the interstate shipments of fruits and vegetables containing more than a "safe" residue of poisonous insecticides.

The move stems from widespread use of DDT and other new chemicals by farmers. In many cases, the insecticide is allowed to remain on the produce after it is marketed.

There are no regulations covering this now. The agency can prohibit the shipment across state lines of any food in which the poison content is dangerously high. The trouble with this, a spokesman said, is that the "danger" level varies according to how much poison a consumer gets from other foods.

Dr. Fred C. Bishopp, assistant chief of the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine, testified more than a billion pounds of insecticides and fungicides are used annually on food crops in this country.

Two Men in Runaway Locomotive Pray Out Loud for Wild 22 Miles

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 17 (UP)—Two railroadmen admitted today that they prayed "out loud" as their diesel locomotive took them on a runaway ride for 22 miles through the heart of Milwaukee and suburbs.

"I prayed out loud," said engineer William Jordan. "I yelled to the fireman to pray out loud, to. And our prayers were answered."

Jordan and Fireman Benjamin Fuelleman were in the locomotive when it smashed into a trailer-truck northwest of here. The impact wrenched the locomotive loose from the rest of the passenger train.

The truck's driver, James Ratcliff, Kewaunee, Ill., was tossed clear, uninjured.

The collision occurred on a long down grade and the locomotive, its brake system smashed out of order, began picking up speed.

The train had been moving at 80 miles an hour but Jordon had thrown on the brakes shortly before the collision. With all control lost, the engine soon was moving at speeds varying from 40 to 50 miles an hour as it rolled around curves and over straightaways.

Jordan and Fuelleman tried desperately to stop it, while signal poles, grade crossings, and way stations, ripped past them in their headlong journey.

Meanwhile, the trainmen in the stranded passenger coaches sent word ahead about the runaway and Milwaukee road officials ordered all tracks cleared.

The engine tore through the village of Elm Grove and the big suburb of Wauwatosa. Officials at the Milwaukee Union station shunted a waiting train onto a sidetrack.

The runaway rocketed around sharp curves, crossed a main Wauwatosa business street at grade, ran parallel to another business street for several blocks, and on into Milwaukee after roaring through four freight yards.

"We prayed specifically to pass each obstacle as we came toward it," Jordan said. "First we prayed to pass those curves, then we prayed that all the grade crossings would be clear. After that, we prayed that we'd get around the sharp curve just south of the Milwaukee station."

The engine swayed dangerously around the curve but stayed upright as it careened over the Milwaukee river bridge.

"We sure were glad to see that the bridge was closed," Jordan said. "By then we were on an upgrade and knew that we'd be alright."

The engine finally came to a halt on the trestle where the road crosses the Kinnikinnick river.

Asked how he enjoyed the ride, Jordan gulped twice and said:

10,000 Bookies Reported in New York City — Gaming Czar Costello Is Said to Carry Key to City Hall.

By ALVIN H. GOLDSTEIN
A Staff Correspodent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—The recent proposal of Mayor William O'Dwyer to legalize bookmaking was foredoomed for rejection before it was offered, but intentionally or otherwise, it has served to focus attention on the increase of gamblers operating in New York City since the fall election.

Opponents of Mayor O'Dwyer in the mayoralty campaign charged that gamblers would take back the city they had lost during the frigidly simon-pure regime of the late Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia. Some of the more rabid antagonists of the Democratic nominee asserted bluntly that Frank Costello, national gambling czar, already carried a key to City Hall.

The mayor's chief critics greeted with a disdainful sniff his earlier comment that 8000 more policemen must be added to the present force of 19,000 to enforce laws against bookmaking. They recalled that Mayor LaGuardia's "honest cop" police commissioners, the late Lewis J. Valentine and his successor, Arthur Wallander, kept bookies in hiding to avoid the "heat."

Out From Under Log.

It is not uncommon today to see customers examining racing forms in a saloon, but supervision was so strict in the days of LaGuardia that a proprietor would not risk cancellation of his license by permitting it without protest. Known bookies and "runners," now often readily at hand, were barred from the premises. They have come out from under the log.

During the pre-O'Dwyer administration, police had an arrest-Costello-on-sight" order direct from the mayor which kept the "slot-machine king" at his New Jersey home or in other haunts except for surreptitious visits to the city. He now may be frequently seen at the Waldorf-Astoria where he often holds court in one of the lower corridors.

Frank Erickson, classed with Joe Adonis as the biggest bookmaker in the East, was castigated publicly with regularity by LaGuardia. He turned up as a frontable guest at a political dinner for Mayor O'Dwyer on the eve of his re-election. O'Dwyer ignored Erickson's outstretched hand, but newspaper photographers made some interesting pictures.

Estimate of 10,000 Bookies.

It recently was estimated that 10,000 bookies are operating more or less openly in New York City. Many admittedly have been in continuous service, reform or no reform, but it is evident the urgency of conducting business underground has diminished and some have other office space than just their hats.

The bulk of bets placed with bookmakers on the basis of professional odds determined by them on a "sure-thing" scale, is about equally divided between baseball and racing. Football and basketball take up much of the rest, with the remainder divided between boxing and hockey.

Encroachment of the professional "gambler" in college sports, particularly in New York City where many basketball games are played at Madison Square Garden instead of in school gymnasiums has led to considerable slaughter in amateur quarters. Players have been offered, and on occasion accepted bribes to throw games or reduce scores.

By the same token, many New Yorkers are viewing with deep concern the return of widespread bookmaking, a situation acknowledged by Mayor O'Dwyer when he complained the police department was understaffed for enforcement of gambling laws and by recommending state legislative action legalizing betting under official supervision — presumably with state appointed commissioners.

Top Officers Shifted.

As if to confirm the darkest fears, more than 50 top-rank police officials were shifted in the most thorough departmental shake-up in the history of the O'Dwyer administration. The Mayor made no reference to the relation between police activity or lack of it against gamblers and the transfers and demotion. Some informed New York citizens contended it was long overdue, however.

At Albany, legislative leaders promptly made clear that passage of any law permitting gambling was beyond consideration.

Clergymen, sportsmen and bookmakers joined in the opposition. A gambling statute was opposed by churchmen on moral ground, by sportsmen because, in the words of State Senator Arthur H. Wicks, "it would turn over to the tinhorn gamblers and punks in the gambling profession, sports that are participated in by the youth of our state," and by bookies because it would cut profits.

COLLEEN TOWNSEND

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 17 (AP)—"Giving up a Hollywood career may seem like nonsense to some people," said Colleen Townsend, who has just renounced a promising screen career so she can "devote myself full time to the Lord."

"But to me, the glamour and money of Hollywood are unimportant. I had thought that perhaps I could serve Christ through motion pictures. But I have decided that I can best serve Him if I give all my time to Him."

"This is no sudden decision," said Miss Townsend, who is a Presbyterian. "I've been thinking and praying about it for the last two and a half years; ever since I accepted Christ."

Her immediate plans are to enter school in September, "where I can work toward both a liberal arts and theology degree." She would enter school in February, except for a previous commitment with 20th Century-Fox studios to make a theatrical tour in the east.

She completed her freshman college year at Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah.

Miss Townsend said she doesn't know exactly what she will do after she finishes school. "I will just let the Lord lead me," she said. "It may be that I will go into missionary work, or Christian education, or that I will just try to be a good Christian wife."

"I had hoped there would be no publicity about my decision," she said. "I wanted it to be quiet. I don't want people to think I'm giving up pictures because I think Hollywood is wicked. On the contrary, I like Hollywood. I enjoyed making pictures, and I think that there are a great many good people in the industry."

"The whole world is seeking happiness," Miss Townsend said. "People look for it everywhere. It's something they would gladly give up their careers and money for. And it's so simple. The answer is Christ. That's why I want to devote my life in serving Him the best way I can."

Miss Townsend, born 21 years ago in Glendale, Calif., started her movie career at the age of 15 in "Janie," starring Joyce Reynolds.

Since 1947 she has appeared in "The Walls of Jericho," "Chicken Every Sunday" and "Scudda Hoo, Scudda Hay." She is starred with Dan Dailey in the forthcoming "When Willie Comes Marching Home."

Dewey Terms Proposal 'Shocking, Immoral and Indecent.'

ALBANY, N.Y., Jan. 17 (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey last night denounced New York Mayor William O'Dwyer's proposal that the state legalize gambling on public sports events as "shocking, immoral and indecent."

In a special message to the Legislature, Dewey said he was "unalterably opposed" to the proposal and declared:

"Obviously, if the state puts the imprimatur of approval on the morals and decency of wholesale, universal betting on sports events —then there would be no logic whatever in refusing also to legalize lotteries, betting pools, dice games, slot machines and public gambling halls."

"There is no logical place at which the line could be drawn and law enforcement would then break down completely," Dewey added.

In a press conference today Dewey accused O'Dwyer's administration of lax enforcement of anti-gambling laws, but indicated the state would not intervene now. Dewey explained that no complaints or evidence in connection with the gambling situation were before him. He said the governor rarely intervenes locally without formal complaints or evidence.

WOMAN FOUND SHOT DEAD, A REVOLVER BY HER SIDE

Mrs. Jennie Rifkin, 68-year-old widow, was found dead with two bullet wounds in her chest at her home on Old Halls Ferry road, near Chambers road, St. Louis county, today. A revolver containing two discharged shells was near the body.

A son, Alex Rifkin, told deputies he and his brother, Louis, found their mother's body lying across her bed when they returned to the house from their dairy barn at 8 o'clock. He said he and Louis were absent from the home about 30 minutes.

Mrs. Rifkin had been under treatment for a nervous disorder and had threatened to end her life, Alex Rifkin said. There were no notes. An inquest will be held tomorrow.

COUNTY TRANSIT CO., UNION TO ARBITRATE WAGE DISPUTE

A deadlocked wage dispute between the St. Louis County Transit Co. and the AFL Teamsters and Chauffeurs Local 408 will be arbitrated by a board that will begin its work Friday. Emil Bangert, operating manager of the company, said the company and the union had agreed to abide by any decision of the board.

BOARD VOTES TO WITHDRAW CHEST AID FROM AGENCY

The board of directors of the Social Planning Council of St. Louis and St. Louis County today approved a recommendation of its investigating committee that Community Chest support be withdrawn from the Missouri League for Prevention of Crime and Delinquency.

A spokesman for the council had announced earlier that the Chest's board of directors would probably accept any recommendations of the council's board on the matter. The league, formerly known as the Missouri Welfare League, has been operating on a Chest budget of about $12,000 a year.

The investigating committee said the existence of a Department of Corrections in the state government and the responsibility for juvenile correction exercized by the Missouri Association for Social Welfare had narrowed the league's field of activities to such a degree as to warrant dropping it from the Chest. It was also suggested that since the league's operations are state-wide, it ought to seek support from outstate sources.

2 GENERALS FIRED IN FRANCE FOR DEFENSE 'LEAK'

Report on Situation in Indochina Involved — Men Linked to Former Pro-Nazi Official.

PARIS, Jan. 17 (UP)—Premier Georges Bidault told the National Assembly today that two high-ranking French generals were dismissed from their posts last month on the ground that they had circulated a secret defense report and had close relations with a former enemy agent.

The two generals were Georges Revers, who was relieved as chief of staff of the French army Dec. 7, and Charles Mast, who was dismissed as director of the Institute of Higher Studies of National Defense at the same time. Mast, former French resident-general in Tunisia, has been placed on the retired list.

No reason for their dismissal was given at the time, but the Franch press has been carrying allegations of a leak in defense secrets.

Copies of Report Found.

Bidault said copies of a confidential report by Revers on the Indochinese situation were found on an arrested Indochinese last September and in the Paris homes of other Indochinese.

The Indochinese said they had received the document from a certain Roger Peyre, whom Bidault described as a former high official of the pro-Nazi movement of Jacques Doriot during the German occupation.

"It is grievous to know that such a man, a double or even triple agent, should have obtained the confidence of the two generals," Bidault said. "My heart is anguished by this information."

Among recommendations in Revers's secret report, Bidault said, was one that Mast should be named high commissioner for Indochina.

Record of Payment.

When police seized the account books of the Paris representative of the newly-established Indochinese state of Viet-Nam, Bidault said, they found an entry of payment of $8000 to Peyre for "pushing Mast's candidacy for high commissioner."

He said there were entries of other payments to a newspaper, a journalist and a reserve major for the same purpose. He said the Government took into account the war-time services of both generals.

"Our decision was taken with regret, but without hesitation," he said. "The two generals were stripped of all active command."

SENATORS GIVEN TRUMAN SOCIAL SECURITY PLAN

Altmeyer Before Committee, Urges Broader Program and Greater Benefits.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (AP)—The Truman Administration asked Congress today to expand the social security program to cover practically all employed persons —a broader extension than the House voted last year.

It also asked that benefits be increased more than the House bill provides.

These desires were outlined to the Senate Finance Committee by Arthur J. Altmeyer, the Social Security Administrator. He was the first witness at hearings expected to last 60 days.

Altmeyer also urged that the social security tax be levied on the first $4800 of a worker's annual income. Under present law, the tax now is 1½ per cent (but will rise in later years) and applies to the first $3000 of income. The House bill would apply it to the first $3600.

35 Million Now Covered.

On coverage, the pertinent figures are these: The present law covers about 35,000,000 workers. The House bill would add 11,000,000, bringing the total to 46,000,000. Altmeyer did not mention any specific number of additional persons the Administration wants covered, but he said that by covering "practically all gainfully employed persons," the program would "carry a much greater part of the cost of providing for the aged, the disabled and the dependent survivors of deceased breadwinners."

The Census Bureau figures there are about 60,000,000 "gainfully employed" people.

Altmeyer did recommend specifically that the program be extended to 5,500,000 farmers and farm workers who never have been under the program.

As for payments, the minimum a retired worker can get under present law is $10 a month and the maximum around $45. Under the House bill, these figures would rise to $25 and $64, respectively, for those already drawing benefits. For those who began drawing benefits later, the maximum would be $69 to start, but this would rise slowly, year-by-year, to $84.

Proposes Immediate Increase.

Altmeyer proposed that higher benefits in the House bill be put into effect immediately. That is, he would put the $69-plus scale of the House bill for those already drawing benefits rather than waiting several years to get it into effect.

Altmeyer figured the plan he proposed could be financed for 7.2 per cent of payroll, based on present wages, but said it would be 6 per cent "if it is assumed that wages will increase during the next half century about as much as they have increased during the last half century."

Social security taxes are paid both by the worker and by the employer. A 6 per cent tax, as Altmeyer used the phrase, would mean 3 per cent on the worker and 3 per cent on the employer.

The House bill provides for a gradual rise from the present 1½ per cent on each to 3¼ per cent by 1970.

3,500,000 With No Income.

The census bureau reported today that 3,500,000 Americans over 65 years old have no cash income at all. This group makes up nearly one-third of the 11,000,000 persons in that age group, not counting inmates of institutions.

The bureau said the remaining 7,500,000 had a median cash income of $808—that is, half of the 7,500,000 had less than $808 income and half had more.

The bureau showed the numbers of persons aged 65 or more in each income bracket as of 1948 to be this: Under $1000, 4,500,000; $1000 to $2000, 1,500,000; $2000 to $3000, 700,000; $3000 to $4000, 400,000; $4000 or more, 400,000.

Philip M. Hauser, acting census director, observed that "many of these persons lived with relatives and were not entirely dependent upon their own incomes."

However, he said, 2,200,000 lived apart from any relatives, 4,700,000 were heads of families, and the other 4,100,000 were members of families headed by other persons.

Senator George (Dem.), Georgia, the Finance Committee chairman, and Senator Millikin (Rep.), Colorado, the senior Republican member, have predicted that the Senate will go along with the House and vote for broader coverage and larger benefits. They have declined to forecast whether the Senate will take the House version or modify it in one direction or another.

Truman Wears No Horns, He Tells Bankers, and 'I Haven't a Tail'

Says He Is 'Just a Farmer From Missouri Who Had Bad Luck and Got Kicked Into Big Job.'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP)—President Truman, describing himself as "just a farmer from Missouri who had bad luck and got kicked into a big job," vowed tonight that his only goal "is peace in the world."

Speaking at a private dinner of representatives of the nation's Federal Reserve System, he declared that he is "just an ordinary citizen" who has had to assume "the greatest responsibility in the world."

Truman did not discuss his proposed tax program, which he is planning to submit to Congress soon, or any Administration fiscal proposals.

Reporters were not permitted to cover the dinner at Washington's Carlton Hotel, attended by governors of the Federal Reserve System, District chairmen and directors of New York and Minneapolis banks.

Text Released Later.

However, the White House later made public the text of Truman's impromptu remarks in which he asserted:

"I haven't any business to be discussing things financial with the financial brains that are before me tonight. I am just a farmer from Missouri who had bad luck and got kicked into a big job."

He said his only interest is the welfare of the United States and that the welfare of this country "is the welfare of the world."

"Whether we like it or not, we are at the top of the heap in world affairs, a position which none of us likes to contemplate, a position which has responsibilities almost too big for any man or any group of men to contemplate," Truman commented.

He wanted the bankers to know, he said, that "in spite of certain information, which has been pretty well distributed, that I do not wear horns, and I haven't a tail.

"I am just an ordinary citizen of this great republic of ours, who has the greatest responsibility in the world and whose responsibility is your responsibility, and for that reason it is necessary that all of us make every effort possible to make successful the goal which we are attempting to attain.

"And that is peace in the world —peace in Europe, peace in Asia, peace in South America, peace in Africa, peace in the western hemisphere, and the assumption of the leadership necessary to bring that about."

CHIANG'S PLANES HIT COMMUNIST INVASION FLEETS

By SPENCER MOOSA

TAIPEI, Formosa, Jan. 17 (AP)—Nationalist air force headquarters said today its warplanes attacked a fleet of 90 junks and other craft being assembled at Foochow, across Formosa strait, presumably for an eventual attack on Formosa. The announcement did not estimate how many junks were sunk or damaged.

Continuous bombing also was reported against targets on Liuchow peninsula in South China. Communist troops are reported assembling there for an invasion of Hainan Island, another major Nationalist retreat.

Official reports said that in the Liuchow bombings, in which more than 100 planes were used, a number of Red military establishments and junks were destroyed in a night raid. The tip of the peninsula is 10 miles from Hainan.

Nationalist warships were reported in control of the Gulf of Tonkin, guarding the northwestern approaches to Hainan.

Dispatches also reported Hainan's defenses had been strengthened by the arrival of 40,000 troops from Yunnan province. (The United Press said the reinforcements were flown to Hainan.)

The reinforcements belong to the command of Yu Cheng-jan and Li Mi, two commanders seized last month by turncoat Gov. Lu Han. He freed them later. The two went to Hainan after conferring in Taipei with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

The additional troops would give the Nationalists 80,000 poorly equipped first-line troops on Hainan. There are about 60,000 secondary troops on the island which served as one of Japan's main South China bases during the war.

Across Hainan strait the Communists have a large force of crack Manchurian troops. There are some 17,000 Red guerrillas on Hainan. They control the center of the island and 100 miles along the west coast. Most of them have been there since the war.

CHARTER BOARD APPROVES PLAN FOR INITIATIVE AND REFERENDUM

Clause Is Similar to That Now in Force, but Provides Mayor Must Approve Popular Vote in Some Instances.

Proposals for the initiative and the referendum were approved by the Board of Freeholders for inclusion in the proposed new City Charter last night. In general, the proposals contained no substantial changes from provisions now in force.

The Charter section dealing with the referendum, under which the people have power to approve or reject at the polls any ordinance passed by the Board of Aldermen, was approved unanimously, but provisions for the initiative provoked considerable discussion.

As adopted, 6-to-2, on recommendation of the board's committee on legislative department, the initiative would give the people power to propose any ordinance or amendment to the Charter, except that in certain instances prior approval of the Mayor would be required before ordinances could be submitted at the polls.

Objection by Chadeayne.

Henry F. Chadeayne, board member, objected vigorously to the requirement that the Mayor approve the initiative proposal before its submission to the voters. He noted that the Mayor's recommendation would be required before the Board of Aldermen could pass an appropriation measure, for example, but said this should not be required when the ordinance was proposed under the initiative.

The initiative, he said, served the people as redress against failure of the Aldermen to adopt an ordinance and it also should serve the people as a safeguard against failure of the Mayor to recommend passage of an ordinance in those cases where his recommendation is a Charter requirement.

"We're providing a strong-Mayor type of Government," Chadeayne said, "and under it we are providing that his recommendation be required before the Board of Aldermen may act on some ordinances.

"Nevertheless, it is conceivable that the Mayor might refuse to function. I think of the initiative as giving the people the chance to do something they've been unable to persuade their officials to do. It may be unwise at times, but the people are the safest depositories of this power."

A majority of the committee, however, reported they felt that the Mayor would be unwilling to withhold his recommendation in the face of a substantial showing by the voters on an initiative petition.

Provisions of Clause.

Under the initiative, an ordinance may be proposed on petition signed by 5 per cent of the voters at the time of the last mayoralty election, except that in case of appropriations, city planning and other matters, approval of the Mayor would be required before submission. In the case of a charter amendment, 10 per cent of the registered voters would be required.

The board's committee on administrative department, at an earlier meeting yesterday, tentatively approved a recommendation that would increase the salary of Mayor from $10,000 to $25,000 a year. This increase, however, would not apply until after Mayor Joseph M. Darst's present term expires, state law prohibiting the salary of an officer being increased during the term in which the rise became law.

Chadeayne, committee chairman, said the Mayor is responsible for administering a municipal corporation of more than 8000 employes and with an annual budget in excess of $40,000,000. Persons qualified for such work in private employment would receive as much, if not more, he added.

Comparative Salaries.

John I. Rollings and Mrs. Frank A. Becker, other members of the committee, previously had suggested a salary of $20,000, but voted with Chadeayne on the matter, which now goes to the full board for approval. Earlier, Dr. Victor C. Brannon of Governmental Research Institute, paid consultant to the freeholders, reported the salary paid the Mayor of St. Louis was lowest of any in the nation's 13 largest cities.

Highest salary paid was in New York, where Mayor William O'Dwyer's pay recently was increased to $40,000. The median salary of the 13 cities was $18,000, paid in Los Angeles and Chicago. The average for the 13 cities was $17,408. Cities paying their chief executives more than St. Louis included, Detroit, Boston, San Francisco, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Milwaukee and Buffalo.

March of Dimes Gifts Total $7500 on First Day of Drive

At opening of March-of-Dimes campaign in University City last night, SAM DARDICK, 7476 Cornell avenue, a polio patient, receives assurance of MRS. HARRY ROSEN, 8138 Balson avenue, and POLICE JUDGE THOMAS R. McGINNIS, community co-chairmen, that every doorbell in the city will be rung during the campaign. POSTMASTER BERNARD F. DICKMANN, chairman of the city-county drive, looks on.

Contributions on the opening day of the March of Dimes campaign yesterday totaled $7500, about $1500 more than last year's first-day collections for the polio fund, it was announced today.

Ceremonies marking the start of this year's drive were held on the steps of the Old Federal Building, Eighth and Olive streets, where a booth has been set up to receive contributions. The drive, whose goal of $490,000 is twice the amount collected last year, will continue through Jan. 31.

First group gift announced yesterday was $1500 from employes of McDonnell Aircraft Corp., approximately twice the sum they gave last year. Other gifts included a pledge of about $1300 from the factory employes of Moloney Electric Co. and $535 from employes of Century Electric Co.

Opening of the University City campaign was held last night on the lawn of the city hall, 6801 Delmar boulevard, where a huge replica of a March of Dimes donation can has been placed.

While Postmaster Bernard F. Dickmann, chairman of the city-county drive, looked on, University City co-chairmen, Mrs. Harry Rosen, 8138 Balson avenue, and Police Judge Thomas R. McGinnis, assured several hundred spectators that every doorbell in the community would be rung before the drive was over.

Sam Dardick, 7476 Cornell avenue, 16-year-old polio patient, occupied a prominent place on the perform, while the drum and bugle corps of Pershing School and the University City High School band added a festive note.

August Lambert, 4915 Itaska street, a beer truck driver, whose 3-year-old son, Ronald, died of poliomyelitis three years ago, set up a beer keg at Eighth and Olive to conduct his own solicitation in behalf of the campaign. Fellow members of Lambert's union will be present each day to assist him at his stand.

In opening the campaign, Postmaster Dickmann pointed out that more than 500 persons were stricken and 53 died of poliomyelitis in the city and St. Louis county last year.

Former Mayor Aloys P. Kaufman, campaign vice chairman, said: "All of us rebel against the idea that children should be so maimed in the very first stages of their lives. Yet, because of the March of Dimes and the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis we need not permit the disease to run its course without fighting back. We can fight the disease by participating in this campaign."

STATE MEDIATORS CONSIDERING TYPE OF P.S. CO. HEARING

To Decide Within Two Weeks on Private Arbitration on King-Thompson Law Panel.

By BOYD F. CARROLL
Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 17—The State Board of Mediation had under advisement today the question whether a new wage contract dispute between St. Louis Public Service Co. and its operating employes must be settled by private arbitration or by a public hearing panel to be set up under the state public utility no-strike law.

Vance Julian, chairman of the board, announced at the conclusion of a hearing yesterday afternoon for representatives of the company and employes union that the board would have a decision ready within two weeks.

Julian obtained an agreement from both sides that negotiations would be continued in the meantime in an attempt to work out a new contract. A meeting for this purpose, in St. Louis, is tentatively set for tomorrow, union officers said.

Argument Over Procedure.

The hearing, largely involving legal arguments, developed sharp conflict between company and union representatives on procedure for negotiating a 1950 contract to replace the 1949 agreement, terminated by the company.

The company contends the 1949 contract was canceled effective last Dec. 31 and no longer is in existence, under a termination notice given to the union last Oct. 31. The private arbitration clause in the contract no longer is effective, it was asserted.

Company counsel declared any questions now unsettled should be referred to a public hearing panel to be established under the King-Thompson no-strike law. It was contended that since no agreement had been reached on arbitration, procedure under the public hearing panel provision of that act was mandatory.

Union's Position.

Counsel for Local No. 788, AFL Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes, contended the union had invoked the arbitration clause of the 1949 contract, by notice to the company, and asked the board to compel the company to abide by arbitration provisions of the contract.

Validity of the contract termination notice given by the company was questioned by the union. The arbitration provisions still were in effect, it was said. Public hearing panel provisions of the no-strike law do not apply, it was contended, when a contract contains provisions for voluntary arbitration, except when the two sides fail to agree in an arbitration proceeding.

Bernard Cushman of Washington, counsel for the union, pointed out that the recommendations of a fact-finding or public hearing panel set up under the King-Thompson law are not final and binding.

DELANY 'UNSOUND MIND' VERDICT IS SET ASIDE

Court of Appeals Orders New Trial of Case of Wealthy 91-Year-Old Widow.

The finding of a jury on April 22, 1948, that Mrs. Elizabeth S. Delany, 91-year-old widow, was of unsound mind was reversed today by the St. Louis Court of Appeals which ordered the case remanded to the St. Louis circuit court for a new trial.

In an opinion written by Commissioner Walter E. Bennick, the court found certain evidence concerning the character and action of Mrs. Marie Schaefer, daughter of Mrs. Delany's housekeeper, had been improperly admitted and had probably influenced the verdict of the jury.

Mrs. Schaefer had been reared in the Denay home at 5105 Lindell del boulevard and there was some testimony she had been regarded by the wealthy widow in the light of a foster daughter. The evidence objected to had to do with Mrs. Schaefer's reputation for giving disorderly parties and getting drunk on occasion outside the home.

"It is a most serious thing to be declared of unsound mind," the opinion stated, "and no one should have such a judgment pronounced against him except upon a preponderance of convincing evidence meeting all the legal requirements.

"How she (Mrs. Delany) reacted to the conduct of others, including that of her foster daughter, Marie, would undoubtedly have been a material factor if she was directly involved in or affected by such conduct, or was in some manner called upon to respond to it. But how could her mental competency have been shown by proof that Marie was ejected from a night club in Saugatuck, Mich., when Mrs. Delany was not present and was in no wise concerned with the incident?

"Nor could it have affected the question of her capacity that Marie may have had a bad reputation among the inhabitants of Douglas, Mich., for drunkenness, immorality and the like. It was not Marie who was on trial although a great part of the evidence was given over to condemning her along with her mother and her daughter.

Mrs. Delaney is the widow of John O'Fallon Delaney who left an estate estimated to be worth about $222,000 at present. The action to have her declared of unsound mind was brought by Mrs. J. Lindsay Franciscus, 4950 Lindell boulevard, a relative by marriage. It had been alleged that Mrs. Delany had been held a virtual prisoner in her home by her servants.

MAN FATALLY BURNED IN FIRE

William Schoat, 74-year-old Negro, died at County Hospital of burns suffered in a fire at his home, 8736 Agnes avenue, Brentwood, today. When the fire department found Schoat, a pensioner, 98 per cent of his body was burned.

Funeral of Dr. Cummings Held; Church Group to Carry on Work

The Rev. Hampton Adams Officiates at Service — Committee to Recommend Successor to Federation Post.

Funeral services for the Rev. Dr. Clark Walker Cummings, executive secretary of the Metropolitan Church Federation of St. Louis, who died Saturday, were held today at Union Avenue Christian Church, 733 Union boulevard. Burial was private.

The Rev. Hampton Adams, pastor of the church, was assisted in the services by the Rev. Edmund C. Miller, president of the Federation and pastor of Hamilton Avenue Christian Church; the Rev. James A. Bracy, pastor of First Baptist Church, and Rabbi Samuel Thurman, president of the Rabbinical Society of St. Louis.

Zest for Living Recalled.

Dr. Cummings was described by the Rev. Mr. Adams as a warm-hearted person with a great zest for living." There was laughter in nearly every day of his life, and there were few days without tears," he said. "In the mingling of laughter and tears, you found the key to his character."

He was described by the speaker as "the pastor of pastors" whose friendship and wise counsel had been enjoyed by other ministers here.

Interim Committee Named.

Meanwhile a special interim committee has been named to carry on the work of the Rev. Dr. Cummings as executive secretary of the Federation and to recommend his successor, it was announced at a meeting of the executive committee of the Federation's administrative board.

The interim committee will be composed of the Rev. Dr. Miller and the following past presidents of the Federation: The Rev. Walter A. Scheer, Bethany Evangelical and Reformed Church; the Rev. Ervin Inglis, First Congregational Church of Webster Groves; and the Rev. Frank C. Tucker, Centenary Methodist Church. A fifth member will be the new president of the Federation for 1950 to be elected at the annual meeting on Feb. 2.

At the conclusion of the meeting of the executive committee, the Rev. Dr. Miller issued the following statement:

"Because of the tremendous scope and importance of the projects of the Metropolitan Church Federation set up by the Rev. Dr. Cummings, and because he would not want any stoppage or curtailment of these projects, the executive committee of the administrative board of the federation met today in a regular meeting arranged for by the Rev. Dr. Cummings before his sudden death, and authorized the appointment of a special interim committee to carry forward the work. No important function of the federation will be interfered with. Plans call for moving the whole Rev. Dr. Cummings program forward. Under his leadership our local federation has become one of the best known in the country.

"The interim committee is also authorized to investigate and recommend a successor to Dr. Cummings in due time. It is expected that because of his ability, it will take time and be difficult to secure a comparable successor."

Memorial Fund.

The executive committee also authorized the establishment of the "Clark Walker Cummings Memorial Fund." Use of the money received from flower donations and other sources will be determined later.

Messages of condolence were received from Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam of New York; Earl W. Brandenburg of New York, executive of the national Y.M.C.A. retirement fund; the Rev. Dr. John F. Stamm of New York, president of the Federal Council of Church of Christ in America; the Rev. J. Henry Carpenter, director, Brooklyn (N.Y.) Council of Churches, and the Rev. Dr. Roy G. Ross of Chicago, general secretary of International Council of Religious Education.

MAN FATALLY HURT WHEN STRUCK BY AUTO

Donald Johnston, 24-year-old bellboy at Hotel Statler, was killed last night, when he was struck by an automobile in front of his home, 9009A South Broadday, Lemay.

Fred W. Lehmkuhl Jr., operator of a tavern at 9801 South Broadway, told deputies he was driving south near the center of street when Johnston appeared in his path with his back toward the machine. Lehmkuhl, who said he had just passed another car, told officers he was unable to avoid Johnston.

Johnston died at St. Louis County Hospital of a fractured skull an hour and a half after the accident. Lehmkuhl was released on $1000 bond pending an inquest tomorrow.

TRIAL OF MAN IN DEATH OF AGED GRANDMOTHER BEGINS

DEMOCRATS BACK FORMOSA POLICY IN SENATE CAUCUS

Party Leader Lucas Says They Fear Intervention in Far East Would Mean War.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (AP)—Senate Democrats united today behind President Truman's "hands-off" policy on Formosa.

Senator Lucas of Illinois, the Democratic leader, said a party caucus showed that all of the Democrats support the stand of the President and Secretary of State Dean Acheson in refusing to give military aid to the Chinese Nationalists on the island.

"The Democrats think the State Department and the President are definitely right in the actions they have taken," Lucas told reporters. "The Democrats are fearful that any intervention there ultimately will mean war."

Republicans Are Critical.

Republicans have taken the lead in sharp criticism of the President for refusing to move to make Formosa, an island 100 miles off the China coast, secure against attack by Chinese Communists.

The Formosa question was brought before the closed Democratic party conference by Senator Robertson (Dem.), Virginia, who called for support of the State Department's stand.

Senators Russell (Dem.), Georgia, and Pepper (Dem.), Florida, backed Robertson's plea.

"There were little shades of differences of opinion, but there was no opposition to the President's position," Pepper said.

Secretary Acheson will report on developments in China to the House Foreign Affairs Committee tomorrow and to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee next week.

G.O.P. Drafting Policy Plan.

Meanwhile, Ohio's Senator Taft, who heads the Senate's Republican policy drafting committee, announced that Senator Vandenberg (Rep.), Michigan, will not submit any proposals for the foreign affairs section of the G.O.P.'s proposed statement of party principles. The statement will be used as a campaign document in the coming Congressional elections.

Taft said however, that the Michigan Senator does expect to be consulted about that phase of the policy statement before it is put into final shape.

It was understood that Vandenberg's decision was meant to compose party differences on the foreign affairs issue.

MAN RETURNS AFTER BODY IS IDENTIFIED AS HIS AND BURIED

Russell Scaggs called on his old friends today in Festus to tell them he was not dead. Three months ago, a man thought to be Scaggs was buried in Telegraph cemetery, after a big funeral with full military honors.

"I came home Saturday night," Scaggs related, "and one of my nieces nearly fainted. My brother, William, and my sister-in-law were really shocked. They shouldn't have been though, because I telephoned another brother in Cape Girardeau last November when I was in Omaha and that's when I found out they had 'buried' me."

William Scaggs had received a letter from the chief of police of Norfolk, Nebr., saying a man who committed suicide in a jail cell there Oct. 11 had been identified through fingerprints as Russell Scaggs. The dead man had one leg. The police chief explained the man had been badly hurt in an automobile accident before he ended his life. The body bore the tattoo "R.S."

"Friends and relatives said the man looked like me," Russell Scaggs related. He had been away from home a year and a half working on construction jobs in Iowa. He wrote home only once. When he returned, his brother was about to order a tombstone. The family had already collected $500 in insurance and spent it on the funeral. A lawyer, Earl Saunders, is trying to "straighten it all out for us." Scaggs added wearily.

GRANITE CITY BOARD DODGES BOOKIE ISSUE

The City Council of Granite City last night rejected a proposal that an investigation be made of handbook operations in the city and then adjourned its meeting before the alderman making the suggestion could argue his point.

Alderman Donald Partney, Fourth Ward, called the attention of the council to recent fines paid in Madison County Court by four Granite City bookies, and suggested that the Mayor and police investigate gambling. Partney put his suggestion in the form of a motion, which met speedy rejection by a vote of 10 to 3.

Alderman Steve Egeditch, Second Ward, challenged Partney to make his own investigation of handbooks, but the meeting moved quickly for adjournment and Alderman Partney had no opportunity to develop the subject. The four Granite City bookies, who were fined $200 each last Friday, were Clara Barnholz, Lester Fehling, William Skidmore and Isaiah Hughes.

MOTHER AND SEVEN CHILDREN DRIVEN FROM HOME BY FIRE

Mrs. John B. Barnard Jr. picked up her youngest child and directed her six other children to safety after discovering a fire in the basement of their nine-room stucco home, 120 Elizabeth street, Ferguson, at 6 o'clock last night.

Warned by smoke seeping through a sunroom floor, reported by a 9-year-old son, Mrs. Barnard discovered electric wires blazing in the basement. Picking up her two-month-old infant, the mother directed the older children, ranging in age to 13 years, to run outside while she called firemen. After she got outside Mrs. Barnard remembered the family canary in the living room, but smoke prevented her from reentering the house. The pet was asphyxiated.

Firemen confined the blaze to the basement and the kitchen, reporting damage of $3000. Barnard, a public accountant, arrived home shortly after the fire was discovered. The family spent the night with neighbors.

NAVY SHIFTS MEN IN UNIFICATION AND B-36 QUARRELS

Members of Congress Debating Whether Defense Department Is Engaging in Reprisals.

By CHARLES CORDDRY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (UP)—A number of the Navy officers who were prominent in last year's controversies over the B-36 and unification have been transferred to new posts or are on their way to retirement, a survey showed today.

The question of whether reprisals were taken against them by the Defense Department is something members of Congress are debating.

The Congressmen are interested mainly in learning whether any naval officers were punished for testifying against unification policies and the Air Force B-36 superbomber. Their chief concern has been the ouster of Adm. Louis E. Denfeld as chief of naval operations after he supported the "rebels."

The Navy shake-up has affected a number of other officers who were linked with B-36 or unification criticism, including some who did not testify before Congress.

An unpublicized case is that of Cmdr. Thomas D. Davies, the young aviator and engineer who holds the world's distance record of 11,236 miles in a Neptune patrol bomber, Truculent Turtle.

Cmdr. Davies was a fair-haired boy around Navy headquarters—until a court of inquiry investigated the celebrated "anonymous" document attacking the capabilities of the B-36.

The court's findings have not been made public, but Davies recently was transferred to the naval air station at San Point, Seattle, for a job that is minor compared with the assignments he has here. He worked for a time under Cedric R. Worth, who resigned as assistant to Under Secretary Dan A. Kimball after admitting that he wrote the "anonymous" document.

Another unpublicized shift was that of Capt. Leroy C. Simpler, a Pacific war ace, who headed the Navy's aviation information section here. He told the court of inquiry that the Air Force was getting all the headlines and that he agreed with Worth that no plane could be as good as the B-36 was said to be. He now is assigned to the Atlantic fleet as an information officer in the forthcoming joint maneuvers in the Caribbean.

The cases of Capt. John G. Crommelin and Vice Adm. Gerald F. Bogan are well known.

Crommelin, a member of the staff of the joint chiefs of staff, blasted unification as a cloak for Prussian general staff methods. He now is an air officer on the staff of Vice Adm. George D. Murray, commander of the western sea frontier.

Bogan, who commanded the first task fleet in the Pacific, wrote a "confidential" letter to Navy Secretary Francis P. Matthews, attacking unification policies. Crommelin made the letter public. Bogan is slated for a lesser post but he may retire instead.

Denfeld was offered the command of U. S. naval forces in Europe after his ouster. But he probably will retire instead.

Adms. William H. P. Blandy, Atlantic fleet, commander, and Thomas C. Kinkaid, eastern sea frontier commander, are going to retire.

One of the men who testified at the congressional hearings has been promoted. Capt. Arleigh Burke, a Pacific hero who headed "operation 23," a Navy group credited with being the nerve center of the anti-unification fight, has been elevated to the rank of rear admiral.

One more development which may have a bearing is the recent transfer of Comdr. Harry Cross to another headquarters as a public relations man. Cross formerly was Denfeld's public relations officer.

HOFFMAN CALLS ECA WEST'S 'FIRST LINE OF DEFENSE'

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 17 (AP)—Paul G. Hoffman today called the Marshall plan "a first line of defense for western civilization."

Hoffman, who as Economic Cooperation Administration chief is director of the Marshall plan, pictured the aid program as a combatant in the cold war with Russia. He addressed the Poor Richard Club on receipt of that organization's 1950 medal of achievement.

Hoffman said that when Russia's V.M. Molotov refused to join in the Marshall plan at the organizational meeting in Paris in 1947, "it was a declaration of a cold war. It was a declaration of war by world Communism against recovery in the free world.

"ECA has become not only a first line of defense for western civilization, but an instrumentality for advancing the cause of freedom — not only America's freedoms and America's free institutions, but freedom and free institutions everywhere. To regard ECA as any less than that is to reveal a perilous lack of knowledge about the menacing facts of our world."

DRIVER'S TRIAL SET FOR KILLING OF TWO BY RUNAWAY BUS

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (UP)—The driver of a runaway double-deck bus which killed two persons and injured 47 others in a five-way crash was arraigned today on a vehicular homicide charge. Trial was set for Feb. 7.

The driver, James Farrell, 28 years old, said the brakes on the big vehicle failed as he drove with a "standing load" of between 85 and 90 passengers down the ramp of the Queensboro bridge into Manhattan yesterday morning.

Edmund C. Collins, executive vice president of the Fifth Avenue Bus Co., said, however, a check after the bus was hauled away from the crash scene showed the brakes were in good working condition.

The bus shot off the bridge ramp with Farrell shouting, "Hold on, everybody." Then came a series of crashes. The bus rammed the rear of a light truck stopped for a traffic signal, then smashed into a coupe carrying six persons. The coupe and bus careened into the path of a 10-ton trailer truck and struck a second automobile a glancing blow.

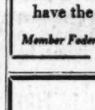

A group of high school girls standing on a corner were bowled over. The bus slammed the coupe against a light standard, shearing off the top of the automobile down to the frame.

Harry Hicks, 42, and Sheila Heron, 24, of New York, passengers in the demolished car, were killed. Three passengers in the car were injured seriously.

Ten pedestrians struck by the bus were injured, as well as 32 passengers in the bus and the driver.

LABOR PARTY BARS TIES WITH BRITISH CONSERVATIVES

By JOHN RODERICK

LONDON, Jan. 17 (AP)—Britain's Labor party kicked off in the general election campaign last night with declarations that it stands on its record and will not enter a coalition with Winston Churchill's Conservatives.

Two of the party's best spellbinders, Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison and Attorney General Sir Hartley Shawcross, told a rally at Lewisham that Labor had produced more jobs, fewer strikes and a fairer share for all.

Britain's 34,000,000 voters go to the polls Feb. 23.

Labor's political platform will be published in the form of a party "manifesto" Wednesday.

Morrison put out another warning to industrialists that advertising campaigns against nationalization would be classed as campaign expenditures chargeable to the Conservative party.

The Labor party, he declared, would not consent to a coalition with the Conservatives should there be no clearcut majority for any party in the election.

"I would urge that nobody should comfort themselves with the idea of a peacetime Labor-Conservative coalition government," he said. "It would be ineffective and certainly labor would not agree to such an adventure."

Reports were current that Churchill's Conservatives were planning to bring a number of non-conservatives into the government in the event they win.

Two of the names most prominently mentioned were those of Major Gwilym Lloyd George, son of the late David Lloyd George, former Liberal Prime Minister, and Sir John Anderson, wartime Chacellor of the Exchequer.

Shawcross said that under the Labor government Britain had made "a far better recovery than any other European country which took part in the war." After World War I, he said, under the Conservative government, Britain did worse than any other in Europe except Poland.

Churchill, wartime Prime Minister, is scheduled to open the Conservative campaign in a radio speech Saturday night.

Churchill came to London today to talk with the Conservative party "shadow cabinet" and work out the party program.

Brooks says he considered Churchill "the principal warmonger in this country today."

WEST REICH RATIONING EASED

Backer of Hitler, 79, Was Indicted as War Criminal, but Illness Prevented His Trial.

SALZBURG, Austria, Jan. 17 (AP)—Gustav Krupp, the German armaments king who built "Big Bertha" in World War I and even more deadly guns for Hitler in World War II, is dead.

The 79-year-old head of one of the world's biggest arms industries died at his family estate here yesterday. The aged industrialist, partially paralyzed since the war, escaped trial as a Nazi war criminal because he was too ailing and senile. Allied doctors, at the time of the Nuernberg trials in 1945, said Krupp was suffering from softening of the brain.

His wife, Bertha, after whom the mammoth, long-range cannon which bombarded Paris in World War I was named, was said to have remained at his side during his illness. He died in a small cottage on his huge estate, Schloss Bluehnbach. The rest of the estate is now a recreation center for American occupation forces in Austria.

Funeral services are to be conducted in Salzburg.

Born in Holland.

Born Gustav Halbach in The Hague, Holland, he married Bertha Krupp when he was 36 and was granted the right to assume the name of Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach by Kaiser Wilhelm II, who attended the wedding. Bertha was then heiress to the vast Krupp interests and was one of the wealthiest women in the world.

Thus, the son of an American-born German diplomat married into and became the successful head of a network of holdings which at their peak were estimated to be worth from $200,000,000 to one billion dollars.

His father, though born in Philadelphia, retained his German nationality and was serving as Baden's envoy to The Hague when Gustav was born. The son entered the diplomatic field, serving in the German Embassy in Washington and later in Rome, where he met his future wife.

Once called the "prince consort of the kingdom of Krupp," Gustav steered the company which at one time was the biggest armament plant in the world, employing about 180,000 workers.

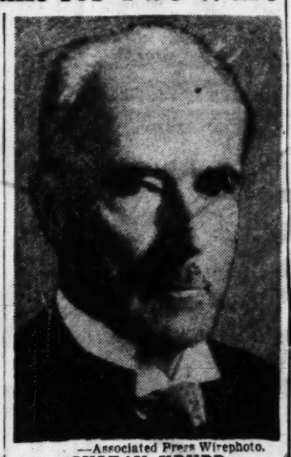

He supported the rise of Adolf Hitler and in 1940 on his seventieth birthday was awarded the gold Nazi honor badge by Hitler. He became president of the German Council for Business and Industry. But he fell out with Nazi leaders in 1944 and was arrested for making defeatist statements.

Indicted as War Criminal.

Nevertheless, the arms king was indicted as a war criminal in 1945, after the war machine he helped build was smashed and most of his huge plants at Essen had been bombed to rubble.

Although he never appeared for trial, his son, Alfried, was sentenced in 1948 by an Allied tribunal to 12 years in prison on charges of using slave labor and plundering property in countries seized by the Nazis.

After World War I, the treaty of Versailles ordered the destruction of $25,000,000 worth of Krupp war material. When the French occupied the Ruhr in 1923, Gustav and several of his directors were imprisoned for six months for "passive resistance" to the occupation.

FATIGUE IN MANY LAID TO ALLERGIES

That ever-present feeling of fatigue experienced by some persons may be caused by an allergy rather than overwork or mental upset, Dr. M. G. Meyer, Michigan City, Ind., said yesterday in a talk before the sixth annual convention of the American College of Allergy at Hotel Jefferson.

In cases where fatigue was the sole complaint, patients were cured or much improved by dietary exclusion or avoidance of particles sensitive to the respiratory system, Dr. Meyer said.

Allergic management cured or improved 12 of 20 cases where no organic disorder was found and 9 of 15 cases with an organic disease inadequate for complaint, he said.

Dr. Meyer said persons cured of the fatigued feeling by allergy elimination have come to an allergist as a last resort and are not affected by the psychology of a medical explanation for their exhaustion.

The use of ACTH, a drug recently found beneficial for arthritis and rheumatism, and Concentrated Adrenal Cortex in a wide range of allergic manifestations was shown at the convention today in an exhibit by Dr. John P. Rollins, Dr. Theron G. Randolph and Dr. Michael Zeller, all of Chicago.

Successful use of the drugs was reported in acute and chronic bronchial asthma, rheumatoid arthritis, acute ragweed fever, migraine headaches and allergic fatigue.

The doctors said, however, that these materials cannot be regarded as substitutes for allergic diagnosis and treatment since the supply is extremely limited. They added that from a few days to several weeks after use of the drugs, allergic symptoms will recur.

Today's meetings were devoted to business and a panel on skin allergies. The convention continues through tomorrow.

No St. Joseph G.O.P. Candidates.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP)—The filing deadline is Feb. 20, and St. Joseph Republicans still have not found a member of the party who is willing to run for a city office. The Democratic slate is headed by H. D. Allison, who is seeking re-election as Mayor.

SURVIVOR OF D.P. CAMPS IS REUNITED WITH MOTHER HERE

Mrs. Mirla Schmidt, who brought her family through nine years of imprisonment an detention in Siberia and Germany, was getting "re-acquainted" today with her mother, Mrs. Aron Feit, at 1331 Temple place.

Mrs. Schmidt arrived here yesterday by train from New York with three daughters and a son-in-law, Polish displaced persons, after spending the last four years in a D.P. camp in Germany. Before that, the Schmidts had been in a Russian concentration camp "somewhere in Siberia," where Mrs. Schmidt's husband and another daughter died of starvation.

Yesterday was the first meeting between Mrs. Schmidt and her mother since 1923, when Mrs. Feit left Poland to come to this country. The Schmidts had lived east of Warsaw in Poland, in territory occupied by the Russians in 1939.

When the Nazis began preparing to attack Russia in 1941, the family was among the thousands evacuated from the area to Siberia.

EVACUATION BEGUN IN NEW MADRID FLOODWAY AREA

Notice Sent Residents.

In his notice to the 12,000 persons living in the floodway, Col. Foote said:

"Due to present and expected stages of the river, the possibility now exists that the Birds Point-New Madrid floodway may be opened. The action will not be taken unless absolutely necessary.

"If it is to be opened you will be sent warning notice to that effect. However, you may not receive the notice much in advance. . . . Accordingly you are requested to make all arrangements now for moving out of the floodway so you will be ready to go should it be necessary to open it."

Oliver French in charge of the local Red Cross relief station this afternoon issued instructions to persons in the floodway not to leave their homes without first removing their livestock and other personal property. Arrangements will be made for transportation for those not having it, French said.

Cairo Gauge Rises.

Foote issued his orders as the river gauge at Cairo inched upward toward a 55.5-foot crest expected Thursday. The river already was 14 feet above flood stage and less than five feet below the 1937 high.

As the Red Cross and other agencies set up refugee camps, a National Guard company and several truck loads of other workers, labored to bolster a levee near Wyatt, Mo.

To the southwest, in Arkansas, two privately built levees gave way along the St. Francis river, near Paragould, and others were threatened by high flood tides.

The St. Francis, the Ouachita, the White and the Little Red rivers fanned out over 15 Arkansas counties and at least 350 families were driven from their homes. The Red Cross reported 430 families affected by high waters in Dyer county in west Tennessee.

At Vincennes, Ind., flood fighters retreated from the Wabash river levee to establish a second line of defense. For several blocks parallel with the river, a sandbag barrier was being thrown up at distances 40 to 100 feet back from the 29-foot flood wall.

Water trickling over and seeping through the wall was filling in the space between the wall and the new barrier. A third defense barrier was being erected at one point near the George Rogers Clark memorial.

The river reached 28.08 feet this morning and was still rising. Its crest is not expected before Friday.

The Wabash crested upstream for the second time in two weeks at Terre Haute last night. It leveled off at 26 feet, 12 feet above flood stage.

The Ohio river continued a steady rise in southern Illinois. More rain is expected tomorrow in the Ohio valley. At Rosiclare, Ill., water covered Front street and 40 business houses closed or their stocks were moved to higher ground. About 250 of the 2000 residents were driven from their homes.

Old Shawneetown, Ill., was isolated. Truck, boat and automobile relays took food and mail into the town.

In the Carmi (Ill.) area, the Red Cross used trucks, boats and men to evacuate residents of Maunie, Rising Sun, Concord and New Haven, Ill., all on the Wabash or Little Wabash. About two-thirds of the 1450 residents of the four towns refused to leave their homes. Residents who have been evacuated are living in private homes or box cars at Carmi.

In Kentucky, rapidly rising creeks and rivers which already have driven approximately 1500 persons from their homes threatened more families today. The Red Cross reported that most of the families forced to abandon their homes are centered at Sturgis, in Union county, and Calhoun, in McLean county. Flood conditions were caused by the Green, Tradewater and Cumberland rivers, which continue to rise.

six states, had cut into steel production and was threatening a power shortage in Pittsburgh.

Crucible Steel Co. of America said its plant at nearby Midland, near Pittsburgh, Pa., was cutting operations 25 per cent.

At almost the same time, the Duquesne Light Co. warned all major industries in the greater Pittsburgh area to prepare to close their plants by Friday night if rationing of electric power becomes necessary.

Can Seek 5-Day Week.

Under the Taft-Hartley Act, Denham can ask the courts to compel the miners to work a full five-day week.

The coal operators have asked him to take such action. In a petition to the board, they accused Lewis of bargaining in bad faith, demanding an illegal contract and using the three-day work week to coerce operators into signing a contract they don't want.

The coal operators long have contended that supplies have dwindled so low that an anti-strike injunction under the emergency provisions of the Taft-Hartley law also is warranted, but officials of the Federal Bureau of Mines informed the White House recently that there was enough coal on hand to meet normal demands for a week or two.

STORES STOPPING STRIKERS' CREDIT

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 17 (AP)—The United Mine Workers continued their new strike strategy today but company stores were retaliating by shutting off the miner's credit.

The Union Supply Co., which operates stores in many coal-mining communities, announced it had cut off credit for all striking miners.

Union Supply is a secondary subsidiary of United States Steel Corp. Thus the stores are an integral part of the captive (steel company owned) mine set-up.

Roving pickets increased the number of striking coal miners in six states to more than 79,000 today, with paralysis spreading to new areas. Yesterday 64,500 miners were idle.

Five additional steel company mines employing 1800 men were forced to close in Alabama. Almost all the 7300 miners who refused to work in Alabama are employed by either the United States Steel Corp. or Republic Steel Corp.

About 50,600 Pennsylvania soft coal diggers are staying at home out of the state's total of 100,000. Motorized bands of pickets extended the no contract-no work strike into central Pennsylvania, where two Cambria county pits and three in Indiana county were forced to close. The Cambria mines are owned by Bethlehem Steel Co.

A mass meeting of miners was called at Brownsville, Pa., Thursday. Committeeman Althone Brown of Maxwell local of the union refused to say why the meeting was called.

Brown said action of the Union Supply Co. in cutting off miners' credit at mining town stores is bringing new hardship to diggers' families.

"We had to send children off to school hungry around here today," Brown declared grimly.

A spokesman for United States Steel said the corporation was just following good business practice when it stopped the miners' credit. He explained:

"Since July, bills have gone beyond what would be good business practice. We've helped the miners over the hump many times, not only during strikes. But we've reached a point where we can't go any further with it."

This is the third week of the "now you see it, now you don't" coal strikes. First, 16,000 UMW members in Illinois quit work. The next week they went back to work as about 70,000 miners walked off the job in other states.

Six days ago Lewis "suggested" to his miners that they return to work. Instead, more miners quit work.

Liberal credit is one of the prime attractions of a company store. The credit shut-off hits miners hard. H. C. Frick Co., primary owner of Union Supply, also employs about 11,000 diggers in its own mines. But Union Supply also has stores at operations of Jones & Laughlin and Republic Steel Corp., as well as in other western Pennsylvania captive-mine towns.

"The county public assistance offices in Uniontown and Waynesburg won't take our applications for over three weeks or more, and our families are in need right now with no money and no credit," wired Ozanich. "Please authorize more help in the offices."

Riley Litman, executive director of the Department of Public Assistance in western Pennsylvania, said applications passed 500 a day on two days in the last week.

"We are equipped to handle only 130 to 140 applications a day," Litman declared. "We simply had to tell some of them to come back later. In fact, we're booked up until February already. As soon as we get more help, we'll move these people to earlier dates."

He said the amount of aid usually ran a little less than $1 a day, exclusive of rent.

Pittsburgh was approaching a four-way crisis:

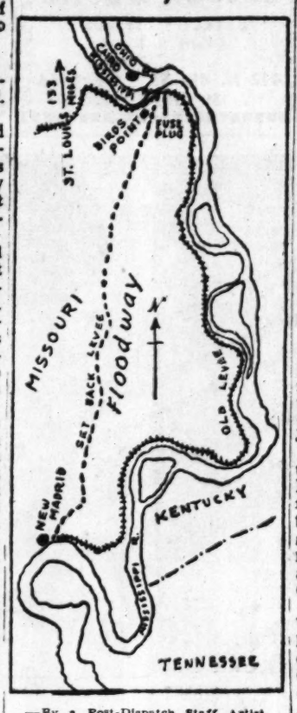

(1) The Duquesne Light Co. announced it will ration electric power unless miners go back to work in a few days.

(2). The Allegheny County Steam Heating Co. said it faces loss of its coal supplies at the end of this week. This would mean severe curtailment of heat to most downtown Pittsburgh office buildings.

(3) Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Co. said it would have to shut down its "Disco" plant near Imperial tomorrow or Thursday. Disco is a prepared coal fuel which may be burned by householders barred from using soft coal under Pittsburgh's smoke control laws.

(4) The Pittsburgh Retail Coal Merchants Association warned that continued cold weather will use up available domestic coal stocks within 48 hours.

major legislation to be taken up at this session, started two weeks ago. The measure would repeal taxes of 10 cents a pound on yellow oleomargarine and of one-quarter cent a pound on the uncolored variety, as well as occupational taxes on manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers.

Truman in Rules Fight.

President Truman disclosed today Administration plans to get a vote on civil rights legislation "if it takes all summer."

At the same time he stepped personally into the fight against a proposed change in House rules designed to block consideration of the civil rights program.

The proposed change would restore to the Rules Committee its old power to bottle up legislation, repealing the present rule under which a committee chairman can call a measure up in 21 days over Rules Committee opposition.

Truman told a delegation from the National Emergency Civil Rights Mobilization: "Every effort is being made by the executive branch of the Government to get action on these civil rights measures. I have been working at them ever since I went to Congress.

"We have made some progress. We haven't made enough. We hope to make more. The passage of the resolution by the Rules Committee of the House the other day is a blow that is serious and backward-loking. I am doing everything possible to have that motion beaten when it comes up for consideration on the floor of the House. Every effort is being made to get a vote on these measures in the Senate. The leader of the majority and the Vice President have assured me that they will eventually get a vote, if it takes all summer.

Sifting of Friends.

"I hope that when that vote is taken we will be in a better position to understand who our friends are and who are not.

"This is a serious situation. This civil rights program, which I have sent to the Congress on every occasion that it has been possible to send it, is one that is necessary, if we are going to maintain our leadership in the world. We can't go on not doing the things that we are asking other people to do in the United Nations."

The Rules Committee majority coalition voted today to take the rules change issue out of the hands of Chairman Sabath (Dem.), Illinois, and put Representative Cox (Dem.), Georgia, one of the colition's leaders, in charge.

Sabath immediately challenged the action on the floor and fought to retain his hold. He told the House the committee decision was a violation of House rules.

He moved to keep in his own hands the decision when the issue shall come up by making his own report to the House on committee approval of the rules change. Such a report is a preliminary to bringing about a vote within seven legislative days.

In an effort to retain a hold on the proposed change, Cox asked for permission to report it formally to the House, but Speaker Rayburn ruled that the same action could not be reported twice.

A slash of three billion dollars in President Truman's $42,439,000,000 budget was proposed yesterday by Senator George (Dem.), Georgia, as the White House announced it expected to send President Truman's special tax message to Congress late this week.

George also indicated he would oppose any substantial tax increase.

Two veterans' organizations urged Congress today to grant a bonus to World War II veterans. Commanders of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the AMVETS made their pleas at a House Veterans Affairs Committee hearing on a veterans legislative program for 1950.

Commanders of the American Legion and the Disabled American Veterans also appeared, but [illegible] no recommendations on the bonus issue.

SENATE GROUP LEAVES CASE OF LUSTRON CORP. TO RFC

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (AP)—A Senate Committee has checked the case of the Lustron Corp. back to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Faced by an RFC threat of foreclosure on a $37,500,000 debt to the Government, the prefabricated housing firm from Columbus, O., yesterday took its problem before a Senate Banking Subcommittee.

After nearly three hours of closed-door discussion, the committee adjourned without taking action. Chairman Fulbright (Dem.), Arkansas, said: "It's the RFC's responsibility."

Carl G. Strandlund, Lustron president has asked RFC to say in detail why the directors last week rejected a reorganization plan which Strandlund contends would make his company solvent. RFC spokesmen said they made it clear to the Senators and Strandlund's group yesterday why they said "no."

QUIRINO RAPIDLY RECOVERING FROM OPERATION ON KIDNEY

BALTIMORE, Jan. 17 (AP)—President Elpidio Quirino of the Philippines was recovering rapidly today from a kidney stone operation.

Physicians at Johns Hopkins Hospital, where he underwent the hour-long surgery yesterday, reported that his condition was excellent. He spent a restful night.

CHEMICAL SET CAUSES FIRE

An experiment with a toy chemical set by Robert Fordyce, 6-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Powell Fordyce, caused a small fire in the basement of the Fordyce home at 27 Lenox place yesterday.

Robert, who was playing with an older brother's set, lighted a chemical with a match. The chemical flared and ignited a wooden partition nearby. Firemen quickly extinguished the flames.

GERMANS ASSAIL SAAR BID TO LEASE MINES TO FRENCH

Adenauer Says Area Belongs to Bonn State, Future Should Be Left to Peace Pact.

By RICHARD K. O'MALLEY

BERLIN, Jan. 17 (AP)—Potential German unrest over the Saar loomed larger today as both France and western Germany claimed special rights over the coal-rich border area.

The question of future control of the Saar, raised during French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman's so-called goodwill visit to Germany, has brought into the open old bitternesses between France and Germany. It also had repercussions in London where sources close to the British Government said any proposal to lease Saar coal mines to the French might "prejudice" the German peace treaty when it is finally written.

France, occupying the 738-square-mile area and holding special trade and economic privileges there, is reported to be seeking to lease the Saar's valuable coal mines for 50 years.

Statement by Adenauer.

West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer told a news conference yesterday he disagreed with Schuman on "many points" including French coal rights in the Saar. The Saar and its coal mines belongs to western Germany, he declared.

Both Adenauer and Schuman agreed that the Saar's future would not be determined until the peace treaty is concluded, but in the meantime the French seemed set on developing their present economic union with the semi-autonomous Saar Government which rules 800,000 Saarlanders.

One of the points on which Adenauer and Schuman agreed, apparently, was that Germany should be given assurances of security from Russia by the Western powers.

After the first world war the Saar coal mines were given to France as compensation for destruction of its northern mines. But Germany bought back the mines after the Saarlanders voted overwhelmingly in 1935 to discard their government under a League of Nations commission and return to Germany.

Adenhauer declared the mines belong to the west German republic because ts constitution, approved by the Western powers, declares all property of the former German Reich belongs to the Bonn government. He opposed more independence for the Saar than it enjoys atp resent if that meant "the Saar should be severed from Germany."

"This savors of trying to create accomplished facts before a peace treaty is made," he added.

Adenauer said Johannes Hoffman, minister-president of the Saar, apparently feels that the Saar problem should be settled now since there is no imminent prospect of a peace treaty.

He then warned that "the people of the Saar must now be wary of what their government wants. It is evidently Hoffman's intention to have the Saar mines turned over to the Saar first. Then they would be leased to France for 50 years."

He said he did not welcome the raising of the Saar question now because the time is not "ripe" and blamed the Saar government for taking the initiative. He asserted, "A soution of the Saar problem within the framework of the European union would have been better."

Schuman said an interim solution of the mine question was desirable now because France had exploited the mines since 1945 without any formal agreement and the "Saar people need a treaty to limit the rights of France."

5 DEMOCRATS, 3 REPUBLICANS FILE FOR MADISON SHERIFF

Five Democrats and three Republicans filed yesterday for the nomination for sheriff of Madison county, subject to the April primary. Democrats are: County Auditor James T. Callahan, Alton; Arthur W. Moore, Madison; Kenneth T. Ogle, Granite City; Charles Bernaix, Granite City, and John A. Mangiaracine, Venice. Republicans: Mayor William C. Straube, Edwardsville; Supervisor Earl E. Herrin, Edwardsville, and Walter J. Emde, Granite City.

Other candidates for Democratic nomination in Madison county were: Miss Eulalia Hotz, incumbent, county clerk; Michael Kinney, incumbent, county judge; Joseph J. Barr, probate judge; Guy Harper, county treasurer; George T. Wilkins, county superintendent of schools, and Roy Geltz, probate clerk. Republican candidates: Mrs. Muriel E. Ambrosius, incumbent, county treasurer; Francis J. Manning, county judge; Joseph Healey, incumbent, probate clerk.

In St. Clair county, County Treasurer Charles J. Schmulbach of New Athens became the fourth candidate for the Republican nomination for sheriff. Daniel F. Ring, East St. Louis Democrat, filed for probate clerk.

GRANITE CITY YOUTH TO HELP ON SCOUT REPORT TO TRUMAN

Robert J. DeRuntz, 17-year-old explorer Ranger Scout of Granite City, has been chosen to represent Region 7 of the Boy Scouts of America when the Scouts' "Report to the Nation" is presented to President Truman in Washington, D.C., Feb. 8.

DeRuntz is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph DeRuntz, 2145 Grand avenue, Granite City. He is a member of Explorer Post 7, sponsored by St. Joseph's Catholic Church.

Scouts of the 12 regions in the country will make the presentation to the President. Region 7 is comprised of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin.

'SEVERE REBUKE' TO VAUGHAN IN SENATE REPORT

Statement on 5 Percenter Inquiry Is Expected to Be Made Public Later in Week.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP)—The Senate committee which investigated "five percenters" reportedly is about ready to issue a "rather severe rebuke" to Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, President Truman's Army aide.

The committee's report on last summer's inquiry is expected to be made public later this week.

One official who has seen the document told a reporter the section dealing with Vaughan amounts "to a rather severe rebuke, so far as I am concerned."

Another said the report contained "a pretty vigorous criticism" of Vaughan.

Fees Often 5 Per Cent.

The Senate inquiry dealt with the activities of men who collected a fee for helping others get government contracts. The fee often was 5 per cent of the proceeds.

There is nothing illegal about collecting such fees. The committee was trying to find out whether improper influence had figured in the handling of government business.

During the public hearings, Vaughan's name came up frequently. The committee was told he intervened several times at government agencies in behalf of friends.

One of the friends was John Maragon, former Kansas City bootblack and later Washington man-about-town, who on Jan. 3 was indicted by a grand jury on a charge of lying to the Senate investigators. He pleaded not guilty on arraignment.

Vaughan's Testimony.

Vaughan, when he testified last August, asserted there was nothing improper about any of his actions. He said any help he gave to anyone was part of his job and in the interest of expediting things.

He said, too, there was nothing wrong about his accepting seven deep freezers from a Chicago perfume house for which Maragon worked. He said the units—one of which he turned over to Mrs. Truman—came from old friends.

A week ago, the three Republican members of the Senate committee protested to Chairman Hoey (Dem.), North Carolina, that the proposed report on the inquiry dealt too lightly with Vaughan.

Flashes of Life

By the Associated Press.

A Loss and a Gain.

BALTIMORE, Md. — Ralph Fleming was pacing up and down the waiting room outside City Hospital's maternity ward last night. He decided he needed a breath of fresh air. So he walked out the front door where two men relieved him of $45 at pistol point.

When he ran back inside, he found he had gained a son.

It Does Seem Cruel.

LOS ANGELES—Her husband once abandoned her in their automobile on a railroad track, with a freight train coming. That, Mrs. Hezekiah K. Watkins charged, constituted cruelty. So she asked for a divorce.

She added that the engineer stopped the train before it hit the car.

BACKERS OF FEPC VISIT CONGRESSMEN FROM MISSOURI

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (AP)—A delegation of civil rights advocates from Missouri called on some of the state's Congressmen yesterday urging support of fair employment practices legislation.

The delegation urged also continuance of present House rules on clearing legislation for action. A majority of the Rules Committee is again seeking power, held prior to last year, to bottle up bills.

Representative Bolling (Dem.), Missouri, said he told the group of about 15 persons that he favors the FEPC bill.

Representative Sullivan (Dem.), St. Louis, said he has supported the proposals in the past.

Representative Karst (Dem.), St. Louis county, said he informed them he would study the legislation. As far as present House rules are concerned, he said, he believes they are operating "pretty successfully."

The group called also on Senators Kem and Donnell, Republicans. Kem told a reporter he had no comment on the visit, while Donnell could not be reached for a statement.

NAVY EX-OFFICER WOUNDED, RETURN FIRE KILLS ROBBER

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 17 (AP)—"Wait a minute. I think I hear a holdup going on."

Thus a former naval lieutenant interrupted a telephone conversation with his wife last night. The ex-officer, Arthur Drake, 25 years old, reached for a pistol he kept in the kitchen of his father's drive-in.

He strolled to the front part of the cafe. A man held a pistol pointed at his brother, Harland Drake.

Arthur Drake said: "I've got a gun, too. Now who shoots first."

The holdup man whirled. Both weapons blazed. Both men fell. The intruder was dead.

Debendier's stunned wife, Marie, told officers he was a successful writer.

"Maybe," she said, "he wanted to get the experience of a holdup man for some of his writing."

NEGRO EQUALITY IN SPECIALTIES ORDERED BY ARMY

General Are Told to Orient Personnel on Accepting 'Same Opportunity' Policy.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP)—The Army ordered its top commanders today to give Negroes the same chance that white soldiers now have to fill vacancies requiring special skills.

Secretary of the Army Gray issued the orders. Officials said it was a further step toward carrying out President Truman's July 26, 1948, demand for equal treatment and opportunity in the armed services.

Gray specifically told Generals at home and abroad to:

1. Assign qualified Negroes to vacancies in any of 40 specialties listed today.

2. Orient all personnel with the "necessity for unreserved acceptance" of the "equal opportunity" policy the Army outlined last Sept. 30.

Gray also gave major commanders wide discretion in placing Negroes in other, unlisted specialties as vacancies occur.

Gray's directive neither breaks up any existing all-white or all-Negro units nor modifies the current policy that limits Negro enlistments to about 10 per cent of the total Army strength.

"It does point to the day when there will be no exclusively white or Negro units," Lt. Gen. E. H. Brooks, Army personnel and administration chief, told reporters.

He said the Army had been working on the program since last February.

"This is no eyewash," Brooks said, "and any commander who does not carry out the spirit of the instructions is in for a bad time."

Brooks said the instructions mean that more Negroes will be assigned to hitherto all-white units, including some combat type units.

Combat-type vacancies for which qualified Negroes were declared eligible today include anti-aircraft fire control electricians and repairmen, radar gun-laying repairmen and artillery and tank mechanics.

MILLIONS FACE STARVATION IN RED CHINA THIS YEAR

Floods, Crop Pests and Plagues Blamed for Food Shortage — Shipments to Russia Also a Factor.

By SEYMOUR TOPPING

Upwards of 40,000,000 persons, by Communist Government estimate, are in famine areas. Some 8,000,000 right now are desperately hungry. In East China alone, 16,000,000 may starve to death.

Floods, crop pests and plagues are blamed for the great food shortage.

The Communist state administrative council in Peiping is mobilizing relief agencies. Its directive is available here in British Hong Kong. The directive says a fifth of the cultivated land in East China alone was flooded. That wiped out crops on 8,000,000 acres.

Barter Pact a Factor.

The Manchurian barter agreement with Russia is draining off much food from North China. Under the agreement, food is to be exchanged for Russian manufactured goods. Manchuria was unable to meet its quota. So farming areas below the Great Wall are making up the Manchurian deficit.

An already suffering peasantry is being bled white. Peasant living standards are near or below mere subsistence levels.

The Communist budget for 1950 calls for the Government to receive 41.4 per cent of its revenue from food levies. The tax scale asks peasants to surrender an average of 20 per cent of their harvest. Even with this stiff rate, a budget deficit of 18.7 per cent is anticipated by the Reds.

All of this explains the Communists' troubles with the peasants.

The Chinese Communist Government will support 9,000,000 civil servants and soldiers this year. The Reds say it takes 30 Chinese farmers to support one soldier and his family.

The Chinese food crisis in 1950 will be increased by the Red embargo on all food imports into China. The embargo recently was announced in Peiping by Vice-Minister of Food Jung Tse-ho. The embargo is to conserve the Reds' meager foreign exchange for more important industrialization objectives.

Basic Improvements Needed.

Agricultural experts say China's food deficit will not be eliminated for years to come. Basic improvements in South China farming techniques are needed urgently.

Coastal Kwangtung province alone is unable to feed its 38,000,000 inhabitants. The American Economic Co-operation Administration supplied the difference to the vast area. Kwangtung produces only 60 to 70 per cent of its food requirements.

Railroads are running again now that the war is about over.

Farmers whose fields have been turned into battlegrounds may now put the plow to them once again.

25 BARRELS OF RED PEPPERS SEIZED AS CONTAMINATED

Twenty-five barrels of red peppers in brine, said to contain flies, fly eggs, maggots and other insects, were seized here yesterday on a libel of information filed in United States District Court by District Attorney Drake Watson. Each barrel contains 55 gallons.

The peppers were shipped Dec. 9 by Basic Food Materials, Inc., from Hurlock, Md., to the American Packing Co., 3858 Garfield avenue, the libel stated. Federal inspectors discovered the adulteration in the shipment.

3 LOCK EXPERTS GET LOCKED IN ONE AFTER OTHER

ATLANTA, Jan. 17 (UP)—The Acme Lock & Key Co. practically set up headquarters yesterday in a Masonic lodge —where three of its door unlocking experts were locked in.

The company received a call from an unidentified man who said that he was locked in the hall and to please get him out.

Milton Brown, an apprentice, was sent at once. Thirty minutes later he sent word to his boss via a policeman he yelled to from a window.

"The lock is fixed" he said, "but I'm locked in."

Lock expert L. W. Whitley went over to set the youngster free.

Brown was released and returned to the shop. Whitley decided to try the door before he left, just to make certain it was working—and locked himself in.

Whitley sent word to the big boss, Master Locksmith Loy R. Lee and Lee came on the run.

"Why this is simple," Lee told Whitley when he got inside the door. I can open this door with a screwdriver."

To prove it, he slammed shut the door—and locked himself in. The screwdriver was outside with the door knob and the rest of the tools.

COURT NATURAL GAS RULING MAY BOOST FUEL PRICE

Oklahoma Decision Gives State Agency Right to Set Higher Rate at Wellhead.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 17 (UP) — Oklahoma's Supreme Court today upheld the right of the State Corporation Commission to set the price of natural gas at the wellhead. Industry spokesmen said higher fuel prices over the nation might result.

The ruling means that the current fixed rate of 7 cents per 1000 cubic feet, set by the commission, will remain in effect instead of the old average of 4 cents.

Gas producers and royalty owners stand to gain millions of dollars over a period of years as a result of the decision.

The ruling came on a case instituted after gas producers sought to force buyers in the Guymon-Hugoton field in the Oklahoma panhandle to pay the price set by the commission.

Wells in the field, which extends from southwestern Kansas into the Texas panhandle, are attached to pipelines leading to populous areas in the Midwest and East.

The 7-cent figure was fixed two years ago, and buyers for Cities Service Gas Co. and Phillips Petroleum Co. challenged the commission's authority as a price-fixing agency on the ground that the buyers are engaged in interstate commerce.

Today's decision stated that the commission's power to regulate the taking of natural gas from a common source as a means of preventing waste gives it the right also to fix rates.

The rate-fixing is justified, the court ruled, when the commission believes that it is necessary to prevent waste and protect the public interest.

Commission Chairman Reford Bond said today's decision is the first in the United States giving a state agency the power to fix natural gas rates. A similar case is pending in Kansas.

SENATOR FOR 4 PCT. RATE ON INSURED HOUSING LOANS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (AP)— Senator Sparkman of Alabama proposed today that the top interest rate on all Government-insured housing mortgages be cut to 4 per cent.

Most of the housing loan repayments now guaranteed by the Federal Housing Administration are at the basic rate of 4½ per cent.

Sparkman, usually an Administration spokesman on housing issues, made the suggestion at a hearing on President Truman's proposed program of Government-backed loans to help "middle income" families build homes by means of co-operatives.

So-called G.I. or veterans' housing loans and large rental projects under temporary FHA programs carry the lower 4 per cent rate.

"I think these two should be brought together at the same level," Sparkman said. He added that Raymond Foley, top Administration housing official, had agreed to consider this.

Housing officials said such an interest cutback would mean that on a $10,000 mortgage payments would be trimmed $50 a year, or about $4 a month. Over a period of 20 years this could mean $2000 more home with the same monthly payment rates.

E. ST. LOUIS PARENTS OPPOSE END TO RACE LINE IN SCHOOLS

East St. Louis parents expressed opposition to the abolishment of race segregation in schools at a meeting last night sponsored by the Alta Sita Improvement Association of East St. Louis. About 150 persons attended.

Charles W. Hook, Blase E. Goelz and Warren S. Plant, members of the East St. Louis Board of Education, attended the meeting to explain why segregation was being ended and to answer questions. Plant told the group that unless Negroes were permitted in the city schools next semester starting Jan. 30, East St. Louis would lose $700,000 in state funds. He said it was financially impractical to continue segregation.

In the discussion, the parents blamed the city administration, the real estate dealers and the school board for allowing Negroes to enter city schools.

ADVERTISEMENTS SOLICITED FOR POLICE CIRCUS PROGRAM

Advertisement solicitations for the program of the annual police circus are being made by officers of the Police Department, it was announced yesterday. The circus will be held April 28 through May 14 at Kiel Auditorium.

The show will be produced by the Frank Wirth Booking Agency of New York and will be under the direction of Capt. William Cibulka, head of the Police Relief Association. Matinees will be held at 2 p.m. on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays. Evening performances will be at 8:15 o'clock.

HEAD OF WELLSTON POLICE

Ross E. Henson was promoted yesterday to captain of police by Mayor Owen Thompson of Wellston, who said Henson will be the working head of the police department. The title of chief is held by Darrell Stagg, the $1-a-year marshal.

Henson's salary will be $275 a month. He joined the force a month ago as a patrolman at $200. There are five full-time and three part-time patrolmen in the department.

KIRBY McRILL

LONG-DISTANCE WALKER KILLED BY CAR IN KANSAS CITY

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 17 (AP)— Stooped Kirby McRill, Kansas City's best known pedestrian, was killed today by an automobile. He was 75 years old.

McRill, who had a long flowing beard and bushy hair, was a well known figure on Kansas City streets for many years. He first gained prominence back in the 1920s for his walking feats.

One of his longest trips was a walk to Chicago from Leavenworth county, Kansas. On that trip, he gave reporters the names of Leavenworth county bachelors—resulting in a flood of proposals from Chicago girls.

He came to Kansas City in the early 1920s. He and his pushcart soon became a familiar figure on Kansas City streets. He had no regular job.

Among his titles was one he bestowed upon himself—"the unkissed pedestrian."

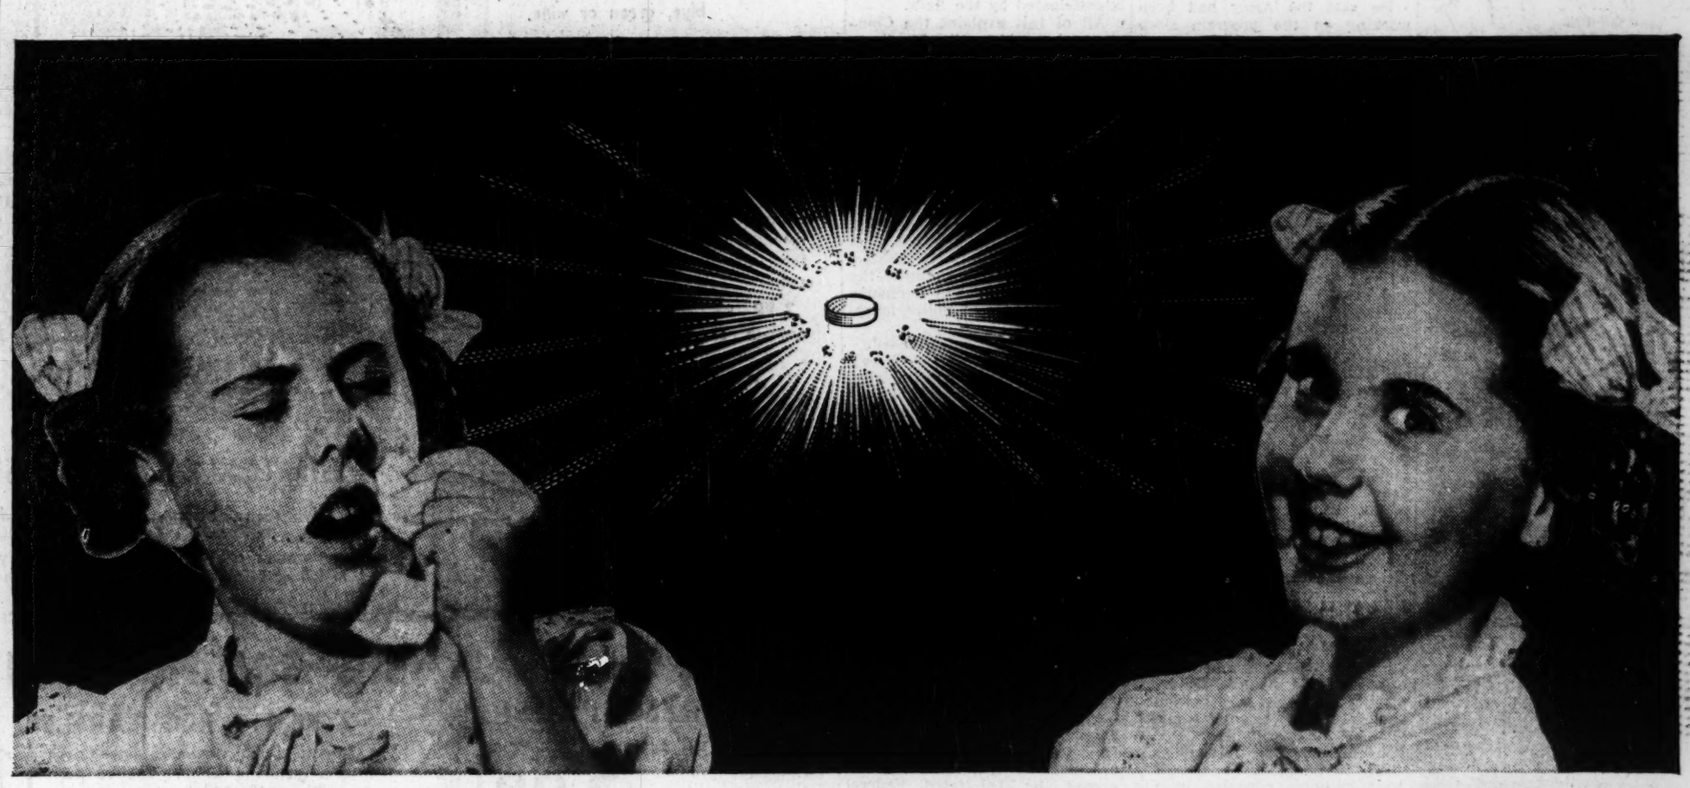

In the past he made numerous walking trips to Kansas and Missouri cities and towns. But in recent years, he had confined his activities to this area.

NEW anti-histamine—SAFE even for children*
KILLS COLDS FAST
—relief often felt in 20 minutes

Now—without prescription get the one and only
GROVE'S Antamine
TRADE MARK
the safe, effective formula...
1. recommended by thousands of doctors
2. preferred in Navy Tests†
3. made by GROVE—a name you know and trust

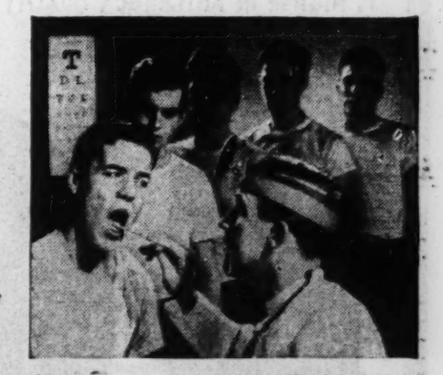

Now, without prescription you can get this safe, perfected anti-histamine—the effective formula selected by the famous Grove Laboratories, specialists in cold relief for sixty years. It is the actual anti-histamine formula which has been prescribed by thousands of doctors to stop colds . . . the same "wonder drug" the U. S. Naval Medical Bulletin reported in the tests where nine out of ten colds were killed at the start!

So Effective—So Fast—Yet So Safe

When taken at the start of a cold, Grove's Antamine usually brings relief in as little as twenty minutes . . . stopping runny noses, sneezes, sniffles, aches and pains and other miseries. Most people feel better in an hour—with every sign of the cold gone after the first day!

Safe for Children—Remember, clinical tests have proved that even 5 year old children, taking Grove's Antamine as directed, can safely use this amazing medication. At the first sneeze or sniffle—protect yourself—keep the cold from spreading in your family. Clinical tests indicate that only the Antamine formula is so safe yet so effective. In 90% of the cases, when treatment was begun promptly (within an hour of the first sneeze or sniffle) every sign of a cold was stopped completely.

Anti-Histamines not all alike. For extra safety get Grove's Antamine. Even if you have been disappointed with other anti-histamines, you should try Antamine—made and guaranteed by famous Grove Laboratories. On sale at all drug stores.

†As reported in U. S. Naval Medical Bulletin—Navy doctors found important differences between the many well-known anti-histamines they tested. The Antamine formula proved best in a very important way. Of all the anti-histamines used in the test, the one in Grove's Antamine formula "became the favorite medication of ambulatory patients who had had experience with any of the other anti-histamine drugs."

INTERIOR AGENCY ACCUSED OF MOVE TO TAKE OVER REA

Congressman Tackett Says SPA Is Using Co-op's Own Money in Effort to Seize It.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (UP)—Representative Boyd Tackett (Dem.), Arkansas, said today the Interior Department is trying to take over the Rural Electrification Administration with REA's own money.

He asked REA and the department's Southwestern Power Administration to hold up a proposed $9,565,000 deal until Congress can consider it.

In the deal, Tackett said, the SPA is "using the good name of the REA as a front to do things behind Congress's back." He said he wants REA to use its loan authority "to bring power to farmers who don't have any."

Tackett described the proposed contract as a "pattern" also being developed with eight other big co-operatives in Missouri, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Mississippi. If it works, he said, he fears it will spread nationwide.

Details of Contract.

Tackett said a contract was drawn up on Dec. 5 by which REA funds would be used by a "super co-operative" in northwest Arkansas to build a $4,825,000 steam generating plant and $4,740,000 in transmission lines.

SPA, he said, will lease these facilities, with actual ownership of the lines passing over to SPA after 40 years. In getting access to the steam plant, Tackett said, SPA "has, in effect, gone deliberately contrary" to a refusal by Congress to give it such funds.

Tackett said the arrangement was a scheme to "gobble up" electric co-operatives and eventually to "federalize electric power."

Other Similar Patterns.

Similar "patterns" are being followed, he said, in the case of the Western Electric Co-operative, Anadarko, Okla.; Central Missouri Co-operative; Northwest Missouri Co-operative; the M. & A. in Missouri; two super co-operatives in southern and northeastern Louisiana, and a co-operative in southern Mississippi and northeastern Louisiana.

Tackett introduced a bill which would require prior notification of Congress of all real loans for building facilities to be leased or otherwise turned over to persons other than those in rural areas. The bill also would hold up funds for any such loans approved by the REA after Jan. 14.

HOAGY CARMICHAEL SYMPHONY A FLOP IN NEW YORK CITY

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (UP)—Critics advised composer Hoagy Carmichael today to stick to popular music after hearing his first symphonic work ever conducted here.

Carmichael's symphonic poem, "Brown County Autumn," was played last night to an audience of 2500 at Carnegie Hall by the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra, Fabien Sevitsky conducting. Critics said the orchestra was "a good and well-trained one" but noted that the program was dull.

Olin Downes of the New York Times said Carmichael's composition did not belong to "the symphonic gallery" and added nothing to "a singularly unrewarding concert." He said it was a sentimental melody of the most obvious sort which repeated itself at great length and "wandered languidly nowhither."

"The composer has neither the technique nor the mind of musical thought which makes it possible for him to express himself adequately in this medium," Downes said.

Francis D. Perkins of the New York Herald Tribune said it was a good idea for a visiting orchestra to play a work of a composer from its own section of the country but that Carmichael's composition lacked originality.

NEGROES TO SEEK TO ENROLL IN ALL SCHOOLS IN ALTON

Negro students in Alton will seek admission to all schools in that city when the new semester begins Monday, it was decided last night at a mass meeting to plan action for ending racial segregation in the Alton school system. The meeting was at St. Paul's Church. About 300 Negroes attended.

Attorney Billy Jones of East St. Louis, counselor for the National Association of Colored People, said if Negro students are refused admission, state aid to the schools would be blocked by court action. A new state regulation denies state funds to school districts practicing segregation. The same action was followed successfully in East St. Louis.

There are 1100 Negro and 5900 white students in the Alton district. All attend the same high schools but elementary and junior high schools are segregated.

2 ST. LOUIS LAWYERS NAMED TO AMERICAN BAR COMMITTEE

Jacob M. Lashly and Harry Gershenson, St. Louis lawyers, have been appointed to the advisory committee of the section of International and Comparative Law of American Bar Association, it was announced today by C. W. Tillett of Charlotte, N. C., chairman of the section.

Lashly is a former president of the American Bar Association and of the St. Louis Bar Association, and Gershenson is a former president of the St. Louis Bar Association.

Diggers Within 12 Feet of Trapped Miner; Not Much Hope He Is Alive

Rescue Workers Burrow Inch by Inch — Possibility Coal Car May Have Stopped Rush of Debris Into Passage.

MAHANOY CITY, Pa., Jan. 17 (AP)—Rescue workers dug inch by inch to within 12 feet of an entombed coal miner today although holding out scant hope he was still alive.

Edward Burda, 25 years old, was trapped by a rock slide last Friday 120 feet below the surface in a sloping anthracite shaft. A brother, Joseph, 30, was rescued early Sunday from a spot about 55 feet down in the shaft.

Veteran miners said there remains a chance Eddie is in an open space behind his coal car. It was possible, they said, the car may have stopped enough of the debris to save him from being crushed to death.

The rescue work was speeded slightly last night when the diggers encountered a hard coal vein running parallel to the rock-filled shaft.

Using an air compressor, they began opening a shaft scarcely large enough for one man at the rate of about one foot an hour. If they fail to find the open space they seek behind the coal car, they may have to go back up the main shaft about 50 feet and start removing debris rock by rock.

Three of five Burda brothers were working in the small independent mine when the rock slide occurred. Casmir Burda, 32, was close to the entrance and managed to run for help.

WOMAN FOUND DEAD IN HOME, AUTOPSY DISCLOSES POISON

Miss Anna Prineas, 24 years old, was found dead last night at the home she shared with her father, Gregory P. Prineas, at 1378 North Park drive, East St. Louis. Dr. C. C. Kane, St. Clair county coroner, said an autopsy showed poison in her stomach.

The body was found across a bed by her brother, Peter G. Prineas, a student at the University of Illinois at Champaign. He arrived at the home in response to a telephone call she had made to him a few hours earlier saying it was urgent he return. A note found at the house, signed "Annie," said, "Pete, Pop is supposed to meet me at 11 o'clock at the bus station. You be there and be good to him."

The elder Prineas is the former owner of the Crystal Candy Kitchen, a small restaurant and candy store at 141 Collinsville avenue, East St. Louis.

HEARING ON EXTENSION OF U.S. MILK CONTROLS

Proposal Would Widen Program to Include St. Louis County Market.

A hearing on a proposal to extend federal control of milk marmeting to the suburban St. Louis area will be conducted Feb. 23 at the Broadview Hotel in East St. Louis.

Under the proposal, the Department of Agriculture would set minimum prices which handlers and distributors would be required to pay dairymen supplying the market. St. Louis dairies already are under the milk marketing program.

The Sanitary Milk Producers, which represents more than two-thirds of the dairymen in this area, asked that federal control be extended to include the part of St. Louis county not now covered by the marketing agreement. In addition, the producers asked for federal control in Jefferson and St. Charles counties of Missouri and in St. Clair, Bond, Madison, Monroe and Clinton counties in Illinois.

Russell E. Spaulding, general manager of Sanitary Milk Producers, explained his group wanted the base price paid to producers by distributors in the suburban area tied to the price paid by St. Louis dairies. "It would insure orderly marketing and stabilize prices," Spaulding said.

"It would not increase the price for some handlers of milk, but it would increase the price for others. During the war, when demand for milk exceeded the supply, there was no need for federal control of milk marketing in the suburban area. But with the end of the war and the cutoff of Government buying, we have a surplus of milk and it becomes very important to have regulation. This program would put all the milk handlers, in the city and in the suburban areas, on an equal footing."

CYCLOTRON MAKES A NEW ELEMENT AT CALIFORNIA U.

BERKELEY, Calif., Jan. 17 (UP)—The University of California announced today its atom-smashing cyclotron has produced a new element, the heaviest known in the atomic scale.

The substance, No. 97 in the scale, is the fifth produced by the cyclotron in the university's radiation laboratory. Scientists said "theoretical considerations" ruled out the new element's use in production of atomic weapons.

Credit for the discovery went to Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, professor of chemistry; Dr. Stanley G. Thompson and Albert Ghiorso, research associates. Seaborg has been co-discoverer of four of the five new elements produced in the cyclotron.

The newest element tentatively has been named berkelium. The announcement did not say what the new element is like and what might be done with it.

Political Entity of Commonwealth Preserved at Ceylon Conference Despite Units' New Independence

Members to Maintain Special Interests but Will Assume No Commitments Which Will Take Precedence Over Their Obligations in British Association.

By WALLACE R. DEUEL
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.

THE British Commonwealth has passed another testing time in its development as the world's most successful experiment in international association and is still going strong.

Meeting at Colombo, Ceylon, the foreign ministers of the eight member nations of the Commonwealth—Britain, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India, Pakistan and Ceylon — have agreed on world policies which they will now recommend to their Governments. The conference adjourned over the weekend and delegates are now on their way home.

First, and by all odds most important of all, the foreign ministers have agreed that the commonwealth will continue to function as a political entity all over the world.

What Decisions Mean.

In the future, as in the past, the individual members will have their special interests, commitments and policies. Britain, for example, will continue to play a major part in Europe, and both Britain and Canada will continue their participation in the North Atlantic Treaty. Seven of the eight members will maintain their United Nations memberships and the eighth, Ceylon, will go on trying to become a member, a consummation thus far frustrated by Russia.

But the members' first allegiance will be, not to any of these other commitments, but to the commonwealth as such, and they will assume no obligations which take precedence over their obligations to each other. Britain, for example, will not commit itself so deeply on the continent of Europe that it cannot live up to its responsibilities in the commonwealth. British Foreign Minister Ernest Bevin affirmed this at Colombo, and the other delegates approved his position.

Only the categorical imperatives of an individual members' survival could loom larger than this common allegiance to each other. If only Britain's "fraternal associations" with the United States could save the United Kingdom in a war, and London had to choose between America and Ceylon, would the British choose Ceylon? It seems doubtful.

But the question is, quite possibly, unreal, for Britain and Ceylon — and conceivably, the United States—will take pains to see that matters never reach such a pass that such a choice has to be made.

Much Taken for Granted.

The Colombo conference passed no formal resolutions setting these things forth explicitly. It probably would have considered such a declaration bad form. The delegations took the continuation of the commonwealth for granted. But the British and those who share their political traditions often do take the most important things for granted, and that is what happened at Colombo. An international association which sometimes seems to defy all the rules of reason has done so once again, and shows every sign of thriving on the process.

The continued co-operation of the commonwealth is implied in every decision taken at Colombo.

Two of these were basic:

First, the ministers agreed on a common plan of action for dealing with the Communist danger in Asia.

Second, they agreed it would be desirable for the members of the commonwealth to co-operate in coping with problems of world trade and international payments, and especially with the difficulties arising from their dollar shortages.

Backing for Bao Dai.

The conference favored both political and economic policies for stemming the Communist advance on south and southeast Asia.

Politically, it was agreed "in principle" that commonwealth governments would consider recognizing the French-sponsored government of Emperor Bao Dai in Indochina if and when Paris grants it enough more authority to make it more truly independent and representative of the people of the country. Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru showed much skepticism regarding Bao Dai's ability to establish a really national government, but the consensus of the conference was that the emperor is the only alternative to Communism, and Nehru did not force the issue.

The conference further agreed in principle that a peace settlement with Japan should be worked out as soon as possible and that all countries which fought against Japan in the war should take part in the process. This policy, like the one on Indochina, is designed to strengthen still-free governments and nations in Asia against Communism.

Question of Jap Peace Treaty.

The United States had undertaken to prepare a proposed draft for a Japanese treaty in time for the Colombo conference to consider it, but was unable to do this because of a new conflict between the State Department and the armed forces in Washington. The commonwealth may now go ahead and work out a proposed treaty of its own.

The Soviets insist that only Russia, the United States, Britain and China should have a hand in drafting the Japanese peace settlement. The United States agrees with the commonwealth position that all the Pacific allies have a right to take part.

The Colombo conference also agreed on a commonwealth mutual assistance program designed to strengthen the Far Eastern members against Communism. Other nations in south and southeast Asia would be eligible to participate in the program and so, apparently, would the United States.

Commonwealth governments will study the proposed program and, if they agree in accepting it, will set up machinery for carrying it out.

One of the first projects envisaged is a credit of £7,500,000 sterling ($21,000,000) to Burma, to be financed out of members' sterling balances in London.

Some "Family Troubles."

"Family troubles" among the commonwealth members themselves were not on the agenda of the Colombo conference, but were discussed informally and "unofficially."

India and Pakistan are at daggers drawn over the question of Kashmir. At the same time, these two dominions are united in strong hostility toward South Africa because of the latter's discrimination against their citizens. Britain, on the other hand, is annoyed with both India and Pakistan because they are supporting a U.N. resolution calling for an investigation of social conditions in members' colonies, including Britain's.

A general divergence of views was, moreover, apparent at Colombo between the "old" dominions and the newer ones—between Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa on the one hand and, on the other, India, Pakistan and Ceylon.

The older dominions are more interested in co-ordinating commonwealth policies with those of the United States, they favor more drastic action against the Soviets, and they are more concerned with developments in Europe. The newer dominions stress "social justice" in Asia more and are less eager to espouse policies calling for hostile action against Communism in general and the Soviet Union in particular.

The East Asia dominions rejoice greatly in their new freedom, moreover, and they are less inclined than are the older members to wait on agreement within the commonwealth, before acting, and more disposed to go it alone independently.

Power Trend Toward Asia.

The older dominions had understood that none of the commonwealth nations would recognize the Chinese Communists until all had had a chance to discuss the question of recognition at Colombo. India, Pakistan and Ceylon went ahead on their own, however, and recognized Peiping without waiting for the others—and so did Britain itself. Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa have yet to do so.

The centrifugal forces were thus strong at Colombo. Power has, indeed, long been moving outward from the center of the commonwealth, first from Britain to the "white" dominions and now from Britain and the "white" dominions to the new Asiatic members.

The commonwealth does not even call itself "British" officially any more; it is, simply, "the commonwealth of nations."

The Colombo conference was the first commonwealth meeting of cabinet ministers to be held in Asia—or anywhere else but London. It was, moreover, the first commonwealth foreign ministers' conference ever to be held, a further manifestation of the increased independence of members in foreign policy as in other matters.

Yet the commonwealth survives in spite of this increased independence, and perhaps because of it. The eight delegations at Colombo were in substantial agreement in their attitudes toward both the great powers which, although not formally represented, were largely responsible for what happened at the conference —Russia and the United States.

Communism the Big Topic.

Most of the discussions at Co-

Super-Bomb Talk Untimely, M'Mahon Says

Time Also 'Not Propitious' for New Atom Parley With Russia, He Asserts

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (AP)

SENATOR McMAHON (Dem.), Connecticut, said today the time is "not propitious" for new talks with Russia about international control of atomic weapons. Nor is it a good time for public discussion in this country of a "super A-bomb" project, he told reporters.

McMahon, chairman of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, had just come from a talk with President Truman, but he said they did not discuss atomic or military matters.

He replied "no comment" when asked about reports that the Government is considering whether to undertake development of a hydrogen atomic bomb which might be 1000 times more powerful than the original atomic bomb.

Comment on Discussion.

McMahon first gave the same reply when asked about a story in today's New York Times saying Administration officials are urging Truman to make another effort at reaching an atomic agreement with Russia before deciding on the development of a hydrogen bomb.

Then McMahon remarked that public discussion of the matter is untimely.

Pressed whether he felt the United States should not discuss the matter at home or with Prime Minister Stalin, he replied: "I mean both, at this time."

The New York Times, in a special dispatch from Washington by James Reston, said David E. Lilienthal, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission is understood to be among those who are arguing that the United States must reopen the international negotiations for control of all weapons of mass destruction before it assumes responsibility for producing the new weapon.

Decision Expected Soon.

President Truman, who asked Lilienthal to delay his resignation as head of the Atomic Energy Commission to take part in discussions about the hydrogen bomb, is expected to make his decision within the next two or three weeks both about producing the new weapon and reopening negotiations with the Russians, the Times said.

The Times said that although there are officials working on the problem who oppose the hydrogen-bomb project on moral grounds, and others who argue the Government should proceed without waste of time on new approaches to the Russians, the trend is reliably reported to be in favor of a recommendation that one more attempt should be made to negotiate a settlement.

43 JAP OFFICIALS ARRESTED IN SALE OF WAR ASSETS

TOKYO, Jan. 17 (AP)—Japanese police said today they have arrested 43 Government officials on suspicion of bribery.

All are members of the "closed institutions liquidating commission," charged with selling assets of Government agencies that went out of business at the end of the war.

Three thousand detectives were used in a two-year investigation of the agency's activities. Police said commission employes were wined, dined and bribed by brokers for preference in the sale of goods.

JOHNNY GUTHRIE, 14-year-old lover of the sea, has an embarrassing homecoming at Aberdeen, Scotland, as officers lift him over the heads of rescue trawler crewmen to the dock. Johnny took the 50-foot fishing trawler Girl Jean to sea all alone last Wednesday and was found adrift 200 miles out in the North Sea three days later. The trawler Reptonian found him and took his craft in tow. On his plea of guilty to stealing the $28,000 fishing boat, the boy was ordered to a reform school.

Behind-Scene Reasons for Shift In U.S. Policy to Favor Red China

By JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP
(Copyright, 1950.)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.

THE obvious (and known) intent of Secretary of State Acheson's speech on Asiatic policy was to prepare for the ultimate recognition of the Chinese Communist Government. Perhaps the best way to approach this thorny problem is through an old story. The story is repeated here in certain quarters, where knowledge of our past follies in China does not obstruct a realistic view of the present situation.

In brief, Boston's celebrated female transcendentalist, Margaret Fuller, once announced, in a moment of enthusiasm, that she "accepted the universe." Miss Fuller's acceptance of the universe was subsequently reported to Thomas Carlyle, who remarked dourly:

"Gad, she'd better."

British Over-Hasty.

The British were somewhat over-hasty to recognize the Mao Tse-tung regime, and were treated with disdain. The harassment of our Chinese consulate is an obvious response to our failure to follow the British in recognizing.

Probably, it is also a response to Secretary Acheson's hints about Chinese Titoism, and is intended to show the Kremlin that the new Chinese government is dependably loyal. It is even possible that Mao-Tse-tung has

House to Get Grim Picture Of U.S. Schools

Lack of Facilities Over Nation to Be Disclosed in Subcommittee Report

By ROBERT S. ALLEN
(Copyright, 1950.)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.

A GRIM picture of shocking lack of school facilities in the United States will be disclosed in the forthcoming report by two subcommittees of the House Education Committee. The report will declare that several million children are being deprived of schooling because of lack of facilities. The situation will be described as a "national emergency."

As a remedy, the report will recommend a multi-billion dollar federal-state building program over a period of years. The exact amount and details are still under consideration. The committees are talking in terms of $600,000,000 a year for six years, with states matching federal funds.

The two committees spent three months touring different sections of the country, holding numerous public hearings. More than 1,000,000 words of testimony were taken from local officials and organizations.

Chairmen of the committees are Representatives Cleveland Bailey (Dem.), West Virginia, and Thomas H. Burke (Dem.), Ohio. Other members are Representatives Leonard Irving (Dem.), Missouri; Tom Steed (Dem.), Oklahoma; Richard Nixon (Rep.), California; Thurston B. Norton (Rep.), Kentucky; Roy Wier (Dem.), Minnesota; Samuel McConnell (Rep.), Pennsylvania; Carl Perkins (Dem.), Kentucky; Thomas Werdell (Rep.), California.

The following are examples of "desperate school conditions" that will be cited in the report:

U.S. Making Progress in Race With Russia to Build Supersonic Planes

Advisory Group Says American Craft Have Been Flown and Maneuvered Repeatedly at Speeds Faster Than Sound.

By JAMES J. STREBIG
WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (AP).

THE nation's top agency for air research sees progress in the race with Russia for practical faster-than-sound fighting planes needed in atomic warfare.

Production of such fast ships is difficult but it can be done "by any nation willing to make the effort," the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics said yesterday in its yearly report to Congress.

The N.A.C.A., without actually naming Russia, said it can be assumed that the Soviet is making an "intensive effort" to develop the best means of delivering atomic bombs as well as to defend against them. Superior speed is generally recognized as the "most important single element" in both, the agency said.

Progress Made by U.S.

The United States's progress in the search for practical military craft of supersonic speed was buried in 50 pages of reports on technical studies made during the past year. It showed among other things:

1. The Air Force X-1 supersonic rocket-powered research plane has been maneuvered at very high speeds.

2. The X-1 and the Navy D-558-II jet and rocket powered research plane have been flown repeatedly at supersonic speeds in a program for matching actual flight data with the results of wind tunnel tests.

3. "A large number of successful flights" have been made with other research planes, intended to explore flight problems close to sonic speed.

4. Automatic flight controls are being developed for possible use on airplanes as well as on guided missiles.

5. Successful tests have been made with "hunter" controls for target-seeking missiles.

6. Studies are under way to determine the answer to heating resulting from friction at supersonic speeds.

7. Laboratory studies are being made of flight control and heating problems at extreme altitudes where the air is very thin.

Flight Characteristics Studied.

The N.A.C.A. made no reference to specific speeds for research planes. It said the flight characteristics of the X-1, using only the ailerons or wing section controls, had been studied during rolls in glides "at high mach numbers."

Mach is a word used to relate the speed of sound to atmospheric conditions. Sonic speed varies with temperature. At sea level with the temperature 59 degrees, sound travels 761 miles an hour. In the stratosphere with a temperature of minus 67 degrees, its speed is 662 m.p.h.

The X-1, which so far as is known is the world's fastest plane, has reached about one and a half times sonic speed at altitude. That approximates 960 miles an hour. It has merely touched such speeds, however, since presently flying models have fuel for only two minutes or so at full power. Research planes carry only recording equipment.

ROMANIA DISPUTES POWER OF WORLD COURT ON TREATY

THE HAGUE, Jan. 17 (AP)—Romania said today the International Court of Justice was not empowered to delve into British-American charges that it had violated its peace treaty guarantees of fundamental human rights.

A letter, handed to the court by a Romanian representative, declared the question was an internal affair and "exclusively a Romanian matter."

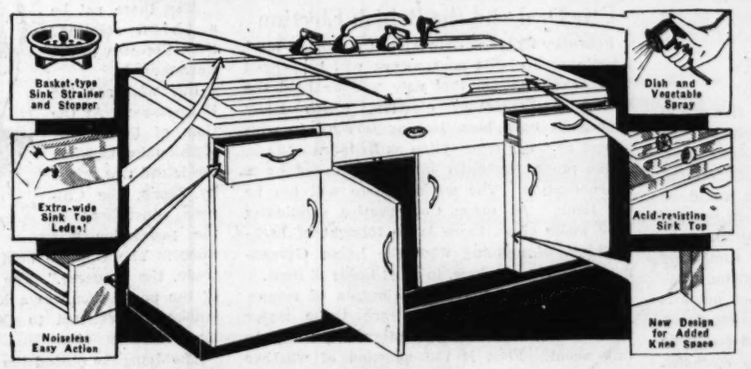

The International Court had been asked by the United Nations General Assembly last Oct. 22 to hand down an advisory opinion on charges by the United States and Britain that Romania, Hungary and Bulgaria had violated the human rights provisions of their peace treaties, signed in 1947.

Churches on Golden Pillars

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

From time to time items have appeared asking that churches be taxed. At first I was against the idea but after spending several weeks looking over Moody's, Poor's and other authorities I also believe churches should be taxed.

For centuries the Christian church banned usury. It branded those engaged in usury as heretics, but now, from the looks of things, the church is as deeply engaged in usury as many commercial organizations.

In 1932, during the period of bank failures, the Rev. Charles Coughlin stated over the radio that in Detroit's closed banks, alone, there were $25,000,000 of church bonds.

In an action by the Securities Commission suspending a broker (1943), it was brought out that a single church organization bought and sold through this broker several million dollars' worth of bonds in three years.

In the late George Norris' fight for TVA, it was brought out on the floor of the Senate that in North Carolina, a religious organization protested against a municipality building its own electric light plant, because it would "interfere" with the church's investments.

In the case of the loan shark lobby at Jefferson City, the churches did nothing. The Bible condemns usury time and time again. Yet the tax-free church does nothing.

Taxes have gone up on real estate until it is almost unbearable, while the organized churches, owning large holdings of real estate beside their stocks and bonds, are tax-free. That is unjust. They should be taxed like any other financial institution. They do nothing for the people.

People Who Need Relief

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Your paper had quite a story of the displaced cotton workers in Southeast Missouri. Would it place too great a strain on our economy for these people to be placed in some of the unused Army camps for a while? They should be fed and sheltered until new jobs are available.

Mattoon, Ill.

Perfidious Albion

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

It seems now that Britain projected her arguments against Communism only because it best suited her needs as an excuse in Europe. In Asia she has shown her inconsistency.

Mme. Chiang Kai-shek said the "moral weakling" has succumbed to riches and gold. How can Britain possibly recognize a government whose philosophy she has pretended to discredit because it rejects freedom? Britain is much more concerned over the glitter of wealth than for the principles she formerly would have had us believe she was championing. I believe that eventually England will find her policy of appeasement far more expensive than one of righteousness.

How then can we continue to extend financial aid to Britain when the very reason we have sent money to her and to Europe is to defeat communistic aggression? Why should we send her a shipload of atom bombs to store when she is not prepared to carry through her propaganda war against the barbarous imperialism, and soon she will be harboring and dealing with the agents of the enemy in her own embassy stalls?

Mme. Chiang is right. "For shame" on Britain.

Clark Walker Cummings

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

One reminiscently asks in the passing on of Clark Walker Cummings, What is death to him, who has overcome the fetters of the flesh and tasted the drink of immortality? It is the guerdon which he merited and the reward which he so rightly deserved.

Dr. Cummings lighted a torch for human brotherhood, human dignity and human welfare, which time cannot efface, but will brighten. This great crusader for social justice is not lost to St. Louis. The mantle which he so meekly wore and so courageously and consistently fought for—civil rights, economic rights and charity—will be caught by young men and women inspired by his noble deeds, and carried on to victory.

His Pocketbook Isn't Captive

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Among recent letters in your column, I heartily approve one headed "Weapon of Non-Patronage," signed "G. S. B." Several months ago I, too, definitely resolved not to buy any product or patronize any firm that uses St. Louis transit radio for advertising.

I also resolved I would do without any afternoon newspaper rather than buy a copy of the publication cooperating with the Public Service Co. in producing this unlawful nuisance on busses and streetcars. And these resolutions are being firmly adhered to.

Judges Who Still Sit

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I congratulate you on your editorial, "Case Study of a Parole." What I cannot understand is why judges like Murphy and Waechter (the latter in the case of an East Side gambling casino employe who beat up an usher at Sportsman's Park) cannot be recalled, listed by the Bar Association as unfit.

Chaos to What End?

The loyalty of coal miners generally to John L. Lewis is wholly understandable. Over the years he has done so much to improve their grim lot in life that they naturally look on him as their chief benefactor. He has often singlehandedly battled both mine operators and government officials. Out of these battles have come a shorter working week, higher wages and a welfare plan.

May not these same loyal miners now ask themselves a few questions about the direction which the Lewis leadership is currently taking them? Can they be sure that just because John L. Lewis served them well in the past he is serving them as well as he could now?

For days the country has looked on the spectacle of "uncalled" strikes, and "suggestions" that the idle miners return to work. In a few states normal operations are being resumed. In six states, including such important coal producers as Pennsylvania, Ohio, Kentucky and West Virginia, miners were described as "refusing" to obey the Lewis "suggestion" that they return to work.

Just what does John L. Lewis either expect or hope to gain by such chaos in the coal industry at the peak of winter? What good does he think it will do the miners in his union to lose hundreds of thousands of tons of coal consumption through the cancellation of trains? What benefit does he think will come from reducing coal stocks so low—the lowest perhaps since 1933—that state hospitals in Illinois were ordered dimmed out, as if it were wartime, and schools in St. Louis county face the prospect of closing their doors? How much will this idleness build up the depleted pension fund?

The Truman Administration is loath to use the Taft-Hartley Act and so has kept hands off. But how long does the White House think this situation can be allowed to run before the Administration will be forced to come to grips with it? Two years ago this coming April the President declared the existence of an emergency in coal production and at that time there was more coal above ground than there presumably is now. We say presumably because Federal Mines Director Boyd has been slow about issuing reports on current coal stocks.

If the Truman Administration is trying to do the politically safe thing, it had better think of the consequences which may flow from this chaos into the polling places in the primaries and elections ahead. Take, for example, the situation of Majority Leader Scott W. Lucas. Will his chances for re-election in Illinois be improved any by this condition? Or consider the case of Senator Donnell in Missouri. Will the Administration be any more likely to defeat him because it failed to handle the coal strike?

Senator Lucas appealed personally to the President to get the mines back into operation. The most that has come from the White House is that Mr. Truman will act when he "thinks the situation justifies it."

Whether it is time to act under the law, it is long since time for the Administration to be far more persuasive than it has been.

"Intruder in the Dust"

Arriving in the same season with other good motion pictures, such as "Battleground" and "All the King's Men," the film "Intruder in the Dust" is more than a fine picture. It is a study in abnegation by Hollywood.

"Intruder in the Dust" deals with the dignity of the individual, the emptiness of hatred and the value of law against the mob, but it is not abstract. The film is faithful to its scene—a Mississippi town. It is faithful to its people, who are the people of the town. And it is faithful to the theme of the book by William Faulkner, who knows the town and the people and portrayed them brilliantly.

Hollywood can outdo itself by the elementary process of doing only what has to be done, and doing it honestly. In this case, the producers did not seek to improve, glamorize or decorate their material. They added neither spangles nor saccharin. The result is mature and exciting entertainment, and a welcome intruder among scores of Grade B epics.

Fritalux vs. Finebel

What is described in Paris as a five-nation dilemma confronts France, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg. They don't know whether to name their economic agreement Fritalux or Finebel, either of which would be an international nonesuch, and neither apropos of anything but a desire for abbreviation.

Fritalux sounds a great deal like something crispy-crunchy, requiring sugar and cream. Finebel simply doesn't ring true. And each name is longer than the initials of the five countries. Since the final choice is to christen an economic pact, the statesmen ought to practice economy. Nflib might do. Or they could refer to the union as Bfnli without fear of contradiction.

In the interest of pronunciation, though, it seems more advisable to adopt the name of Binlf, after the resort of Banff, pronounced bamf. Then the five nations might call themselves bimf, or just anything at all.

Beyond the Freeholders' Power

Perhaps the worst frustration encountered so far by the Freeholders in their work of revamping the City Government is the State Constitution's four-year limit on the terms of municipal officials. This caused trouble in the effort to keep the fire chief out of politics, and it has turned up as a major obstacle in connection with the civil service director. If that post cannot be placed beyond manipulation by the politicians, the whole merit system may be undermined.

But the Freeholders have been reminded by their legal advisers, Mr. Stemmler and Mr. Liberman, of the constitutional provision. And that amounts to putting the office of the chief personnel officer at the disposal of the Mayor every four years. No rule against participation in politics can really overcome this basic limitation on tenure. If a Mayor wants to be guided by political considerations in filling this post, how is he to be prevented from doing so as long as the job is automatically vacated at least once in every mayoral term?

The best that the Freeholders can do by their own authority in this situation cannot be good enough. Fortunately, Chairman Tucker and his associates realized from the outset that they would encounter problems of this nature. So they have been giving them much thought. This has led to the suggestion that they place before the voters not only a charter which could be adopted under existing law, but that they also bring forward suggestions for desirable changes in that law.

One such recommendation certainly should be for an amendment to the State Constitution which would enable municipalities to take as many of their officials as they deem desirable out of partisan politics. The civil service situation makes such a change just about mandatory. If the Freeholders can start a successful campaign for this, the way will be open for the early adoption of an amendment to their own charter, one which would make it what they really want it to be.

How Many Is Immaterial

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover has responded to the criticism of his agents for the despicable practice of tapping wires. He says that the FBI has 170 telephones in this country and its possessions tapped for internal security investigations. Presumably the idea which Director Hoover seeks to convey is that the number of phones now under tap is a small one.

Is not the precise number irrelevant? It seems to us that it is. Anyway we should suppose that the number of eavesdropping operations would vary from time to time. Perhaps there are moments when not a single agent is listening in on private conversations. On other occasions there could well be many more than 170. Mr. Hoover did not say how many there were at the height of the postwar loyalty check hysteria.

But the test is not in numbers. The agent who listens in on one line listens in on many conversations. As the late Justice Brandeis put it: "Whenever a telephone line is tapped, the privacy of persons at both ends is invaded, and all conversations between them on any subject, and although proper, confidential and privileged, may be overheard." A government agent in the Nardone alcohol smuggling investigation said that he listened to "several thousand conversations of persons who had no connection with the case."

On that basis, J. Edgar Hoover's 170 phones could produce 300,000 or more illegally overheard conversations. The issue is not extent, but legality. Congress outlawed wire-tapping by federal agents in 1934. Why then does the FBI not set an example by obeying the law? The plea that "modern techniques" are needed to deal with spies and saboteurs is not very impressive. Hitler and Mussolini said that their totalitarian regimes were modern political means for dealing with problems with which "outmoded" democracy could not cope.

Director Hoover surely does not want even to seem to defend the tapping of wires in the same terms that the police state dictators attempted to justify their rule of oppression and snooping and spying on private citizens?

What About Korea?

While Senators Taft and Knowland are calling loudly for American protection of Formosa, what is their concern about Korea, some 500 miles to the northeast of Chiang Kai-shek's none-too-tight little island?

Ambassador-at-Large Jessup has just felt it necessary to adjure the National Assembly of the Korean republic to stand up for personal freedoms. It is a radical philosophy in Seoul, for the republican government has had a strong totalitarian tinge ever since it was set up after liberation of the country from Japan. Now, furthermore, South Korea's peril, with hostile, Russian-trained Communist forces looking down the peninsula from the north, supports the argument for still further total measures in self-defense.

Syngman Rhee, head of the Korean republic, would perhaps not find much to argue about with Chiang Kai-shek. He was not merely sustained by the United States Government, as was Chiang; he was installed under its aegis. His regime is not menaced by armies across a protecting strait; it is menaced by armies across an imaginary line.

While so many drums beat for Formosa, does no drum beat for Korea, in behalf of its integrity and its search for free popular government? After four years of effort in South Korea, with money and troops and counsel, the only tangible mark the United States has made upon it is still a question mark.

Fair Deal and the British Election

February 23 is the date when the world's most prominent Socialist government will be judged by the voters. On that date will be held the British parliamentary election, which many Americans have been looking forward to with almost as much expectation as Britons.

But much American interest is based on a misconception. The welfare state will not be the issue. As many Conservative candidates have made clear, there is no thought of backtracking, of undoing what the Labor Government already has done, in most fields at least.

In addition to the usual question of competence of individuals, there are three major specific issues campaign orators are likely to talk about. First is the question of whether to nationalize the steel industry. The Labor Government could have done so last year. It had the votes in Parliament, but it decided that before taking this decisive step on the road to complete Socialism it ought to consult the people. This lesson in how democracies should be run could well be copied both by Socialists and free enterprisers the world over.

The second major question is the degree of exasperation of the average Briton, and the average British housewife, with controls, standing in line, ration cards and all the other paraphernalia which assure every Briton a share in a severely and necessarily limited supply of all commodities. Third is the basic problem of leveling, of the trend toward disappearance of the superior standard of living enjoyed by the middle class.

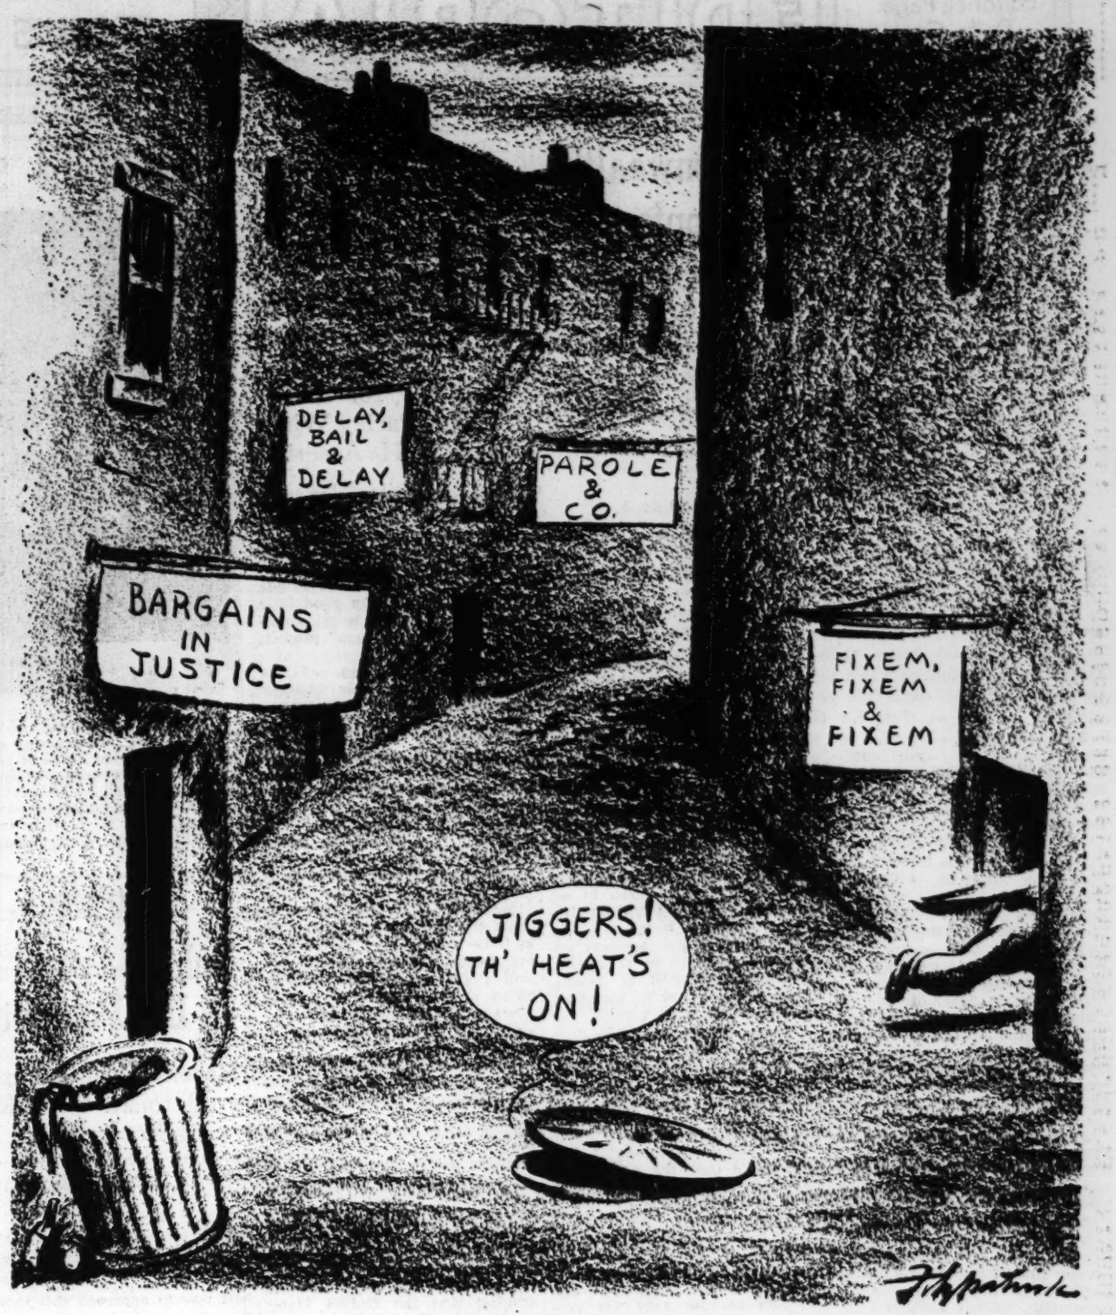

British voters will be deciding on Feb. 23 whether to continue socialization or whether to stop approximately where they are, for the present at least. The Fair Deal is not the issue. The British already have moved beyond that.

Progress in Safety

The Safety Council of Greater St. Louis can take genuine satisfaction in the substantial decrease in accidental deaths in this city. In 1949 the total number of deaths by accident was 277, a reduction of 49 from 1948's total of 326.

There were 26 fewer accidental deaths in homes, three fewer in manufacturing plants and 14 fewer in automobile accidents on the streets. While all these improvements are to be commended, the decrease in motor accident deaths is particularly notable. The Police Department especially deserves credit for its part in slowing down so markedly the carnage on the streets.

In the longer view, the reduction in factory accident deaths stands out. When the Safety Council was organized in 1916, so its president, Robert B. Brooks, reminds us, industrial accidents took an average of 100 to 120 lives a year in St. Louis. In 1949 the total was seven. That is progress and it proves that safety can be taught and applied.

ALARM IN RAT ALLEY

Formosa for the Formosans

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Alvin Johnson, Retired Director of the New School for Social Research, in a Letter to the New York Herald Tribune

Formosa! How beautiful a name for an ugly problem. Ugly, because our statesmen, professional and lay, present to us two alternatives, both dangerous.

Shall the Chinese Nationalists keep Formosa, and must we defend them, at the risk of embroiling ourselves in a Chinese war not likely to stop short of Moscow? Shall Formosa be turned over to Red China, a Communist bastion in the island crescent from Indonesia to the Aleutians?

Alvin Johnson

May there not be a third solution? Give Formosa to the Formosans?

But who are the Formosans? At the time of the Treaty of Shimonoseki, when the island was seized by Japan, the Chinese constituent of the population was minor. The Chinese held the ports, the trade, the "squeeze." The great majority of the population was a Malaysian stock, stubbornly resistant to Chinese penetration.

The Japanese ousted the Chinese as exploiters and made numerous efforts to displace Formosans by Japanese settlers. How far they succeeded in this was always a Japanese military secret. But we have all seen occasional reports of the culpable disposition of Japanese settlers in Formosa to drift back home. The Formosans didn't like the Japanese, and were very quick with their knives.

Formosa has a population estimated at 6,000,000. Estimated, for no Japanese census taker ever dared to go into the native villages. Mostly these people are Malaysians, proud, tenacious, industrious, resistant to alien intrusion, Japanese or Chinese.

We wrested Formosa from the Japanese, and assumed that the island had to go back to China, which had done nothing whatever to win it. Its present position is legally uncertain. We have no treaty of peace with Japan; therefore, the transfer of sovereignty over Formosa is legally defective. The island is still contraband of war, in our hands.

Has our State Department ever canvassed the idea of turning Formosa over to the Formosans?

From our distance Formosa looks like a speck in the Pacific, but the area of the island equals Massachusetts and Connecticut combined. Six million people are a third more than the population of Denmark, twice the population of Norway, not far short of the population of Sweden, Belgium, the Netherlands and Eire.

Formosa is a self-sufficient area. It produces its own food and fibers. Small areas produce camphor and quinine for the world trade and the profit of Japanese merchants and landlords.

Why should not Formosa be free, a nation among the nations of the oceanic crescent, Indonesia to the Aleutians?

We could not permit Formosa to be a rendezvous for Chinese Nationalists, plotting vainly for a lost cause, a cause we may regret but cannot set up effectively. We could not act merely to defeat a mainland regime we do not like. But it is American to support the independence of peoples too long subject to oppressive imperialisms.

Why should we not extend our good offices to the Formosans, a brave and worthy people, too long a mere pawn in the policies of Oriental imperialism?

Waking Up to the Crime Problem

From the Birmingham Post

In the last year or two there have been many evidences of the need for more intensive study and action to cope with various phases of the crime problem in Alabama. A growing realization of this need has resulted in several definite attempts to improve matters:

1. We have had two investigations of prison conditions—one by an unofficial committee composed of legislators and citizens, and the other an official legislative inquiry.

2. The outbreak of floggings by hood-wearing hoodlums in the Birmingham district led to the formation of the Committee of 500 to aid law-enforcement agencies.

3. Bail bond practices here led to the enactment of legislation intended to be remedial, and to recommendations by the Birmingham Bar Association for corrective measures.

4. Flagrant abuses of parole powers since Gov. Folsom's appointees acquired control of the State Pardon and Parole Board have aroused a storm of protests from many organizations and individuals. A growing demand has arisen for an overall study of Alabama's penal system.

The foregoing problems relating to crime are well recognized, but the measures for dealing with them have been spasmodic, sporadic and ineffectual. It is clear that something more is necessary if definite, lasting improvements are to be made. What is needed is an intensive, sustained, co-ordinated movement, under competent direction.

Crime problems are not peculiar to Birmingham and Alabama alone, of course. Other cities and states have them. In some places, organized efforts have been made to improve matters, with notable success.

One such place is St. Louis, where a Crime Commission is now being organized under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce.

Some of the problems worrying St. Louis are similar to those found in Birmingham and elsewhere in Alabama. The St. Louis Crime Commission is attacking them through research and investigation, publication of the facts, and recommendations for legislative and other remedial action.

Similar commissions have been organized in Baltimore, Miami and other cities.

The Post believes that our needs would be best served by formation of an Alabama Crime Commission, rather than one concerned with Birmingham alone, for the reason that most of the crime problems which concern us are statewide in scope. In addition, we think the undertaking should have the broadest possible base of support.

BATTLE REPORT—VICTORY IN THE PACIFIC, by Capt. Walter Karig, Lt. Com. R. L. Harris and Lt. Com. F. T. Manson. (Rinehart & Co., 548 pgs., $5.)

THE STRUGGLE FOR GUADALCANAL, August, 1942—February, 1943. History of United States Naval Operations in World War II, Vol. V, by Samuel Eliot Morison. (Little, Brown & Co., 387 pgs., $6.)

The fifth and final volume of "Battle Report" is published almost simultaneously with the fifth volume of Prof. Samuel Eliot Morison's projected 14-volumes.

Capt. Karig's volume covers the fast-moving final months of naval warfare in the Pacific. Unrevealed details of Leyte, Mindoro and Luzon as well as the fighting for Iwo Jima and Okinawa, are given by men who were there. The tale of the Kamikaze is told as never before.

There is pathos and drama in the visit of the destroyer Laffey to Kerama Retto where Kamikaze-damaged ships went for repair: "No one really wanted to see Kerama Retto. Going there before going to the picket line was like visiting the casket company before going to the gallows. . . . Now Laffey was standing into Kerama Retto—for the first time since April 6. Topside watch-standers gaped in loose-jawed amazement. What a sight! What an awful sight! Grotesque patterns of superstructures etched against the blue sky; mattresses and loaves of bread floating in the oil slicks oozing from torn hulls. All over the harbor colors were at halfmast, as damaged ships buried their dead."

Samuel E. Morison

Some hours later the Laffey was on the radar picket line and under violent attack. The story of how she came through despite five Kamikazes works up to a breathtaking climax. And there are other first-hand accounts of action likely to make any reader double his respirations per minute: the great typhoon of December 1944 that sank destroyers and mauled even the battlewagons; submarine exploits off the Japanese shore; the American sailor in Hiroshima when the atomic bomb hit.

Prof. Morison devotes his entire volume to the bloody Guadalcanal campaign which lasted six months and included six major engagements and 40 minor ones. As he says: "The campaign is unique for variety and multiplicity of weapons employed and for co-ordination between sea power, ground power and air power. And certainly no campaign in modern history is more fraught with ferocity and misery; none has blazed more brightly with heroism and self-sacrifice. So, although this story is one primarily of naval operations, we have endeavored to describe the struggle for Guadalcanal as a whole, subject to the limitations of space, time and imperfect human knowledge."

Plunging into the Battle of Savo Island, Morison tells what thus far is the most nearly complete story of this terrible defeat for our Navy. He admits: "The enemy was little superior in strength—yet one side was all but annihilated and the other escaped virtually unscathed." And he agrees with Admiral Hepburn that the primary cause was "the complete surprise achieved by the enemy" because of our negligence.

The Battle of Tassafaronga, in which we lost one cruiser and three others were knocked out in a night fight with eight Jap destroyers (only one of which we sank), is cited as a "sharp defeat." Other major actions included, in which we didn't do so badly, are the carrier fight off the Eastern Solomons, Cape Esperance, Santa Cruz, and the three-day naval battle of Guadalcanal. It is amazing how, after years of war games and maneuvers, the Navy's strategy and tactics could be so marred with blunders and errors in this vital campaign. It also is somewhat amazing to compare the news reports of that day with what Mr. Morison now discloses as having actually happened.

G.O.P. Policy Group Could Help

By Raymond P. Brandt
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.

THE policy committee of the Republican National Committee meeting here tomorrow and Thursday (Jan. 18-19) to help write an interim platform for the 1950 congressional elections has a timely opportunity to do something to make the so-called bipartisan foreign policy work better.

Effective co-operation on international affairs requires wider access to the facts and more experienced practitioners in foreign relations to evaluate those facts if the Republicans are to participate actively in a bi-partisan, non-partisan or un-partisan foreign policy.

Dulles.

WITH GOOD REASON, Republicans have complained that the White House, the State Department and the Defense Establishment have held out on them during the initial and intermediate stages of policy making. The controversy over Formosa is the latest result of this lack of continuous co-operation. The Republicans were presented with an accomplished fact before they could give their views.

There is, however, a counterbalancing Republican obligation to make a foreign policy truly representative. The party, either at the national headquarters or through prospective presidential candidates, should build its part of the bridge for the interchange of facts and ideas between responsible officials. Senator Vandenberg of Michigan and Representative Eaton of New Jersey, ranking Republicans members of the congressional foreign policy committees, have been and now are the principal means for transmitting these essentials for reaching a common agreement between the parties. But willing as these men are to continue their liaison work, the present system has proved inadequate by both partisan and national standards.

THE PARTY THAT had the benefit of the long experience and sound judgment of such foreign affairs experts as Elihu Root, Henry L. Stimson and Charles Evans Hughes now has only one outstanding practitioner in diplomacy, John Foster Dulles, and his bipartisan reputation has been tarnished by his campaign in the New York senatorial campaign last year.

It is to Gov. Dewey's credit that he first selected Dulles as his personal adviser on international affairs. He realized his own inexperience in this field. He and former Republican National Chairman Herbert Brownell were also responsible for setting up a foreign affairs section in the national committee with former Ambassador Hugh Wilson at its head. With Wilson's death, the committee was left without a valuable expert and adviser.

SENATOR TAFT, WHO will be a presidential candidate if he wins re-election this year, is his own international expert, with the assistance of his politically-minded wife, who was a zealous America Firster before the war. Taft does his own international research and bases his convictions and statements on his own interpretation of whatever facts are available to him. He is a busy man and at times it appears that he is convinced that his own snap judgment on complicated problems is superior to the conclusions of men who have devoted their lives to the study and practice of diplomacy.

Even aside from the Wherrys, the Jenners, the Capeharts, the Brickers and the Kems, this is not an unusual attitude for United States Senators. During a White House conference in 1939 on neutrality legislation, the late Senator Borah of Idaho, to the amazement of President Roosevelt, Secretary Hull and others, insisted that his sources of information on European affairs were superior to those of the Government. It was learned later that this secret source was a mimeographed news letter prepared by a Britisher with Soviet connections. Events proved Borah's "information" incorrect.

IT IS UNLIKELY that the Republican group meeting here this week can draft a foreign policy declaration that will mean anything and at the same time satisfy a substantial section within the party or would bind a majority of the Republican Senators and Representatives. The group could, however, note the lack of adequate machinery within the party's national and legislative organization for assembling and studying the facts essential to the formulation of acceptable bi-partisan foreign policies. The group could also call on the Truman Administration for more wholehearted co-operation with responsible Republicans all the time. If the Democrats refuse to extend co-operation, the Republicans could then set up their own fact-finding division inside or outside the National Committee to furnish information to legislators and speakers. This set-up might be greatly inferior to the world-wide intelligence network available to the Administration, but it would be superior to what exists today.

MONTY WOOLLEY IS FUNNY AS WOOLLCOTT

'Man Who Came to Dinner' Revival at American Still Amusing.

By MYLES STANDISH

Jokes, unlike whisky, usually don't improve with age, but the collection of gag lines that make up most of "The Man Who Came to Dinner," fortunately preserve most of their acerbic tang more than 10 years after first being launched at the Broadway ear. So the the revival of the famous Moss Hart-George S. Kaufman comedy opened at the American Theater last night, still qualified as first-rate entertainment, though it is more than ever apparent that as a portrayal of the late Alexander Woollcott and some of his ultra-theatrical set cronies, it is just this side of comic-strip drawing.

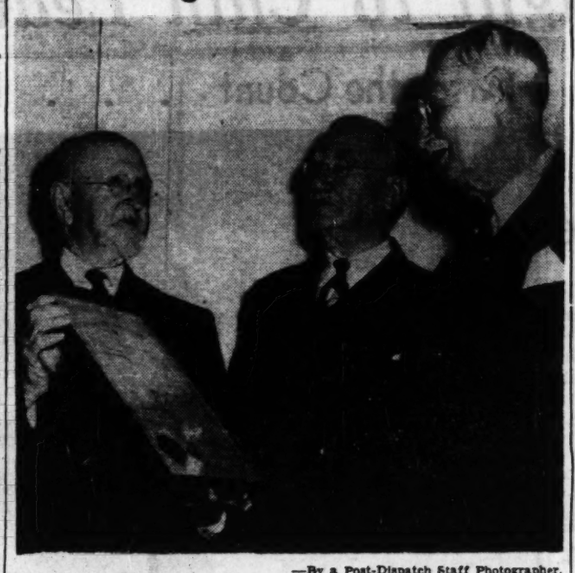

The revival, staged by Max Gordon, has the added authority of having the poisonously clever Sheridan Whiteside played by the originator, Monty Woolley, still complete with beard, mustachios and a manner of delivery in which he punctuates a line by virtually spitting the words at cast or audience. Mr. Woolley, who played the role something like 700 times on Broadway and in the movies, is by now indistinguishable from the character, (or perhaps he always was.) Anyway, he gets every last laugh coming in the taunts sprayed like prussic acid from the sententiously sentimental cobra of a radio literateur. Personally, I think Mr. Woolley no funnier in the role than Clifton Webb, who played it here in 1940, and he is not nearly Webb's equal in suave insinuation or the varied nuances of sarcasm. In Mr. Woolley's waxen-pale countenance and lecture platform intonations, I gathered the enervating effects of long repetition in the role. But even with the occasional hint of mechanical playing, it is still mechanical perfection in a part fitted to him like a morning coat, so he makes a first-rate show out of Sheridan Whiteside.

I always looked askance on the rise of the Woollcott legend simply because it bred so many imitators who confused boorishness with wit, and had none of the Woollcottian caustic cleverness or elegant turn of the phrase. In any event, the type is always funnier back of footlights or lightly parodied in books, where the bad manners can be turned on other people and therefore qualify as fit propellents of humor.

The supporting company gathered here as targets for the Whiteside barbs and victims of his plots is on the whole not a good one. Jay Presson, a sort of Lucille Ball type, was the only one in any way three-dimensional as the Whiteside secretary who has managed to put up with him for 10 years. Gloria McGhee, displaying a handsome figure, had her moments as the witch of an actress. Don Peters as the small-town newspaper man, was likeable. The rest were pale, overly broad or weak performances.

The play runs through Sunday night. At the request of the star, an extra matinee scheduled for next Sunday has been canceled.

St. Louis Bar Honors 43 Members Practicing Law 50 Years or More

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

WILLIAM R. GENTRY, showing the certificate that admitted him to law practice in 1896 to A. E. L. GARDNER, center, admitted to practice in 1891, and J. HUGO GRIMM, admitted in 1886.

Half of Group Present to Receive Scrolls — Meeting an Occasion of Good-Natured Banter.

Forty-three members of the St. Louis Bar Association who have been practicing attorneys for 50 years or more were honored last night at a meeting of the association in the St. Louis Medical Society Building.

About half of the group, many of whom have served as judges or in other public offices, were present to receive scrolls presented by the association as an "expression of respectful regard." It was an occasion of reminiscence and good-natured banter.

J. Hugo Grimm, who observes his eighty-sixth birthday today and was admitted to practice in 1886, was acclaimed the oldest both in age and in service as a lawyer.

Among those honored were former Gov. Henry S. Caulfield, Walter N. Davis, former Lieutenant Governor; George H. Williams, former United States Senator, and Guy Thompson, who served as president of the St. Louis, Missouri and American Bar Associations.

Other Members Honored.

The group also included William Allen, Probate Judge Glendy B. Arnold, Henry Baker, Peter T. Barrett, George Beck, Henry Blodgett, William F. Carter, Clarence T. Case, Rhodes Cave, Thomas Cobbs, H. Chouteau Dyer, John B. Edwards, A. E. L. Gardner, William R. Gentry, Bernard Greensfelder, Homer Hall, Henry A. Hamilton, A. J. Haverstick, Thomas C. Hennings Sr., Arthur Kammerer, I. R. Kelso, John Leahy, William M. Martin, Robert McLaran, Julius Muench, Henry Oberschelp, Tom Pierce, Leo S. Rassieur, Charles Reber, Orean Scott, Oliver Senti, Luther Ely Smith, Forrest Tralles, John Vaughan, David Voyles, Lambert Walther, Charles P. Williams and John B. Edwards.

Work of Men Praised in Talk.

Lauding the work of the 50-year men, United States District Judge George H. Moore said, "They have done more than just survive—they have survived with credit."

In a series of anecdotes about men in the group, he recalled that on his first day in St. Louis, Guy Thompson had invited him to join the Jefferson Democratic Club, an action later described by Thompson as introducing Moore into society.

"That's how you got to be a federal judge," Probate Judge Arnold shouted from the audience.

Judge Moore, listing members of the St. Louis bar who had become prominent judges in the past, emphasized that they had done so before the institution in Missouri 10 years ago of the non-partisan court plan.

"They were proud to serve as Democrats or Republicans—not as non-partisans, but as lawyers and judges," he said. "Now the selection is by the Governor, but the selection of the panel from which he makes an appointment is placed in the hands of ward committeemen. The selection is circumscribed so that the Governor can not reach out and get the best man. Judges are chosen in some degree by laymen who know nothing of the bar."

There was a roar of laughter when he then said he was "not making any attack on the system."

Court Plan Commended.

The non-partisan court plan was praised by James M. Douglas, who resigned Jan. 1 from the Missouri Supreme Court to resume the private practice of law in St. Louis.

"The plan has brought members of the Supreme Court closer to the practicing lawyers than ever before," he said. "Every judge used to have to make himself personally known as well as he could throughout the state. The plan has drawn members of the court together so they work as a unit."

Douglas said the court now has no backlog of untried cases and that the delay once had been as as long as eight years. He added, however, that the change might not have been related to the non-partisan court plan.

In a business session, the association voted to adopt a rule providing for the automatic ouster from that body of any lawyer disbarred from practice by the courts. A hearing had been necessary for ouster from the association.

Twelve new members admitted on recommendation of the admissions committee. They were William S. Bahn, Marvin S. Boisseau Jr., Taylor S. Desloge, Donald Doheny, Harold A. Donovan, James D. Godfrey, James C. Maloney, Andrew J. Reis, Philip Reither, Donald J. Sher, Philip Polster and George C. Willson III.

LARGE AUDIENCE HEARS PAGANINI QUARTET

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN

The second concert in the Ethical Society chamber music series was given last night at Sheldon Auditorium by the Paganini String Quartet. This organization now has an avid following in St. Louis and most of them were evidently in attendance last night for the hall was jammed.

The Quartet played a conventional program topped by Beethoven's Opus 130, one of the memorable five quartets which represent, to most musicians, the farthest reach of musical thinking. In the Opus 130 the composer achieves some of his most striking effects with a remarkable simplicity of means with at times a seeming innocency hovering on the surface. The Paganini ensemble's closely integrated and essentially straightforward performance was free from self-conscious attempts to suggest profundity by tricks of dynamics or arbitrary modifications of tempo. Their playing was precise, fastidious in its inflection and justly ordered in its pace. The design of each section was clearly exposed; and its most expressive parts — such as the miraculous cavatina—were presented with a reticence that demanded the utmost control and brought the listener to an attitude of intense concentration.

The quartet led off with crisp, graceful reading of Haydn's Quartet in G Minor, Opus 74 No. 3, and followed with Dvorak's familiar "American" quartet. Like the "New World" Symphony it uses American material, but in both cases it is refracted through the mind of a composer whose residence in the United States was physical rather than spiritual. But even with a Bohemian accent the tunes are appealing and became more so as deployed in this sensitive, closely shaded, tonally beautiful performance.

The Quartet was in top form, in fact, throughout the concert in the essentials of precise phrasing, tonal blending and rhythmic vitality. The large audience was fervently demonstrative. The quartet played two encores, the final movements of Beethoven's Opus 18 No. 3, and of Haydn's "Lark" quartet.

WALTER LIPPMANN

Two Momentous Elections of 1950

FOR the British as for ourselves, 1950 is an election year, and so for many months to come the men who must lead, or would like to lead, their countries, must also lead their parties. They will be like a man driving a fast car around sharp corners through crowded streets, his right arm holding tightly the girl on the seat beside him while he keeps turning his head to argue with an angry fellow on the back seat.

The chances are that the British people will vote at a time when they will not know much that is vital to a true judgment of their prospects and their policy. They will certainly not know what is to be done about Marshall aid even this year, much less next year and thereafter. There are momentous decisions now in the making which must affect Britain, the European continent, the Commonwealth and Asia.

Lippmann

Climate for Indecision.

But in this country the issues to be decided have not been publicly defined, nor even defined and decided within the Truman Administration. With our own election impending it would be a miracle if Congress were given clear enough leadership to debate and settle the great issues before it recesses this summer.

Yet the British people will be arguing in the dark unless they know when we mean to do about Marshall aid in the third year and in the fourth and the last year. And what we mean to do after that to close the gap between the exports which the rest of the world needs from us and its capacity to earn the dollars to pay for our exports.

The real problem of Britain is now masked because, on the one hand, Britain receives Marshall aid from America and, on the other hand, because she is paying out an equivalent amount to the holders of the sterling balances.

The British people are producing about as much as they are consuming—except as they are living in part on their own capital—yet they are not earning all that they get from North America nor are they being paid for all that they give to Asia, Africa and Europe.

Area of Agreement.

The great issues, which will have to be defined and in large measure decided in 1950, arise from this situation. They are not easy to understand.

The issues are almost impossible to translate into attractive and honest slogans for the two elections that must be held this year in the English-speaking world.

When the best expert opinion has been consulted, there will remain, I believe, a net deposit of general truth which we can all accept:—that the United States will continue for many years to come to export more than it imports; that the difference must be covered by easy credits and by gifts, and in some measure by private investment. That southern Asia and other economically backward areas of the globe must be financed if they are to find peace.

That a system of financing them can now be used, beginning this year with Britain, to replace the Marshall plan. That as we liquidate the Marshall plan in Europe and develop a new system for Asia, we may be able to achieve two great purposes at once: to liberate Britain, and soon thereafter Western Europe, from dependence on the American subsidy, and at the same time to keep what remains of Asia in friendly relations with the Western world.

Confusion in Asia.

These are great purposes, could we adopt them and achieve them. For what we are facing in Asia is above all the tremendous risk that its connections with the Western world will be broken. They would be broken, of course, if all of Asia became Communist and owed its allegiance to Moscow.

I do not think that is likely to happen everywhere — certainly not very soon. But what could happen, and will, I think, if we refuse our responsibilities, is that much and most of Asia will become a no-man's land of quarreling principalities and factions, cut up within itself, and cut off from the Western world by its own disorder.

And in Europe what we are facing, I have come to believe, is that great nations which should be our partners in the promotion of peace will grow so habituated to being our clients that they cease to contribute their own best judgment to the problems of the day.

Blanket on Independence.

The Marshall plan has done much good that it was imperative to do. The worst aspect of it is that we are not getting from Britain and from France their own true judgment of the great issues. They have had to think about the appropriations committees of Congress when what we needed desperately is their independent, unfrightened, uninfluenced contribution to the problems which we cannot possibly know enough to solve all by ourselves.

That is why the sooner we can extricate them and ourselves from the Marshall plan, substituting another system of stabilizing the world economy, the better for us and for them.

WRAY'S COLUMN

All Riley Got Was a First-Class Beating.

CHARLEY RILEY today probably is a very disconsolate young man. . . . He gambled on his chance of gaining the featherweight title from Willie Pep, when he accepted a 10 per cent payoff—a gamble that blew up in his face after less than 14 minutes of fighting at the Auditorium last night.

But the story doesn't end there. . . . His 10 per cent amounted to around $4300—only, he won't be able to keep a cent of it. . . . At least that's what Chief Deputy Commissioner Charley Pian told us before the fight at ringside last night.

"Riley won't get a dollar of his share," Pian related. . . . It seems that income tax collectors and other creditors will take it away from him.

THAT'S a more disheartening blow than the right hand punch with which Willie Pep, a great champion, sent Charley to dreamland in the fifth round last night.

Riley still is young, however. . . . He is a better fighter than most of the country's featherweights today. . . . He still is a great puncher and if he takes care of himself he can soon accumulate a bankroll.

But never at the expense of Willie Papaleo, the Hartford wonder. . . . They don't come any better. . . . Pound for pound he seems to have more of everything than any other champion except possibly Ray Robinson.

And we're going to have to rate Willie with the best of all time. . . . The Pep we saw in action was going at his best. . . . He was opposed to potential dynamite in Riley's right hand. . . . He nullified it and gave the greatest exhibition of how not to get hit while hitting we've seen in years. . . . He's better than Johnny Kilbane and Abe Attell because he can box even better under pressure and hits harder. . . . What he would have done with Hammerin' Hank Armstrong we'll leave for you to guess.

Fought 82 Battles As World Champion.

ST. LOUISANS have seen several of the great featherweights of the past, beginning with Billy Rothwell (Young Corbett), who was a pretty fair junior lightweight in 1902, when he knocked out our Jack Keefe of East St. Louis in three rounds at Hardluck Haughton's West End Club. . . . Then there was Johnny Kilbane, who one night at the Future City A.C. became real angry at our Oliver Kirk who kept the champ waiting in the ring. . . . Oliver bit the resin early because of his attempt to get the champ's goat.

But of all the featherweight champions who have appeared here, the one that most intrigued us was a guy from Cincinnati named Freddie Miller, a southpaw. . . . He whipped Peewee Kaiser, Joe Ghnouly and Johnny Datto—all good men—at the Coliseum and on his very first fight of the following year (1933) he beat Tommy Paul for the title.

Thereafter Freddie established a most amazing record. . . . He fought 82 fights as titleholder—and saw the world doing it. . . . He battled in England, Scotland, Wales, France, Spain, South Africa, South America and Mexico. . . . We saw him fight in the bull ring in the City of Mexico Jan. 7, 1936, and although it was not listed as a championship fight, it very nearly caused his finish—via the knockout route.

Knocked Out Once— And Then He Quit.

FREDDIE did most of his training at the American Club in Mexico City, playing bridge, eating well, etc. . . . Maybe it was the et cetera . . . Or perhaps it was the rarefied air at 7400 feet altitude. . . . Maybe it was just Baby Casanova, his opponent. . . . But whatever the cause, after a fine four rounds, Freddie spent the

St. Louis Boy Proves Easy Foe for Champ; Record $56,905 Gate

By W. J. McGoogan

Charley Riley has had his shot at the featherweight championship of the world and, like so many others who aspired to the crown worn by Willie Pep, he's a defeated candidate today. He was knocked out in 1 minute, 5 seconds of the fifth round of their scheduled 15-round contest at Kiel Auditorium last night.

But Charley and Willie set a new record for gate receipts in this city when their show drew $56,905 gross, paid by 11,115 persons. The Federal Government shared to the extent of $8669; the state and the City split even, getting $2156.66 each and the State picked up another $878.45 in sales tax.

That left the net gate $43,044.23 of which Pep pocketed $21,522.11 and Riley $4304.42.

More People, Less Money in '41.

The previous record in St. Louis was drawn by Joe Louis and Tony Musto in a heavyweight title match at The Arena, April 8, 1941, when 17,472 persons paid $52,592.50.

Riley with Phil Terranova drew the previous high for the Auditorium when their second bout, which Riley won on a technical knockout in the seventh round, attracted 11,205 customers and receipts of $29,334.

Forgetting the money angle, the customers were treated to a real championship fight. Pep weighed in at 123½ pounds, Riley at 125½ and the fans who had seen Pep toy with several other opponents here in non-title matches expected him to do something of the same with Riley.

But with his 126-pound title on the line, Pep was a different fighter. He couldn't afford to take any chances with the right hand punch which Riley packs and he was interested in getting out of that ring just as fast as he could.

And yet the title-holder boxed coolly for four rounds. He seemed to have the better of each of them, although Referee Harry Kessler gave Riley the benefit of a doubt and scored the third round for the St. Louisan.

Auditorium Results

Joey Hennigsen (130), St. Louis, defeated Jack Martin (126), Indianapolis, 4 rounds. Paul Spica, referee.

Judges—Gene Farrell, Al Graff.

Pep bled lightly from a cut over his right eye early in the match but it was more the scrape of a glove which caused it than a punch.

Riley, even though being outpointed badly, was carrying on an aggressive fight as the fifth round opened and didn't seem to be in any trouble. Pep drove a left hook to Riley's body then shot home a right which glanced off Riley's body to his chin and the St. Louis boy went down.

He spun as he started to the floor and blocked a left hand which Pep sent in his direction.

Riley hit the floor, face down, then rolled over on his back as the fatal ten was counted over him. He made no effort to get up before the end of the count. His seconds worked over him for some little time before Charley was able to get up. Then he didn't know what hit him.

Pep, playfully, tried to show Riley what had happened as photographers snapped pictures, then Riley was finally led from the ring to his dressing room where he sat disconsolate as his well-wishers tried to console him.

"I think I can beat him," Charley muttered, "I'd like to fight him again."

No Reason for Rematch.

But Charley was so badly beaten and outclassed that there's hardly any likelihood of a return match until he proves himself all over again. Certainly nobody in the crowd would see any reason for a rematch.

Pep took the whole thing in stride and after the bout laughed and joked in his dressing room with Yogi Berra, Yankee catcher, and other friends. Then he drove to Chicago from where he will return to Tampa, Fla., to get ready for whatever match his manager, Lou Viscusi, can arrange for him.

Sandy Saddler, of course, is the chief objective of Pep and it is likely the third meeting between the two will be held in one of the New York ball parks during the coming summer. Saddler knocked out Pep in four rounds in 1948, then Pep regained the crown with a 15-round decision in February of 1949. There has been a considerable demand for a rubber match between the two and that probably will be scheduled outdoors in New York during the summer.

Riley is not through by any means. He was beaten but St. Louis fans no doubt would like to see him in action again. Charley should probably rest for a few months before he attempts any serious competition, but there's no reason for him to hang up the gloves and quit.

Riley Tries Strategy at Start.

Charley started the match with Pep with a cagy maneuver. Instead of boring in as he had been expected to do, he let Pep come to him. Willie started pumping lefts to Riley's head as Charley retreated in the first round.

The champion caught Riley against the ropes in a corner and bombarded Charley with lefts and rights to win the round handily, although he did little real damage.

Riley started the second round by leading left jabs and was content to try to outbox Pep, which is a large order in any man's league. Pep used his left to advantage and tried a right-hand shot which landed high on Riley's head.

Pep came out in the fifth still seemingly content to box Riley, but all of a sudden he saw his opening and he landed the punches which knocked Riley out.

One of the big laughs of the evening was an announcement which said, "The person with Illinois license, so and so, your

CHARLEY RILEY was counted out by REFEREE HARRY KESSLER while lying face down. He was so completely finished by Champion Willie Pep's explosive right to the chin that it was minutes before he was revived. Here his handlers have lifted the still limp Riley to a half-sitting position. To the right are Pep's gleeful handlers.

Moss and Albrecht Signed by Browns; Pitcher Embree Sold

By Harold Flachsbart

John Lester Moss, 24-year-old Brownie catcher who topped all other regular receivers in either major league in batting average last season, says that maybe he's just beginning to "find" the pitchers, but a different batting grip may be the answer to his .291 average.

The sandy-haired 200-pounder, whose brother, Perry Moss, distinguished himself on an Illinois University Rose Bowl football team, started "choking" his bat one inch last spring. Before that he held the wood with his left hand down to the knob. In '47 his batting average was .157 and the scribes in spring training last March were saying, after an improvement to .257 in '48, that if he gained another 100 points—well—look out Ted Williams.

Moss was one of the two Brownies who signed contracts yesterday with President William O. DeWitt. The other was Eddie Albrecht, rookie righthanded pitcher with an amazing strikeout record at Pine Bluff, Ark., who hurled a five-inning one-hitter against the White Sox on the final day of last season.

Yogi Berra of the champion Yankees hit only .277 as next best American League catcher in batting average, and the all-star National Leaguer, Roy Campanella, sported a .289 mark. Moss, who visited the St. Louis club offices on Dodier street on his way from Toledo to Seattle, where his mother is ill, last summer hit 10 homers and 11 doubles.

As to speed, Moss is considered a bit slow, to put it mildly. "I always was slow in getting away from the plate," Les said. "And that constant crouching in catching behind the plate makes the muscles grow irregularly over the knee. It's my knees which keep me from moving faster."

Moss packs a lot of weight in those big legs. From 210 pounds now, he will cut down to 200 or 202 at Burbank (Calif.) spring training, he says.

"Pitchers? Most of 'em are easy to handle," Moss maintains. "All except that Papai, but he's gone now." Papai is a knuckleballer. Ever heard of a catcher who relished receiving a knuckleballer?

Brother Perry, the football player who is 16 months younger than John Lester, helped coach the Illinois U. freshman team last fall. He will be graduated next month.

The Browns also announced that Pitcher Red Embree had been sold to the Cleveland Indians. He won three and lost 13 last season.

McComb Returns To Flyer Front In Game Tonight

Capt. Billy McComb, one of the Flyers' casualties, will be back on the firing line tonight as Ebbie Goodfellow's club tackles the Pittsburgh Hornets at The Arena. But still missing from the 8:15 face-off will be Regular Goalie Ralph Almas and four forwards. The Flyers have gone through seven straight games without a victory.

Pittsburgh, the team which supplanted the Flyers in third place in the Western standings of the American Hockey League, has won five of its last six starts, and the other one was a 1-1 draw with the Flyers here a week ago. Since Baz Bastien, former goalie who lost an eye as the result of a training camp accident, took charge of the club, the Hornets have won six, tied one and lost one.

Their edge over the Flyers is three points (45-42), but a victory for St. Louis tonight would narrow that to one point, and Goodfellow and his players are confident of getting back in playoff contention when all injured players return to the lineup. To reach the post-season playoffs, a club must finish first, second or third. Last year, the Flyers finished first in the regular-season Western Division race.

McComb, who has been sidelined since a Jan. 4 game at Cleveland with a deep cut on his leg, will play on a line as left wing with Center Cliff Simpson and Al Baccari. Pop Backor, regular left wing on this combination, is the latest casualty. At Indianapolis in 2-2 tie Sunday, Backor suffered a recurrence of a groin injury. Other forwards still sidelined are Paul Gladu, Fern Gauthier and John Raynak.

Goalie Almas was expected to be back in the lineup tonight but in a workout it was established that his injured back muscles would not stand the stooping and twisting required of a goalie. So Mousie MacDonald again will protect the Flyer net. The St. Louis club has lost four and tied three of its last seven games.—H. F.

Tittle Recovering.

Macauley Gets 23 Points but Bombers Lose

CHICAGO, Jan. 17 (UP)—The Chicago Stags scored 32 points in the final quarter to down the St. Louis Bombers, 78 to 69, in the second game of a National Basketball Association doubleheader last night. Philadelphia defeated Sheboygan, 89 to 72, in the opener. The twin bill attracted 8109 fans.

Chicago, trailing 51-46 as the last period opened, rallied and knotted the score at 69-all with two minutes remaining. Then the Stags cut loose with a flurry of baskets that ended the Bombers' hopes.

The Bombers folded when Easy Ed Macauley, who had scored 23 points, fouled out with three minutes and 20 seconds remaining.

Max Zaslofsky popped in nine baskets and five free throws to top the Stags with 23 points.

In the Philadelphia-Sheboygan game, the Warriors jumped to an 8-to-0 lead at the opening and led throughout the game.

Joe Fulks poured in 22 points and Vern Gardner accounted for 18 in leading Philadelphia to victory over Sheboygan. The victory was the Warriors' first in their last five games and carried them into a fifth-place tie with Baltimore in the Eastern division.

The Denver Nuggets, burdened with the worst record in the National Basketball Association, apparently have reached new low in futility.

Although three of their players hit or passed the 20-point mark in scoring, the Nuggets went down to their thirty-first loss in 37 games last night at the hands of the Anderson Packers, 95 to 83.

Ken Sailors, one of the loop's leading scorers, scored 24 points for the Nuggets while teammates Dilliard Crocker and Duane Klueh tallied 21 and 20, respectively. However, it wasn't enough to stop the Packers, who erased a six-point deficit at the start of the second period and stayed in front the rest of the way.

Peterson Named Manager.

CHICAGO, Jan. 17 (AP)—The Chicago Cubs announced appointment of Bob Peterson, former pilot for two other Cub farm clubs, as playing manager of their Springfield (Mo.) entry in the Class C Western Association. Peterson, 29, a pitcher, the last two seasons managed the Springfield (Mass.) Cubs in the now-disbanded New England League.

John C. Grover Dies; Track Star at W. U. And Sports Official

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 17 (AP)—John C. Grover, 66, widely known in the Missouri valley area as a sports official, died of a heart ailment at his home yesterday.

A lawyer, Grover nursed his ailing heart after suffering an attack while watching a football game in 1936. He encouraged hundreds of persons with heart trouble to follow exact regimens prescribed by doctors.

He officiated at football games 25 years, before quitting that activity in 1936. He was president of the Missouri Valley A.A.U. from 1931 to 1937.

He was graduated in 1908 from Washington University in St. Louis, where he set track records in sprint events.

Boxer Suspended.

BOSTON, Jan. 17 (UP) — The Massachusetts State Boxing Commission indefinitely suspended Porfirio (Fillo) Prado for "physical reasons" today in co-operation with the National Boxing Association. The commission also announced reinstatement of suspended light heavyweight Lee Baldwin of New York.

Referee Faints in Ring; Substitute Finishes the Bout

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 17 (UP).

NEITHER Tiger Ted Lowry nor Bernie Reynolds went down in their 12-round fight here last night, but Referee Bill Conway did.

Gonzales Gains Tenth Victory Over Kramer

VENTURA, Calif., Jan. 17 (UP)—One-time amateur tennis champion Richard (Pancho) Gonzales, who has lost four-fifths of his matches in a current tour to leading pro Jack Kramer, blasted Kramer last night, 6-3, 6-3, with his jet-propelled serve.

Kramer consistently failed to break Gonzales's serve as the Los Angeles ace raised his tour victories to 10. The more experienced Kramer holds 40 wins over Gonzales.

In an opening singles match, Pancho Segura topped Frankie Parker, 8-6, 6-3. Kramer and Bobby Riggs teamed to beat Gonzales and Parker 4-6, 6-3, 6-3, in a doubles nightcap.

Sugar Robinson to Go To Florida for Vacation

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 17 (UP)—Welterweight Champion Ray Robinson today planned a Florida vacation in order to rest up for his re-scheduled non-title bout with George (Sugar) Costner at Convention Hall March 22.

The fight, originally scheduled for Feb. 22, was moved back a month when Robinson failed to pass a physical examination held under the supervision of the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission yesterday.

Dr. W. G. B. Terry, commission physician, said the examination proved Robinson was not in shape to go into "heavy training" for a big fight. Robinson then signed a new contract to meet the Camden (N. J.) challenger in March.

Hickey Revises Lineup to Step Up Voltage for Wichita's Shockers

Edwards, Gardiner To Start

By Robert Morrison

Wichita University's curious team, which has lost five of its last six games after winning its first six, will provide the opposition for the St. Louis University Billikens in a Missouri Valley Conference basketball game tonight at Kiel Auditorium, beginning at 9 p.m.

The Wichita Shockers, with a total season record of 7 and 5 and a sixth-place position in the conference with 1 and 2, will be the underdogs to the 7-4 Billikens, unbeaten in one league start.

But there are things in the Wichita record and things in the recent Billiken performance that make it seem possible that this contest could be close.

Billiken Coach Eddie Hickey is going to bat tonight with a new pair of starters joining the lineup that still will include the veterans Joe Ossola, Lou Lehman and Bob Schmidt.

Bill (6-7) Gardiner will get the opening call at the pivot position and Bill Edwards will be at forward, Hickey said, instead of the sophomores Bob Koch and Fred Kovar, who have held the positions since early in the season.

The triple defeat in the east, two games of which were lost to the No. 1 and No. 3 teams in the country, Holy Cross and Long Island U., caused the shift.

More Experience.

"We're not giving up on the other boys," Hickey explained. "We're just going to start with more experience, with boys who played Wichita last year. We merely desire to see if the new men will give us a better start."

A good healthy lead early in a basketball game makes a lot of difference sometimes, and it is possible the Bills could need one against Wichita.

Part of the puzzling Wichita picture is that the Shockers' single victory in the last six games was a decision over Oklahoma A. and M. It still is a feather in the cap to beat the Aggies, even though several have done it this season, including DePaul and Oklahoma City U.

A. and M. has latent power, as indicated in its 56-27 victory over Drake last night. So even Wichita's losses to Tulsa and Detroit have not dulled completely the Wichita feat of trimming the Aggies.

Hoosier Hotshot.

In addition to this, Wichita boasts one of the hottest shots in the country in John Friedersdorf, a 6-foot-1 sophomore from Franklin, Ind. This young man from the Hoosier basketball country has averaged 16.6 points in 12 games. He's the drive-in type of player and he hits for a high percentage. In the most recent national statistics which included 10 Wichita games, Friedersdorf was second in the country with a .543 field goal percentage. Since then he has dropped to .514, which still is terrific and still keeps Wichita high with a team hitting mark of .386.

Hank Hemingway, scoring at an average of 7.8 points per game, is the outcourt shooter Wichita depends on to keep the opposition from jamming the action under the bsket. None on the Wichita squad is taller than 6-5, so the Billikens should hold their own in height.

St. Louis, the only undefeated team besides Bradley in the conference, needs this victory to keep in step with the Braves, who walloped Detroit last night for Bradley's fifteenth victory in 17 games. A year ago the Bills beat Wichita 72-41 and 62-45, but things have not been quite the same for the Blue and White they were a year ago.

Former Kansas Star Is Signed by Blues

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 17 (AP)—Dick Gilman, football and baseball star at the University of Kansas, has signed a contract with the Kansas City Blues of the American Association.

Parke Carroll, business manager of the Blues, made the announcement yesterday. Gilman, a right-handed hurler, will go South with the Blues for spring training starting March 7.

Seeded Player Loses.

Only one top-seeded player was eliminated in the opening round of the Class B division of the Y.M.C.A. handball singles tournament. Frank Dubman, No. 4, was defeated by Marshall Denison, 3-21, 21-18, 21-12.

Ed Foster, seeded No. 1, beat Larry Kolker, 21-5, 21-6, and No. 2 seeded Bill Adler eliminated Nathan Bubman, 21-8, 21-2.

The results:

Gene Marks defeated Jerry Leavitt, 21-16, 21-12; Ed Foster defeated Larry Kolker, 21-5, 21-6; Lester Feldman won on default from Allan Holtzman; Bernard Yevelson defeated Sid Dubman, 21-8, 21-11; Don Lite defeated Louis Stein, 21-11, 21.7; Stanley Gerschon defeated Marvin Weinshelbaum, 21-10, 21-9; Marshall Dennison defeated Frank Dumban, 3-21, 21-18, 21-12; Manuel Finkelstein defeated Harry Dubman, 21-19, 21-7; Sig Goffstein defeated Gus Morganstern, 21-19, 21-9.

Pep Takes Down $21,522 In Knocking Out Riley

motor is running and will you please shut it off?"

An omen of what was to come was provided by Jack Callahan, a former manager of Riley, who announced that a horse named "Still Champ" had won a race in the afternoon. The horse ran at Sunshine Park, Tampa, Fla., where Pep has been spending the winter.

Willie was first to get into the ring. Wearing a red bathrobe with the lettering "Willie Pep" in white, he was accompanie dby Lou Viscusi, his manager; Bill Gore, his trainer, and Johnny Tocco, proprietor of the St. Louis Gymnasium, 1441 Cass avenue, where Pep and Riley trained.

Harry Kessler was the referee. Gene Farrel and Al Graff handled all the bouts as judges.

The knockout of Riley was the sixth which Pep scored in 10 title defenses. He has fought an even dozen championship fights, two of them as challenger.

Pep weighed the lightest he has been since he started boxing professionally. It was said the extra boxing he did Friday and Saturday largely for the benefit of good gymnasium crowds pared him down.

Promoter Hans Bernstein has another program scheduled this month but doesn't know whom he'll use. He has a contract with Sugar Ray Robinson but apparently Robinson hasn't recovered from the injury which caused him to cancel a fight here with Roy Miller a short time ago.

Fight on the Air, Thanks to Sellout

A SELLOUT for the Willie Pep-Charley Riley fight was assured at 5 p.m., and permission to broadcast the bout locally was granted to Station WIL. The fight was also "piped" out to Station WITC, Hartford, Conn., which is Pep's home town.

As told in the Post-Dispatch yesterday, Promoter Bernstein said that in the event of a sellout, permission for broadcasting would be granted.

$32,000 for Charity From Crosby Tourney

MONTEREY, Calif., Jan. 17 (AP)—The Bing Crosby invitational golf tournament, concluded Sunday, netted more than $32,000 for charities. Proceeds will be divided evenly between the Monterey county community chest and the Sister Kenny polio fund.

Sponsored by Crosby, the tournament costs the crooning movie star some $25,000 out of his own pocket. Each year he puts up $10,000 for the professionals to shoot at; pays for the trophies for the amateurs and foots many other bills.

Last year the event netted $18,000 for charity.

Holy Cross Rated No. 1 Five; Bradley Climbs to Fourth Place

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (AP)—A new team—unbeaten Holy Cross—holds the No. 1 spot today as the country's best basketball team in the third weekly Associated Press poll.

The Crusaders from Worcester, Mass., climbed from fifth in displacing St. John's of Brooklyn by a close 1037 to 992 points.

Holy Cross, winner of 13 games, drew 47 first-place votes out of 128 cast by sports writers and sportscasters throughout the country.

The Brooklyn five (14-1) got 35 votes for first place. Right behind in third came Long Island U. (12-1) with 27 ballots for No. 1.

Here's the breakdown by sections on the top 10: East 6, Midwest 2, South 1 and Far West 1. On the second 10 the South placed 5, Midwest 4 and the East 1.

Bradley (15-2) jumped into fourth place from last week's sixth spot. The Braves received three votes for first, the same number as Kentucky (10-2). Kentucky dropped from second to fifth because of its upset by Tennessee Saturday.

Duquesne (12-0) moved from eighth to sixth, getting four first-place nods. The Dukes and Holy Cross are the only undefeated terms rated in the first 30.

Army (5-0) is the third and last major five still unbeaten. The Cadets weren't ranked.

Indiana (11-2) dropped from last week's fourth spot to No. 8, following its losses to Michigan and Iowa. The Hoosiers got three votes for first. U.C.L.A. (11-4) moved one notch up to ninth. The Pacific Coast quintet also received three ballots for first.

LaSalle (9-2) of Philadelphia is the only newcomer to the first 10, taking over tenth from North Carolina (11-3). The Southerners dropped to twelfth. LaSalle received one vote for first.

The only other quintet winning first place mention is thirteenth-ranked Kansas State (11-3) with two. C.C.N.Y. was the only team of the first 10 that did not register with a No. 1 vote.

The top 10 teams (first place ballots in parentheses, and records including Monday night's games; first place worth 10 points, second place nine points and so on down the line):

TEAM.	Record.	Points.

The Wheeling Downs (W. Va.) racing track will operate six more days, from July 22 to Sept. 30, than it did in 1949, running from July 22 to Sept. 30.

Heart Attack Fatal to Rudy Hulswitt, Former Member of Cardinals

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 17 (AP)—Rudy Hulswitt, 69, old-time big league baseball player, manager and scout, suffered a heart attack and died in the federal building here yesterday.

Hulswitt broke into baseball with the Danville (Ill.) team in 1899. After playing for Newport News and Portsmouth, Va., he went to the Phillies.

He also played for Columbus, the Cincinnati Reds and the St. Louis Cardinals. His first managerial job was with Jersey City in 1914. He later was manager of Columbus, Mobile, Joplin and Danville.

Dozen Austrian Skiers In World Title Meet

VIENNA, Jan. 17 (AP)—The Austrian Ski Association yesterday named five women and seven men to compete in the world championships at Lake Placid, N.Y., Jan. 30-Feb. 5, and Aspen, Colo., Feb. 13-19.

The women's squad includes Erika Mahringer, expected to be a contender for world honors. Other women skiers are Anneliese Schuhproxauf, Trude Jochum-Baisser, Dagmar Rom and Resi Hammerer.

The men's team is made up of Franz Gabl, Edi Mall, Hans Hogler, Christian Pravda, Englebert Haider, Walter Schuster and Egon Schoepf.

The team, accompanied by coaches Toni Seelos and Pepi Gabl, will fly to the United States Jan. 25.

Grid Officials Just Talk for 6½ Long Hours

PINEHURST, N. C., Jan. 17 (UP)—The rules committee of the National Collegiate Athletic Association pondered football's two-platoon system yesterday but reached no decision after a six and a half hour session.

Committee Chairman William J. Bingham of Harvard said no final decision would be made until tomorrow or Thursday, when results of the closed sessions would be announced.

Members were just "feeling their way," Bingham said.

The Football Coaches' Association rules committee asked that the N.C.A.A. continue at least one year the two-platoon scheme which allows substitutions en masse during times out or when the ball changes hands.

The coaches recommended loosening the rules even more, to allow a single player to be substituted between plays if he can get on the field in 25 seconds. This was expected to help limited-manpower schools, which could pull out their star for a rest.

If the change is adopted, the coaches suggested three times out per half instead of four.

Other proposed changes would shift officials so they can see offsides better, forbid an offensive blocker from striking an opponent on the head, face or neck with locked hands, and advance the coin tossing to 15 minutes before kickoff so starting lineups can be announced to the fans.

Lee Keyser to be Dean Of 'Faculty' at Browns School at Pine Bluff

Lee Keyser will head a "faculty" of at least 12 baseball teachers when the Browns annual school of baseball players opens at Pine Bluff, Ark., March 13. The school will run through March 22.

On Keyser's staff will be managers of 10 minor league clubs in the Browns's chain, and a number of the parent club's scouts. Keyser, as secretary of the Browns's minor league system, will be "dean" of the school.

Players, limited to 100 in number, will be quartered on the campus of the Old Army air school, Grider Field. Application for admission to the school should be addressed to Keyser at Sportsman's Park.

Sanford-Brown Wins.

Arnold Biezer scored 28 points for Eden, but it was not enough as Sanford-Brown College defeated the Seminarians, 60 to 48, at Webster Groves last night. John Jones led Sanford-Brown with 18 points.

Mt. Vernon Tops, Flora Second in Illinois Ratings

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 17 (UP)—Mount Vernon, Flora and West Aurora today held on to their one-two-three positions in the United Press rating of the top 15 high school basketball teams in downstate Illinois.

The other teams were shuffled quite a bit this week, however, and two new teams appeared in the select group—Argo, which is undefeated in 13 starts, and Freeport. Argo appeared in the No. 11 spot and Freeport was rated fifteenth in downstate Illinois. Quincy and Taylorville dropped out of the top group.

Mount Vernon's defending state champions—rolling along with 15 consecutive wins—were the unanimous choice to head the ratings for the sixth week in a row. Flora still held a slight edge over West Aurora to remain in second place.

Rock Island made the biggest jump of the week, hurdling four places from last week's standing to land in the No. 4 spot. Centralia dropped to fifth.

Ottawa took the longest tumble, skidding six places to land in the No. 13 groove which was vacated by Wood River, No. 12 this week.

Elgin, Paris and Danville each moved up three spots. Elgin took over sixth place, dropping Hillsboro into seventh. Paris took over the eighth spot and Danville grabbed ninth.

Decatur, following its defeat at the hands of Pekin, tumbled five places to the No. 10 ledge, and Crystal Lake, whose unbeaten string was stopped at 15 by Arlington Saturday, skidded from tenth to fourteenth.

Wood River, leader in the Southwestern Illinois Conference, climbed from thirteenth to twelfth place in the balloting. (In the Associated Press poll, Wood River is fourteenth.)

The United Press ratings (last week's ratings in parentheses):

Chaminade and Coyle Win in League Games

Chaminade upset St. Francis de Sales, 45 to 38, in one of two Catholic League basketball games played yesterday. In the other, Coyle registered its first victory of the season by beating Mercy, 39 to 33.

Chaminade trailed at half time, 20 to 15, but rallied to overtake St. Francis. Fred Evens was Chaminade's high point man with 11.

In a non-league affair Pacific defeated St. Clair, 55 to 45.

Wood River and Hillsboro Teams Match 12-1 Marks

Somebody's record is bound to suffer as Wood River, twelfth in Illinois, plays host tonight to Hillsboro, No. 7. Each team has won all but one of 13 games.

Hillsboro, runner-up to Mount Vernon in the state final last year, has lost only to Edwardsville this season, and that was a one-point decision. Wood River's lone setback came at the hands of East Rockford, by a two-point margin, in the East St. Louis holiday tournament.

DeSoto Bowlers Win.

Normandy Ends Granite City's String on Mat

The wrestlers from Granite City High suffered their first defeat in 54 interschool matches yesterday as Normandy High gained four falls and four decisions in a 32-to-16 triumph on the losers' floor. Granite City had not been beaten since the 1943-44 season.

Normandy grapplers who pinned their opponents were Lester Anselmo, 95 pounds; Bob Crowley, 145; Roland Aubuchon, 133, and Alan Waldron, 120. The victory gave the St. Louis county team a season record of eight wins, two losses and a tie.

Granite City will have an opportunity for revenge when it visits Normandy, Feb. 1.

The results:

95 POUNDS—Anselmo, N., pinned Kuesterer.
103 POUNDS—Whitney defeated Lemaster.
112 POUNDS—Whiteker, G., won from Lingenfelter.
120 POUNDS—Waldron, N., pinned Shelton.

175 POUNDS—McCuire, G., won from Newbold.
HEAVYWEIGHT—Barnhart, G., pinned Brown.

Ferguson Meet Draws 11 Teams

Champion Jennings has been seeded No. 1 for the eighteenth annual Ferguson High School basketball tournament for 11 county schools. The event will start with four games next Monday and end Saturday when the final is scheduled. Tuesday and Thursday will be open dates.

Berkeley and Eureka will start the ball rolling with a 4:30 Monday game. Maryland Heights will oppose Fairview in a quarterfinal game at 8:15. Wednesday, Affton will meet the Riverview-Mehlville winner at 6, Hancock will oppose the Maryland Heights-Valley Park winner at 7:15 and Jennings will play the Berkeley-Eureka winner at 8:30.

In addition to Jennings, Affton, Hancock, Fairview and Ferguson were seeded. Jennings won the title in 1941 as well as '49, but Brentwood, now a member of the football-playing Suburban group along with Ferguson, shows the most triumphs—1933, '34, '36, '44, '45 and '46. Ferguson won in 1935, '37, '38 and '42. Eureka triumphed in '39 and '40, Mehlville in '43, Bayless in '47 and Hancock in '48.

Buddy Kerr Signs; 'Well Pleased'

Sid Gordon Also in Fold Of Braves

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (UP)—Buddy Kerr, the Boston Braves' new No. 1 shortstop, predicted today his ex-boss, Leo Durocher, will be extremely sorry next sum- for a faux pas he pulled this winter.

"I'm convinced," said the lanky 28-year-old former Giant infielder, "that Durocher made a mistake when he traded Sid Gordon, Willard Marshall, Sam Webb and myself to Boston last month.

"Not only do I think he made a mistake," Kerr grinned, "but I'm determined to prove he did once the season starts.

"I'm sure the Braves won't have much trouble finishing higher than the Giants. Boston is a better ball club all around."

Both Kerr and Gordon signed 1950 contracts with the Braves yesterday. Beaming over the new pact—obviously bigger and better than the one he received with the Giants last year—Kerr declared, "You can say I'm well pleased . . . very well pleased."

The sandy-haired Kerr, who came to Boston in a deal which moved Alvin Dark and Eddie Stanky from the Braves to the Giants, was used sparingly by Durocher last season. Shuttling between the bench and the infield, he compiled a .209 average in 90 games, his poorest mark since his major league debut in 1943.

"Personally," observed Kerr, "I have nothing against Durocher. The only thing that made me unhappy with him is that he didn't see fit to play me regularly. You know as well as I do that you can't do any good sitting around on the bench.

"As far as I'm concerned, I'm still improving. I'm confident I'll have a good year this time . . . maybe one of my best. Who knows? There was one thing I was sure of and that was the fact I still could play regularly.

"I'll show Leo what I mean this year with the Braves."

While Kerr and Gordon were coming into line, John J. Quinn, general manager of the Braves, said he also had sent a 1950 contract to Marshall but the ex-Giant outfielder requested a few days "to think it over."

The Giants, meanwhile, weren't idle either. They announced the receipt of signed contracts from Pitchers Hank Behrman and Roger Bowman. Behrman, the stringy ex-Brooklyn right-hander, is being counted on heavily by Durocher for relief chores. The 22-year-old Bowman of Amsterdam, N. Y., won 15 and lost nine with Jersey City of the International League last season.

The signing of Pitchers Ted Gray and Hal White brought the total number of contracts in the Detroit Tigers' safe to five. Gray, a little lefthander, won 10 and lost 10 with Detroit last year while White had a 10 and eight record with Toledo of the American Association. Detroit players who signed previously are Pitcher Virgil Trucks, Infielder Don Kolloway and Outfielder Charlie Keller.

Kellner's Brother Signs.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 17 (AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics announced five veterans and two rookies have signed 1950 contracts.

Eddie Joost, the All-Star shortstop, put his name on a two-year contract last spring, reportedly for $20,000 a year.

Arnold Portocarrero, New York school boy pitcher who won 30 straight games, and Walter Kellner, brother of Alex Kellner who won 20 games for the A's last season, signed their contracts before returning home last fa l.

Today the signed contracts of Alex Kellner, Outfielder Wally Moses, Pitcher Carl Scheib and Catcher Joe Astroth were tucked away in a pigeon hole of Shibe Park.

Waitkus Inks Contract.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 17 (UP) (UP)—Eddie Waitkus has signed his 1950 contract with the Philadelphia Phillies, President Bob Carpenter announced today.

The Phillies also signed Outfielder William Loos, who played with the Portland, Me., farm team in the New England Class B League last season.

Waitkus, a first baseman, joined the Phillies last year. Midway in the season he was shot and injured seriously by a demented girl in Chicago and sidelined for the remainder of the playing year.

Olmo Wants More Money.

SAN JUAN, P.R., Jan. 17 (UP)—Outfield Luis Olmo announced today that he was returning unsigned a contract calling for $12,000 to the Boston Braves.

The former Mexican League player, who was obtained by the Braves in a deal with the Brooklyn Dodgers this winter, did not say how much more he would demand. He said merely that the one he had received was "unacceptable."

Olmo batted .304 in 37 games for the Dodgers last season.

One for Book! One Substitute In Big 10 Game

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (AP) — Ohio State stands today as the basketball team to beat in the Big Ten Conference.

The Buckeyes (9-2) are at the top of the league standings following an easy 74-58 victory over strong Michigan (8-5) last night. Forward Dick Schnittker scored 28 points in leading Ohio State to its third Big Ten success.

Bradley rolled to its fifteenth victory in 17 games in defeating Detroit, 71-50, in a Missouri Valley game. Charlie Grover scored 20 points for the winners.

Kentucky came back strong from its Saturday night defeat by Tennessee. The Wildcats whipped Georgia Tech, 61-47, after a stubborn battle. The Engineers held an early lead in the second half. Kentucky (10-2) ranks fifth nationally.

Wisconsin (10-3) twice overcame 10-point deficits to defeat Minnesota, 57-54, at Madison. The Gophers (9-3) led, 54-53, in the final minute before Wisconsin's Danny Markham dropped in a goal and two free throws. Dick Means of Minnesota led the scorers with 19 points.

The game was unusual in that only 11 men played. Wisconsin sent in only one sub while Minnesota's starting five stayed in the whole 40 minutes.

Western Kentucky (10-4) avenged an earlier one-point defeat with a 25-point rout of Cincinnati, 84-59. It was Cincinnati's second loss against seven victories. Bowling Green (12-6) romped over Ohio University, 74-54, for its sixty-second consecutive home-floor success. Louisville (15-2) romped over Georgetown (Ky.), 94-63.

Kansas State, Big Seven kingpin, set a conference scoring record in walloping Iowa State, 99-57. Rick Harman scored 16 for K-State, but Iowa State's Sonny Wilhelm topped pointmakers with 22. In another Big Seven game, Colorado (9-3) defeated Nebraska, 72-59. It was the 10-4 Cornhuskers first league loss.

Purdue upset Iowa (9-3) to end its consecutive losing streak at six. The score: 64-55.

Oklahoma A. & M., not a power this year, trounced Drake, 56-27.

Illinois (9-4) walloped Northwestern (8-4), 76-50. Indiana (11-2) stepped outside the Big Ten to belt Butler, 57-49.

Lafayette upset Temple, 64-41. It was Lafayette's sixty-first straight victory at home.

200-Point Lead For Mikan in Basket Scoring

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (AP)—George Mikan, one-man scoring gang of the Minneapolis Lakers, today held a 200-point lead in the National Basketball Association's individual scoring race.

The 6-foot-10 Minneapolis center has netted 1075 points in 38 games. Playing two fewer contests, Indianapolis's sensational rookie, Alex Groza, has hit 875 points.

Mikan has connected for 369 field goals and 337 fouls for an average of 28.3 points per contest. Groza's average was 24.3.

Joe Fulks of Philadelphia placed third in the scoring tables with 587 points, including games of Sunday, Jan. 15.

Among the playmakers, New York's Dick McGuire led with 178 assists, 10 more than Andy Phillip of Chicago.

Eight weeks and five fights later at Coral Gables, Fla., Freddie fought Petey Sarron a 15-rounder for the title and lost on points. . . . But in between winning and losing the crown, as noted, he had battled 82 times, several of his fights being 12 and 15 round events. . . . The best men of his weight were among his opponents.

Most of his bouts of course were 10-round, overweight affairs. . . . He lost five decisions beside that in Mexico all to outstanding men, in this country and abroad, some of whom outweighed him. . . . But he still was the busiest champion in all history as far as our memory goes back, not even excepting those eager beavers of no-decision times Al McCoy and Bat Levinsky, former kings of the middleweight realm.

In all Miller fought 231 battles during 13 years in the ring. . . . One day in the year 1940, he opened up a new book to start his fourteenth campaign. . . . He was matched with Herschel Joyner in Cincinnati and Miller the old timer—he was 29, then—was knocked out, the first time in his career.

And the last. . . . Like a sensible man he put away his gloves and went to work in new fields. . . . Today this fine fighter is a forgotten man, pugilistically, except in Nat Fleischer's Ring Record Book.

HENRY J. ALLEN DIES; KANSAS G.O.P. LEADER

Ex-Governor and Senator Noted as Party Orator 20 Years Ago.

WICHITA, Kan., Jan. 17 (AP)—Henry J. Allen, former United States Senator and former Governor of Kansas, died today. He was 81 years old and had been ill for several weeks.

Henry J. Allen

A leading Republican party orator at the height of his political career, Allen had been less active the last 20 years.

A newspaper editor and publisher in Kansas for 50 years, he was chairman of the board of the Wichita Beacon at the time of his death.

He died at his home in the Hillcrest apartments here. Survivors are his wife, a daughter, Mrs. Julius Holmes, wife of the counselor to United States Ambassador Lewis Douglas in London; and three grandchildren.

A decoration from the British Government climaxed Allen's long public career. Mrs. Allen also received the King's medal for "service in the cause of freedom." The Allens were leaders in "Bundles for Britain" and in work of the "Save the Children Foundation" with its program of nurseries and shelters for British youngsters.

Alert, witty, and not always a conformist, he first sought the Kansas governorship in 1912 as a Theodore Roosevelt Progressive—and lost. As a Republican he won the governorship in 1918, was re-elected two years later.

He went to the United States Senate in 1929 to fill the unexpired term of the late Charles Curtis after the latter was elected Vice President under former President Herbert Hoover. Allen was defeated in his try for re-election to the Senate, losing to George McGill, a Democrat.

His term as governor of Kansas were marked by drastic legislation including the industrials relations court of that state, a subject which kept organized labor in a fighting mood for more than a decade. The law later was held unconstitutional.

One of the most sensational episodes of Allen's tenure as governor occurred in November 1922, when he ordered the arrest of his old friend William Allen White, well known author-editor of Emporia, Kan. White had displayed a card in the window of his newspaper office expressing sympathy for striking railroad shop workers. This action, the governor contended, was in violation of the Industrial Court Act as it encouraged strikes, which were forbidden by this law.

Some weeks later the governor dismissed the case over the protests of White who wanted to go to trial.

HOUSE TO GET GRIM PICTURE OF U.S. SCHOOLS

children were found attending classes in a barn, and were required to bring their own chairs. Cans, buckets and boxes were used for this purpose. The school teacher used a packing case for a desk.

In a separate report Chairman Burke will make on school facilities on military bases, he concludes as follows:

I would like to recommend that should any further hearings on this problem be necessary, a special committee of newspaper editors, commentators and columnists be authorized to have the same 'high old time at taxpayers' expense' they said we had."

A EUROPEAN REPORT—A gloomy report on Marshall Plan results in Europe is in the hands of the State Department and Central Intelligence Agency.

The unpublished document was submitted by a high Intelligence official who spent wto years in Europe. He recently returned from the Paris meeting of the Organization for European Economic Co-operation (OEEC). Some of his findings are as follows:

Western European economy is "stagnating" despite large-scale United States aid, and the outlook for the future is not promising. Political and economic crises will occur in a number of Marshall Plan countries.

Many Western European officials have decided that business leaders no longer favor the Marshall Plan because it has increased steel, oil and other production in Europe. Demands by Congressional leaders for a big cut in the ECA budget are being "interpreted" abroad as meaning that United States business has become hostile to the Marshall Plan.

Members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee have heard about this report, but so far have been unable to get a copy. The CIA says it is "top secret."

POLITICAL ENTITY OF COMMONWEALTH PRESERVED IN TALKS

lombo were directed toward finding means of stopping Soviet Communism, and the delegations agreed, in general, on how that could best be undertaken. Most of the proposals for accomplishing this purpose require, if they are to succeed, the continued cooperation of the United States, and the delegates at Colombo agreed, in general, that the commonwealth should continue to seek that co-operation.

Centrifugal force has carried two nations beyond the political periphery of the commonwealth: Eire and Burma no longer are members. The others, though, have now passed another milestone in the development of their still common destinies. They are not all perfectly in step, but they are all together.

BEHIND-SCENE STORY OF TURN TO RED CHINA

Obviously, it is wise for the present to withdraw our consular staffs from China. Obviously also, the American decision about recognition must be delayed until the positions have clarified and circumstances are favorable.

If this happens, however, Mao Tse-tung's government should b recognized for what it is—the established government of China—without any implication of appeasement or approbation.

When they do not fear to be overheard by Congress, the foregoing is the analysis of the problem of a majority of the experts. To most realistic observers, the analysis seems completely convincing. This is true even of the observers who believe (as these correspondents strongly believe) that Secretary Acheson was talking polite nonsense when he argued, in effect, that the Communists were always what used to be called "the wave of the future" in China.

Other Factors Favoring Action.

Recent events, moreover, have vastly strengthened the practical arguments for opening relations with the Chinese Communist government. Behind Acheson's hints about Titosim in China, there is solid intelligence which the Secretary did not disclose.

On the one hand, it is probable that Mao Tse-tung's visit to Moscow constitutes one of the great dramas in the whole history of the Communist party. The Chinese have a much more specific complaint against the Russians than Acheson indicated.

At the close of the war, Moscow sought to gain sure control of Manchuria, by sending out Mao Tse-tung's old and bitter enemy, Li Li-san, to direct affairs there. Li Li-san, who had been in refuge from Mao Tse-tung in Moscow since the 1930s, for a time was a sort of viceroy of Manchuria. But with Chinese smoothness, Li Li-san has now been replaced by another viceroy loyal to Mao Tse-tung. Despite this, the Russians have continued the system of taking all Manchuria's grain production, in return for machinery which is never delivered.

At Moscow, the Kremlin is reported to be pressing Mao Tse-tung for acceptance of a standard satellite status, on the Polish or Romanian model. Mao Tse-tung, in turn, is reported to be pressing for return of the industrial booty stolen by the Russians from Manchuria; for re-establishment of Chinese control of the chief Manchurian cities; and for permission to direct China's affairs as local necessities dictate. The divergence is very wide.

Control of China Proper.

Furthermore, although the Soviets are in military control of Manchuria, the Chinese Communist party still retains military control of China proper. And the party apparatus has not as yet been seriously penetrated by the M.V.D. In short, in some degree, and relative at least to the affairs of China proper, Mao Tse-tung is able to speak as an equal to the masters of the Kremlin. To these reports of the Kremlin conversations, one must add the even more solid evidence of what has now happened in Japan. Sanzo Nosaka, the real power in the Japanese Communist party, spent the years fro mthe mid-1930s onward with Mao Tse-tung, whose close friend he is. When the war ended, he was sent to Japan to re-establish the apparatus of the Japanese Communist party, and to transmit to the party the Kremlin line of that period. Evidently he established an apparatus personally dominated by himself. He has now been publicly denounced by the Cominform.

The Japanese Communist party, in reply to this denunciation, has acknowledged past errors. But the Japanese Communists have neither agreed to change their present line, which was what the Cominform was attacking, nor promised to hurl Nosaka into outer darkness. Here is Titoism in Japan, led by one of Mao Tse-tung's intimates. Add the two groups of facts together. The importance of retaining the power of maneuver in China can hardly be denied, even although it must be admitted that the odds against real Chinese Titoism are still heavy. But the realities of the present and the future must not be judged in the distorting light of the follies of the past.

ARCHDUKE CHARLES OF HAPSBURG WEDS BELGIAN PRINCESS

BELOIEL, Belgium, Jan. 17 (UP)—Archduke Charles of Hapsburg and 26-year-old Belgian Princess Yolande de Ligne were married here today in civil and Roman Catholic ceremonies.

More than 100 guests from all over Europe gathered for the nuptials joining the fourth son of the late Emperor Charles of Austria-Hungary and the brunette daughter of Prince Eugene de Ligne, Belgian Ambassador to India, and Princess Phillipe de Noailles. The bride wore a satin wedding gown with quilted bodice, long sleeves and a waist-length veil, once worn by Empress Eugenie, wife of Napoleon III.

The newlyweds planned to leave for Paris late today en route to Florida for their honeymoon. They will make their home in New York, where the archduke works for the Rockefeller Foundation.

Belgian Primate Cardinal Joseph Van Roey officiated at the religious rites in the 120-room chateau belonging to the bride's father. The civil ceremony was performed in town hall.

Heading the guest list were the bridegroom's mother, the Empress Zita, and her son, Otto, pretender to the throne of Austria. Others present were Princess Elizabeth of Lichtenstein, Prince Xavier of Bourbon-Parma, brother of Empress Zita, and his wife, Princess Magdalena; the Grand Duchess Charlotte of Luxembourg; Prince Louis of Bourbon, brother of Empress Zita; Prince Louis's wife, Marie of Savoy, daughter of the late King Victor Emmanuel of Italy.

Dan Hoan to Run for Senate.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 17 (UP)—Daniel Webster Hoan, 68 years old, former Socialist Mayor of Milwaukee for a record 24 years, announced today he will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator in the 1950 primary election.

GRAPHIC ARTS GUEST WARNS OF DISUNITY

Printing Executive Says Forces Within Threaten U.S. Way of Life.

A warning that Americans "must shed our complacency or we shall forfeit our liberty" was voiced last night by Paul C. Clovis, Chicago printing and publishing executive, who addressed the Printing Week dinner of the graphic arts industry at the Sheraton Hotel.

"Today our nation is threatened from within by forces just as real and far more insidious than any belligerent display of military might," he said. "It is clear that if we continue to permit prejudices to be fanned into hatreds and class to be set against class, race against race, and employe against employer to an extent which robs us of our unity, and, as a result, of our united strength, we shall reach a point which finds us unable longer to withstand the combined attacks on our system from without and within."

Clovis, who is president of the Twentieth Century Press of Chicago, listed six things that must be done by individuals to preserve the American way of life. He said they must communicate their convictions broadly, support worthy organizations, watch for disloyalty everywhere and particularly among teachers, keep the graphic arts industry from being used for subversive ends, exercise their right to vote and keep informed on public affairs.

"How much bloodletting can our economy stand," Clovis asked, "in the form of unnecessary strikes and subsidies and outright gifts to pressure groups—not to mention our foreign gratuities or the billions wasted by lack of unity in our current military planning?"

MAN HELD IN TULSA ROBBERY IS IDENTIFIED IN 2ND HOLDUP

William Meininger, held at East St. Louis with his brother, Frank, in the $20,500 robbery of a jewelry store in Tulsa, Okla., last Saturday, has been identified in the $610 holdup of the South End Hardware Co., 2861 Gravois avenue, last Dec. 22, police said today.

John Gude Jr., co-owner of the hardware store, and Robert Diehl, an employe, viewed the Meininger brothers at the East St. Louis jail and identified William as one of three robbers who held them up. Two other men, Thomas E. Reese and William D. Fleury, both of 2331 Albion place, are under charges in the robbery.

William Meininger, who denied participation in the hardware store holdup, was arrested with his brother, Frank, when they alighted from a bus in East St. Louis last Saturday night. Each was armed with a pistol, but they disclaimed ownership of a suitcase containing 227 rings and $500 cash. A federal warrant charging them with violation of the National Stolen Property Act was issued yesterday.

TEXAS RANGERS WITNESSES IN JERSEYVILLE MURDER TRIAL

Two Texas Rangers were among the first witnesses for the state at the opening of the murder trial in circuit court at Jerseyville, Ill., today of Leonard Hawkins, who fled to Texas after Albert E. Clark, his traveling companion, was shot to death near Jerseyville last October.

Capt. R. A. Crowder, Ranger from Lubbock, Tex., testified that Hawkins had a revolver when arrested at Middlewater, Tex. Capt. Crowder said the prisoner told him Clark was killed with the weapon. Ranger R. C. Johnson and Deputy Sheriff Elmer Burnett, of Dalhart, Tex., told the jury Hawkins signed a statement that Clark was shot accidentally when he drew the revolver in an argument over a woman hitchhiker the pair had picked up. In a later statement Hawkins said there was an argument over whether the pair should drive east for the World Series, the witnesses related.

Clark's body, shot in the head, was found Oct. 12 south of Jerseyville. His automobile and wallet were missing. Hawkins was driving the car when arrested in Texas. He waived extradition and returned to Illinois.

CONTROL OF STAGEHANDS' UNION HERE IS RETURNED TO LOCAL

International officers of the AFL Stagehands Union returned control of Local 6 of the union to its officers at a meeting last night presided over by Richard Walsh, international president.

Members of the local lost control to the international in 1946 when John P. Nick, ex-convict labor racketeer, and his faction sought to gain control of the local. It was Walsh who ordered the original suspension of local autonomy. Frank Stickling, international representative who was named to manage the union in the emergency, attended the meeting last night at Musicians' Hall, 3535 Pine boulevard.

LeRoy Upton, president, and Elmer V. Moran, business agent of the union in 1946, were restored to their offices when no opposition to their nominations appeared last night. Upton and Moran signed the original petition asking the international to take over management of the local. Nick did not attend the meeting.

POPE IS SUFFERING FROM RHEUMATISM; CONTINUES DUTIES

VATICAN CITY, Jan. 17 (AP)—Pope Pius XII is suffering from rheumatism and has for several days given up his daily walks in the Vatican garden, a Vatican source reported today.

However, the Pope continues to follow his rigorous schedule of work and audiences, increased by the 1950 Holy Year.

21,761 PATIENTS LAST YEAR AT BARNES HOSPITAL GROUP

For the first time in the history of Barnes Hospital and the affiliated McMillan and St. Louis Maternity Hospitals, the number of admissions last year failed to show a substantial increase over the previous year, the annual report of the trustees disclosed today.

The 21,761 patients admitted last year were four fewer than in 1948. This fact, together with a waiting list, indicates the hospital is operating at full capacity, the trustees said. They noted that a low average hospital stay of 10.71 days per patient helped to account for the high occupancy rate of 89 per cent. Patients unable to pay anything received 12,361 days of care at a cost estimated at $191,000.

With expenses of $3,583,694 and income of $3,286,696, the hospital incurred an operating deficit of $296,998. This was reduced to a net deficit of $92,026 by income from endowment and other sources.

Among the developments noted in the last year was introduction at St. Louis Maternity Hospital of the "rooming in" plan whereby the mother keeps her baby in a crib at her bedside and feeds, changes and bathes him.

HEADS ONE SPECIAL GIFT UNIT IN CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL DRIVE

Edward E. Haverstick Jr. investment broker of the firm of Smith, Moore & Co., has been named chairman of one of three special gift divisions of the St. Louis Children's Hospital building fund campaign, it was announced today by Warren T. Chandler, drive chairman.

The campaign, for a $2,000,000 addition to the hospital at 500 South Kingshighway and extensive remodeling, with begin next April 3.

Haverstick will be assisted by Mrs. Robert Brookings Smith, corresponding secretary of the hospital board of managers, and State Representative Lawrence E. Roos. Heads of the other, two special gifts divisions are Henry Hitchcock and James Conzelman.

RICHMOND HEIGHTS OPENS BIDS FOR 50 PARKING METERS

Five bids for about 50 proposed new parking meters, opened last night by the Richmond Heights City Council, ranged from $54 each by the Vogelsong Products Corp. of Emeryville, Calif., to $66 each by the Dual Parking Meter Co. of Canton, O. The proposals were taken under advisement.

Merchants have requested the installation of meters on grounds that all-day parking interferes with the parking of customers' automobiles. The council has before it a proposal that meters be installed on the south side of the 6300 block of Clayton road, both sides of the 7200 block of Oakland avenue and both sides of the 1000 block of Yale avenue.

EIGHT BOYS, 12 TO 14, ADMIT ROBBING 10 FILLING STATIONS

Eight Negro boys, from 12 to 14 years old, have admitted to police breaking into 10 filling stations since Jan. 3 and obtaining about $100 cash and a small amount of merchandise.

Five of the youths were arrested yesterday by Patrolman Major Blancett when trying to break into a filling station at 1416 Locust street. They implicated three others who were picked up by Special Officers William O'Fallon and Thomas McDermott.

Largest of the burglaries they admitted was at a filling station at 1029 Delmar boulevard where they took $41 from vending machines and $1 from the cash register, police said. All were held for juvenile authorities.

U.S. STEEL TAKES LEAD; BROAD STOCK UPTURN

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (AP) — The stock market today carried out the most decisive rally since prices tumbled last Thursday.

U.S. Steel with turnover of 37,600 shares and close of 27?, up a full point, was the day's individual leader in volume of trade.

Demand slackened late in the day but final quotations were still up fractions to more than a point.

Sales of 1,790,000 shares compared with 1,460,000 yesterday.

Sales first hour 380,000; second, 470,000; third, 240,000; fourth 290,000; fifth, 410,000.

Sloan said that a buyers' market for cars had not yet arrived and that G.M. planned to increase output substantially in all divisions during the first half of 1950. He added, though, that a buyers' market would definitely arrive in the second half of this year.

Corporate bonds, including rail obligations, moved narrowly. U. S. Governments held steady in over-the-counter dealings.

Higher in the Curb at times were McCord Corp., National Bellas Hess, National Union Radio, Niagara Hudson Power, Pancoastal Oil, United Light, Kaiser-Frazer, Fairchild Engine, Electric Bond & Share, Cities Service, and Barium Steel.

Traders were evidently not very concerned about the spreading soft coal strike, possibly on the theory that governmental intervention will avert a dangerous stoppage of production. Robert N. Denham, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, may ask a federal court to enjoin John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers some time this week.

The market's halting efforts at recovery during the past few sessions have made only a minor dent in the severe losses taken in last Thursday's tumble.

There is still considerable question in the financial district whether the Thursday shakeout has run its course or whether the market is due for another selling jolt. Despite differences of opinion on this subject, majority opinion inclines to the theory that the long-term pull is upward.

Many traders figure that their next cue will be supplied by President Truman when he sends to Congress a special message on taxes. The message may reach Congress this week.

Higher prices were paid for General Motors, Chrysler, Studebaker, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, Nickel Plate, Atlantic Coast Line, Southern Railway, Southern Pacific, Goodrich, U. S. Rubber, Motorola, Zenith, Philco, American Telephone and Du Pont.

British Governments Buoyant.

LONDON, Jan. 17 (AP)—British government bonds were buoyant in a quiet session of the London Stock Exchange today.

Industrial shares were weak. Selected gold mining issues closed with good gains.

Japanese bonds, which have been a center of speculative play on peace treaty rumors, were mixed. The 1930s closed at £62¼ up 1¾, but the 1910s finished at £37¼, off ¼, and the 1907s at £49½, off ¼.

NEW YORK BOND PRICES

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (AP)—Railroad bonds overcame a slump in early trading today and pushed ahead to a general higher price level.

By the beginning of the final trading hour, gains had built up a two-to-one lead over losses and a fair selection of rail issues had advanced a point or more.

A rising ripple of demand sparked trading to a much faster pace than yesterday.

Liveliest corner of the corporate market outside the rail list was that of capital airlines obligations. The debentures 4s were up 3 points and the income 4s ahead late.

This followed action of the airline's directors in authorizing payment of interest on outstanding debentures due next April 1 and Oct. 1 and specified sinking fund payments due May 1.

Most Missouri Pacific obligations tended slightly lower, although one or two issues registered small gains.

Long-term U. S. Treasury bonds rebounded from losses of the past several days, some issues boosting their bid prices by 2-32s of a point in quiet over-the-counter trading.

GRAINS SHOW GAINS ON CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Jan. 17 (AP)—Grains advanced modestly at the Board of Trade today, on some commercial buying and short covering. Wheat found support in reports that Spain had negotiated a loan of $12,000,000 with which to purchase wheat from United States and Canada.

Some of the commercial buying was traced to cash houses, and was thought to represent purchases against sales of flour to domestic trade.

Corn receipts from the country were light, placed at 53 cars. Cash dealers placed the buying basis at a half cent higher. Bookings on a to-arrive basis were 5000 bushels. Some of the buying stemmed from closing of the Illinois waterways to repair locks.

Mercy Killing

The Case of Col. X And Trapped Gunner

By Myles Standish

THE current discussion of euthanasia brings to mind a strange case of mercy shooting that occurred in China in 1945 when I was stationed there with the Fourteenth Air Force.

The central figure was Lt. Col. X, the commander of a fighter - bomber group at a forward base in south-central China. The Colonel was the type of young, natural leader brought out by the war—handsome, husky, with a soft, pleasant Southern manner and a determined mouth. Though his home was in Texas, he knew many St. Louisans, having been graduated from Washington University here. He was essentially a man of action, direct and forceful, certainly not the philosophic type. I doubt if he had ever given five minutes' thought in his life to the subject of euthanasia, now troubling many of our best medical and religious minds. But the problem was thrust suddenly and tragically in his lap one day and he had to look into his soul and make his decision in a matter of seconds. Being the man he was, he made the decision and never, so far as I could see, regretted it.

A B-25 BOMBER, coming back from a mission, overshot the field's runway, crashed down a 60-foot embankment and burst into flames. The Colonel, in the alert shack at the time, jumped into a jeep, raced to the runway end and scrambled down the bank. Other rescuers were there, and Col. X took charge. While some men battled the flames, others started pulling out members of the crew. One man was dead and one was unconscious in the rear section. In the flight compartment, the pilot was still alive and moving. The co-pilot was crushed to death beside him. Both were dragged out as the flames, fed by gasoline from a broken wing tank, shot 50 feet into the air.

The sergeant-gunner in charge of the top turret back of the pilots was pinned back of the co-pilot's seat—he had been standing right back of the co-pilot on the landing. The steel armor backing of the seat was pressed tightly into his legs, like the jaws of a trap. His legs, mired deep in the twisted under-wreckage, were battered and crushed. The sergeant was moaning.

SEVERAL RESCUERS, climbing into the broken cabin, pulled hard on his body while a couple of others tried to pry the wreckage off his legs with crowbars. They couldn't bend the steel jaws of the trap. An Army doctor climbed in and tried to get in position to amputate the legs. He couldn't reach down far enough. He came out, glanced at Col. X and shook his head.

"Pull him loose," the Colonel said.

Several of the men grabbed the trapped sergeant's arms and shoulders and pulled, with others pulling them. The sergeant's agonized screams rose above the roar of the flames. Sweat streamed down the faces of the rescue workers as they tugged at him. The fire began to crisp their eyelashes and eyebrows. They simply didn't have the strength to pull the sergeant free. One shouted to the Colonel:

"It's no use, sir."

"GET OUT," said Col. X. They scrambled out. The flames were licking at the flight compartment. The sergeant's shrieks continued to make the scene a nightmarish horror. It was up to the Colonel then. Everybody looked at him. They could stand there and let a man, already suffering horribly, burn to death, beyond their help. Or they could do something about it. I don't pretend to know what thoughts flashed through young Col. X's mind then. He never told anyone. He took his .45 automatic from the shoulder holster, stood 15 feet from the trapped sergeant, and took careful aim. He fired twice. The screams stopped.

COL. X DIDN'T HAVE to fire those shots. Nobody would have blamed him if he hadn't. He was risking imprisonment and his Army career on that moment.

They charged him with "voluntary manslaughter" at his court martial. Seven colonels tried him. No one brought up the question of euthanasia as such. Army regulations are exact, and a court martial is no tribunal to weigh the established moral law. Col. X's counsel tried to show the Colonel acted "irrationally, under great emotional strain," and introduced medical testimony to cast a reasonable doubt on whether the gunner died from the two mercy bullets in his head or from the flames that swept over him a few seconds later.

The defendant did not testify. He sat through the trial quietly and calmly, offering little comment. The court deliberated a half hour, then returned its verdict. Acquittal. Lt. Col. X saluted the court, walked out and flew back to his command.

IN CHICAGO, a determined old dowager sailed into the Carson, Pirie & Scott book department and demanded a complete set of Dickens and a complete set of Scott. "I don't care about the bindings and I don't care about the price; just find me the cheapest sets you can," she told the astonished clerk. "You see, I have to have them. I've left them to my grandchild in my will."

He Teaches the Blind to Read---or Bowl

Bernard Krebs, Who Lost Sight as a Boy, Directs Big Braille Library

By Virginia Irwin

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.

WHEN Bernard M. Krebs, one of the world's recognized authorities on the teaching and transcribing of Braille, was a boy of 9 he suffered two near-fatal accidents that cost him the sight in both his eyes. Back in 1919, there was little a blind person could look forward to except work in a broom factory or peddling pencils in a tin cup. Krebs decided he would do neither.

The other day, not long after the anniversary of the tragedy that took from him his last glimpse of light 30 years ago, Krebs talked to this reporter of some of his dreams that have come true and of others that fell by the wayside.

Now librarian of the New York Guild for the Jewish Blind, the remarkable and not-yet-40 Krebs presides over the largest hand-transcribed library of individual copies of books in Braille in the world. He has written a guide for Braille transcribers that has come to be known, not as the book of the month, but the book of the decade. He has invented a guide rail for bowling alleys to enable blind persons to indulge in the sport of bowling. He has invented a system to enable blind persons to play bingo and revised a Braille shorthand system for blind stenographers. He has played in national bridge tournaments and achieved such recognition as a teacher of Braille to both the blind and the seeing that he was recently drafted for the presidency of the National Organization of Transcribers, Binders and Teachers of Braille without ever having been a member of the organization.

No long-hair, despite his reputation as a scholar, Krebs's greatest enthusiasm right now is over the guide rail he invented for blind bowlers.

"Do you realize," he asked, "how few sports and other forms of recreation there are for the blind? Now with this guide rail, which is compact and portable, blind people can bowl in any public alley. The rail can be attached to the floor without harming the surface and so blind bowling teams can bowl in any vicinity. You think it impossible for the blind to bowl? You should see some of our Guild bowlers in action."

Krebs's invention of the bingo board for the blind has brought hundreds of pleasant evenings to the blind who come to the big building at Sixty-second street and Broadway that houses the New York Guild for the Jewish Blind.

"Regardless of race, creed or color, everyone is welcome," Krebs pointed out. "To be welcome here, to use our library, to play bingo or enjoy any of the other activities, there is only one requirement to be met—you must be blind."

In the Guild library, there are more than 3000 volumes in Braille; most of them are titles not to be found in other Braille libraries and most of them were transcribed by volunteer workers for the Guild. Before a book is transcribed into Braille, Krebs clears the title with the Library of Congress. If it has not been previously transcribed, or if it is not scheduled to be published in Braille, a Guild volunteer worker is asked to get to work on the transcribing of a book requested by some blind individual. Not only are the books available to the blind of the New York area, but they are sent all over the United States. Records in the Guild library show that blind persons in St. Louis have read 101 volumes borrowed from the Guild Braille library in the last three years. According to Government decree, Braille volumes are sent through the mail free.

BERNARD M. KREBS, LIBRARIAN OF THE NEW YORK GUILD FOR THE JEWISH BLIND, TEACHES A WOMAN WITH NORMAL VISION TO READ BRAILLE, SO THAT SHE CAN TRANSCRIBE BOOKS INTO BRAILLE FOR USE BY THE BLIND.

BECAUSE it is a costly, tedious and lengthy process to transcribe a book from type into Braille — even with a volunteer doing the work—libraries for the blind are limited.

"For instance," says Krebs, "take 'Gone With the Wind.' It is a fat enough book in type but it takes 34 volumes in Braille, each twice the size and weight of the one book in type."

At the age of nine and dreaming of becoming a big league baseball player, young Krebs met with his first accident. He and his sister were experimenting with a brother's flashlight powder in the basement of their home.

"We were going to show each other how a photographer acts," Krebs says. "I got shown all right. When the smoke cleared away I had lost two fingers and the sight in my left eye."

Only a few months later, Krebs fell into an unprotected sidewalk cellarway and lost the sight of his right eye. Now totally blind, he was placed in a Yonkers home for blind children, but from the very beginning he began to fight the handicap of blindness. He couldn't play baseball, but he developed into quite an athlete and in a public school athletic league won prizes in the standing broad jump and 100-yard dash. He won a scholarship and plunged into journalism at New York University, bent on the idea of somehow establishing a daily newspaper in Braille for the blind.

"I wanted to prove," he says, "that the blind are capable of something besides basket weaving, piano tuning and other traditional work. Vocational opportunities for the blind are somewhat better today than they were then, but they're still too limited."

Krebs says that he was like so many other college graduates that came out of the universities of our countries during the depression. He had great dreams but the country couldn't afford them just then. He couldn't get backing for his newspaper in Braille and so he turned to teaching. Soon he became the librarian for the then-fledgling library of the New York Guild for the Jewish Blind and before long he was one of the vital cogs in the organization. Here was a scholar who would sit up most of the night translating into Braille while a sighted person read to him, and a down-to-earth friend of the blind who realized that a device to enable blind people to play such an innocuous game as bingo could put great pleasure into their lives.

Today in the library over which Krebs presides, a blind person may borrow a volume of Shakespeare or buy a pack of playing cards in Braille; he may borrow the score of Verdi's comparatively obscure "Simon Boccanegra" in Braille or buy any one of a number of games involving the use of dice with specially deep "spot" indentations.

"What usually happens," laughs Krebs, "is that the game is soon thrown away and a good game of blind craps is in session."

Married to a pretty young woman he met at one of the activities of the Guild, Krebs says he leads the same sort of life of any other New Yorker. Both he and his wife, Mrs. Naomi Krebs, who operates the Braille telephone switchboard at the Guild, take the subway from their apartment to the Guild building on Broadway.

"You don't have to see to squeeze into the subway," he laughs.

BOTH he and his wife, whose vision allows her to distinguish only between day and night, play bridge, "raise cain" on New Year's eve, and are looking forward to learning to play Canasta. Mrs. Krebs' hobby is bowling, but Krebs finds little time for sports because of his extra evening activities at the Guild. Recently Krebs taught an 87-year-old blind man to read Braille. The man hadn't read a book in 52 years.

A happy man with a hearty laugh, Krebs has achieved unusual recognition in his field at an early age. His great ambition now is to teach the hundreds of sighted people to whom he has taught Braille how to become Braille teachers themselves, and thus increase the numbers of persons who can transcribe from type into Braille the thousands upon thousands of books not yet available to the blind.

"The real satisfaction that any man has," says Krebs, "is being of service to others. It does not matter whether he is blind or can see. Bring a little happiness or satisfaction into the life of another, whether it is by bringing him a book he can read or fixing things so he can go bowling or play bingo, and you've got some measure of satisfaction. But never make the mistake of thinking that nature compensates people like me in some way for being blind. That compensation business is a dream with which sighted people delude themselves. There is no compensation for two good eyes."

Playing Canasta to Win

By Albert H. Morehead

WHEN Oswald Jacoby published his challenge to the authors of all other Canasta books, it was quickly accepted by many of them—including the writer of this column (author of "Canasta Made Easy") paired with Richard L. Frey, author of the new book, "How to Play Canasta." However, the first challenge Jacoby received came from Sam Fry Jr., and Theodore A. Lightner, co-authors of still another Canasta book (there are 24 in all) and they are meeting Jacoby and his partner, John R. Crawford, in what may be the first of several such matches Jacoby will be called upon to play.

Needing 120, what should the first or second player discard from this hand?

Jacoby's theory is to save the black three for a round or so, meanwhile risking some other discard on the small pack—perhaps even the jack or the nine.

Fry and Lightner maintain that the three is a useless card and that any other card in this hand may prove to be of more value. Since no one can tell what natural card will prove both safe and of no value later, their policy is to disregard the size of the pack, throw the black three immediately and wait until this hand takes shape before making a blind discard. Meanwhile, they point out another advantage: throwing the black three from this hand postpones giving the opponents any clue to cards that they can safely discard.

Question: Once the pack has been frozen, how can it be unfrozen when the rule states that at such a time the player may draw the top card only to make a meld with two natural cards of the same rank? If only the top card is taken, doesn't the pack remain frozen?

Answer: The top card may never be taken without taking the entire pack. Most published laws avoid the ambiguity of the statement as quoted in your question.

CASE RECORDS

By Dr. George W. Crane

CASE V-292: When Phillip, the second oldest of our five children was 9 years of age, he came to me with the following question:

"I wish I could earn some money," he began. "So have you any work for me to do? I want a quarter to spend on Saturday."

Psychologists agree that children should have money of their own to spend. It teaches them many wholesome lessons. Preferably, however, they should earn it, so they will realize that money is simply minted human energy. Life makes no allowances for anybody, so the "allowance" plan is not as psychologically sound as letting the child earn his spending money.

EVERY PARENT SHOULD thus set aside some special household chores which are "pay jobs." Don't make them too difficult for your child. Adjust the tasks to his mental age. And be fair in your pay scale. But don't overpay and thus spoil the neighborhood wage scale for mowing lawns, raking leaves, baby sitting, etc.

Children should have their regular duties in the house which are part of their normal chores and which don't warrant pay. But special duties like mowing the lawn, tending the furnace, washing windows, or ironing, are contract jobs and warrant pay.

YOU CAN ALSO set mental chores by which youngsters can earn their spending money while accomplishing something of permanent value.

We have used the following plan. Since I myself, with 11 years of college education, don't know all the stanzas of a single song, religious, patriotic or sentimental, I decided to pay our five youngsters for learning certain wholesome songs.

So I set a rate of 25 cents apiece for every hymn or song which they could sing through all its stanzas. I stipulated certain anthems like "The Star Spangled Banner" and "America," plus other American classics such as "Old Black Joe," "My Old Kentucky Home," etc.

Then I selected two dozen church hymns and Sunday School songs. Our children reacted enthusiastically to the plan. Mrs. Crane and I would hold the song book and make sure they would sing all stanzas perfectly.

At that time Judy was 6 years old but she qualified for her wages on this plan and the older boys even began coaching 4-year-old Danny and 3-year-old David.

With the latter I was a little lenient and also paid them entirely in pennies, for the psychological effect. They enjoyed themselves while their older brothers and Judy were becoming diligent music teachers.

Tips for Teens

By Elinor Williams

ARE you date-dreaming about a certain boy or girl . . . and want to make those dreams a reality of fun and friendship? Perhaps this girl's date problem will help solve your own:

"I have liked a boy over a year and he knows it, but never seems to pay much attention to me except by speaking. How can I make a good impression to show him how I feel and let him know the good times we could be having together?"

Answer—Next time there's a chance for you to invite a boy to a party or dance, why not ask him in a friendly, casual way? Or make an opportunity to get acquainted with him by planning a double date or informal get-together (it needn't be a party) at your home. . . . . With games, possibly dancing, and something good to eat, including ice cream.

Try to invite boys and girls he knows, so he'll accept and have fun. . . . Then he should come up with an invitation of his own.

Be Smart

Be prepared for an interesting introduction of combinations of fabrics for the forthcoming season. This halter dress of rayon Oxford crepe is well adapted to the tailored treatment and the pleated skirt. With it is teamed a linen jacket, very casual as to mood and pronounced as to fabric character. The jacket is in a strong contrast color to the dress—such as cocoa linen with off-white dress. Many other combinations also are used.

If the earth rotates one way at 1000 m.p.h., and an army rocket thing can do 2000 the other, it would seem the lush could readily retrieve a lost weekend with a couple of round trips.

My Day -o- By Eleanor Roosevelt

LOS ANGELES.

THE evening session at Indiana University last Friday was held in a beautiful hall and was well attended. The following morning I enjoyed breakfasting at the Women's Faculty Club. Then I did a radio recording, some of the questions being used on the College Hour, which is sold to 20 radio stations in the state.

Before leaving I stopped with President Herman B. Wells to see the president emeritus, William Lowe Brown, who lives on the campus. He is a remarkable gentleman, more than 90 years old, an Indiana boy educated in the state and graduated from this university. He devoted many years of his life to the presidency, and the school owes to him many of its most forward-looking aspects. I left Bloomington with real regret and shall treasure pleasant memories of my time there.

WE DID NOT REACH Chicago until late Saturday afternoon, so we had very little time to change before attending a dinner at the Covenant Club.

The president of the club presented me with a rather unique award—a prayer beautifully printed and bound which expressed good wishes for my future. I was deeply appreciative of this kind thought, and, truth to tell, I thought the prayer was what I needed more than anything else before going to talk on the United Nations at the Chicago Opera House. That building was built for opera and not for one poor, little speaker to stand up on the stage and look out at that vast auditorium.

The audience was attentive and kind, however, and we were even able to have a question period by having the questions written and allowing an interlude in which representatives for the March of Dimes took up a collection.

AT 2 O'CLOCK Sunday morning we were on the plane, taking off in a light snowstorm. The winds were high and against us and I thought we might have a rough trip to Los Angeles.

For a little time we seemed to drive through the night and the snowstorm seemed heavier so that we were tossed around, but in a few minutes that was over and calm settled down. Next thing I knew my eyes opened on snow-capped mountains and the dawn was breaking.

I always love the sky from an airplane at dawn and at sunset. Of the two, I think it is more beautiful at dawn. The head winds had slowed us up considerably and so we were two and a half hours late. A fellow-passenger friend of Jimmy had introduced himself and offered to drive us in from the airport if no one should be on hand to meet us. But as we landed I saw my eldest son, Jimmy, standing by the gate.

SUNDAY WAS devoted entirely to my family except for a press conference at 3 o'clock when Herman Lissauer came to meet me and made final arrangements for my lecture Sunday evening.

Reheat ready-bought doughnuts before serving and accompany them with hot spiced cider for an evening snack. Or split the doughnuts, sprinkle the halves with cinnamon and sugar, and put under the broiler until lightly browned.

To use up leftover cake cut it in cubes, put it in individual serving dishes, and pour over chilled chocolate or butterscotch pudding. Garnish with whipped sweetened evaporated milk or cream.

"ONE FOR YOU, ONE FOR ME, ONE FOR THE DEPARTMENT OF INTERNAL REVENUE, ONE FOR YOU . . ."

How It Started

By Jean Newton

That Word "Preamble."

YOU do not have to look up the derivation of "peripatetic" to find out what it means, for a great philosopher made this word famous. Aristotle's walking about while instructing his students did more to establish its significance of "walking about" or "itinerant" than all the dictionaries in the world which point out its composition from "to walk" and "about." But with the word preamble it is different.

"Preamble" has not had publicity such as Aristotle gave to peripatetic, nor is the link so obvious between its etymological meaning and the sense in which we are familiar with it today. We know "preamble" in the sense of an introduction to something, such as a document—a statute, a book, a speech—and we extend it to signify an introduction in other connections. There is no connection, no sense of walking in all this. Yet this is another word which, etymologically at least, started with a walk!

"Preamble" derives from the Latin "praeambulus"—walking before! The Latin verb is "preambulare," composed of "prae," before, and "ambulare," to walk.

My OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

Dear Martha Carr:

I AM 37 years old and a grandmother. I am naturally a mixer and can make a friend of anyone. I still like to go out and dance and make new friends and see old ones. But all I get to do is go to the movies till I could scre..m. My husband is the unsociable type, who simply doesn't like people. He claims to hate even my best woman friend. He doesn't trust anyone and seems jealous of the very air I breathe. He accuses me of things that never entered my head. I have become a champion liar trying to keep my husband from knowing of perfectly harmless friendships and episodes I'd delight in telling him about if he would just enjoy them with me instead of blowing his top. At times he fights and argues with me until I can't sleep nights. It is really only our three-year-old son who keeps us together. My husband is possessive, dictatorial, and if he is crossed bang goes the present, the past and the future. Just because he doesn't care to go places I like, why must I always go to movies, and more often than not without him? That's what I have done for the 13 years of our married life. I am tired of it, and I am tired of my unreasonable husband. On the rare occasions when he does break over and take me somewhere he just sits and stares at the wall, or stares at the people and belittles them, growls about everything and everybody that does not exactly agree with his standards. To him the whole world has gone sour. What can be done in a situation like this? Shall I leave him?

DISGUSTED.

Picture shows may be excellent entertainment but a steady diet of anything can begin to pall after 13 years. Your husband should make the effort to see to it that you have recreation in his company, and not with him just sitting there, either, like a bump on a log. He is permitting himself to become far too ingrown. Granted that there are many people who are poorer mixers than others, it is up to them to learn to mix to a reasonable extent, not only for their own good but for that of their families as well. After all these years he should have realized long ago that he can trust you, and have overcome that jealousy which is hounding him and making your life so unhappy. He loves you and should therefore trust you, since you have done nothing to betray that trust. It is possible he has had instances and people in his life who have soured him on the world, but he should realize that we all meet with disillusioning experiences and should not take it out on those nearest and dearest to him. Talk things over with him, see if you can't get him to understand how you feel, where this conduct is taking him, how it is influencing your marriage. You have that child to think of. Of course you aren't going to leave your husband. The two of you are going to work this problem out for the good of all concerned so that you may enjoy a happy life together, watching that youngster grow up.

IN ANSWER TO "Not Lazy": Perhaps you do not systematize your work as you should. "Pick up" the living room at night before you go to bed, then in the morning it won't look so discouraging. Put your kitchen in order immediately after breakfast. Then do all the dusting in your little apartment, next use the dry mop everywhere, followed by the sweeper or vacuum cleaner. If you just do little dabs here and there you'll never get through. The Library has books on housekeeping. Drop in sometime and look them over.

Man's Roving Eye

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

COULD this wife be writing about your husband, too?

"My husband, whom I married more than a year ago, has all the qualifications of a good husband, but one trait of his seems so offensive that I am thinking of leaving him before I grow old worrying about it.

"The thing that bothers me is his very obvious interest in other women. He seems to notice them in an acute sort of way, wherever we go. Everything feminine catches his eye—a bright coat, a feminine head of hair. He sees women before he sees anything else. I honestly believe he is woman crazy and yet he says that he loves me very much and doesn't want anybody else.

"He says it is natural for a man to do this and he can't do anything about stopping it. To top it all, he says I am imagining things. Tell me, Dr. Popenoe, are men so constructed that the sight of every woman they see is enjoyable even though they love their wives very much?"

THE ANSWER, MRS. O., is yes.

Give him credit for good taste. That's why he married you! When he is older and understands wives a little better, he will probably be more subtle in his admiration of the female sex in general, but he probably won't admire womankind any less. If he stops admiring women, he'll also stop admiring you. That wouldn't be any improvement, would it.

If I asked you, I suppose you'd deny hotly that you are jealous. Don't take my word for it. I have included a rating scale to measure your tendency to jealousy, in the little booklet called "How Is Your Jealousy Working?" which I prepared especially for readers of this column. You are not the only wife who could profit by testing yourself. It might be the best 5-cent investment you have ever made. Write me for it in care of the Post-Dispatch, enclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope and a nickel (coin only, no stamps). If you find, on your own showing, that you are jealous, the booklet will tell you something to do about it.

BUT DON'T HOPE that your husband, or any other woman's husband, is going to stop admiring feminine pulchritude!

Social Problems

By Emily Post

A YOUNG woman writes me: "My brother and I are deep in the throes of argument over his manner of answering the telephone at home. He asks, 'Who is calling?' when someone asks for me and he doesn't recognize the voice, and I think that doesn't sound well outside of an office. At least not for a member of the family. It sounds either as though I were being treated as a little girl, or else that he is prying."

First of all, if you don't want him to ask, he shouldn't. But for many people, particularly busy people, it saves much needless interruption to have whoever answers ask this question. It may be someone they have been waiting to hear from or someone they can more easily call back later or, not impossibly, someone they don't wish to speak to at all. (Of course, if the person calling would say who he or she is, it would not be necessary to ask the question.)

DEAR MRS. POST: At a private dance, is it correct for any man to cut in on a couple dancing, regardless of whether he knows one or not, or is this privilege reserved only for the so-called stags who have no partners of their own?

Answer: Any man may cut in on a girl he knows—but not on one whom he doesn't. He may, however, cut in when the man is a stranger and the girl a friend.

Brazen Theft of Kansas City Ballots

Burglars Who Blasted Election Board Vault Carefully Selected Votes Involved in Fraud Case

By Selwyn Pepper

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

(Ninth in a series of articles on unsolved crimes, political corruption and gangster-influence in Kansas City.)

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 17.

THIEVES turned a key and blithely walked into an Election Board storage room on the ground floor of the Jackson county courthouse. On the top three floors of the skyscraper, deputy sheriffs and jailers went about their duties. Down the street, at the Muehlebach Hotel, President Harry S. Truman was a guest. It was the night of May 27-28, 1947.

Once inside the storage room, the thieves (there were two or more) draped cheesecloth ballot sacks over ventilators to muffle sounds and to prevent light from shining into the adjoining garage, used by deputy sheriffs.

Then one burglar, a professional safeblower, went to work. He punched nine small holes in a steel door leading into the vault and found that explosives would be needed for this job. He pounded off the dial of the combination with a hammer. In the hole left by the dial, he placed nitroglycerin, holding it in place with a roll of yellow soap. Taking his time, he tied a wet feather pillow over the charge to muffle the explosion. Then, with two batteries from a flashlight, 14 feet of wire and a detonating cap, he set off the charge.

The noise, an investigator said later, probably was no louder than that of "a rat falling off a pantry shelf."

The blast caused a bulge in the inner and outer steel doors of the vault, making it easy to pry them open. They were thin doors, only about an eighth of an inch thick.

Inside the vault, the thieves found four green steel boxes. Three were padlocked and each of these was sealed with gummed paper, bearing the signatures of the election commissioners.

It was perfectly obvious to the intruders, especially to one of them familiar with Election Board records, that these were the boxes they wanted. Inside were ballots cast in the August 1946 primary—miscounted by election officials and then recounted by the Jackson county grand jury. As a result of that recount, 71 persons had been indicted for vote frauds.

The thieves broke the padlocks with ease, then selected 7965 ballots, from 32 of the 34 precincts checked by the grand jury. Most of the ballots were from the First Ward, controlled by Charles Binaggio, and from the Second Ward, run by doughty Henry McKissick.

Left behind by the thieves were ballots from one precinct of the First Ward and from a precinct of the Fourteenth, the bailiwick of Tim Moran. There was only one slight error in the selectiveness of the burglars' work. They didn't know that late that afternoon three election officials of the Fourteenth Ward precinct also had been indicted. If the thieves had known about the late afternoon indictments, they undoubtedly would have scooped up the ballots from that precinct, too.

HAVING found what they wanted, the thieves loaded the ballots into sacks and left the building. No one saw them enter; no one saw them leave. The theft was discovered about 7:30 in the morning, when the office opened for business.

Less than 12 hours before the thieves broke into the vault, the county grand jury had made its final report, saying it had found "ballots deliberately miscounted and false returns made. . . . wrongful, illegal and wholesale marking of ballots, vote buying and bribery . . . gross negligence, carelessness and indifference on the part of judges and clerks."

But as a result of the well-planned burglary, long weeks of investigation by the grand jury were nullified. Without the ballots, the state cases against the 71 election officials and some of their political sponsors collapsed. And the theft also was responsible in large part for the collapse of Federal vote fraud charges against another group of defendants.

First the election itself and then the theft of the ballots attracted national attention. In the Fifth Missouri District, which is partly in Kansas City and partly in the outlying area, Representative Roger C. Slaughter was "purged" by the Democratic party at the urging of President Truman. Slaughter lost to President Truman's candidate, Enos A. Axtell, but by only 2301 votes. (Axtell, in turn, was beaten in the general election by Republican Albert L. Reeves Jr.)

After the grand jury finished recounting the ballots, it expressed the belief that Slaughter was "deprived of the nomination by a fraudulent miscount of votes and by other types of fraud." Two other candidates also had been "counted out," the jury found. The report said Perrin D. McElroy had been deprived of the nomination for presiding judge of the county court (the job in which Truman first gained attention) and Michael W. O'Hern had been cheated out of the nomination for prosecutor.

"Our investigation," the jury said, "revealed a deliberate, calculated and premeditated plan to miscount and steal votes."

All the major Democratic factions, eager to please President Truman, had joined forces to support his candidate in that election. The factions were those headed by James Pendergast, nephew and heir of Boss Tom Pendergast; Binaggio, McKissick, Moran and George R. Clark. Since that election, the Pendergast faction has declined in strength and Binaggio has become the major Democratic figure, aided by McKissick and Clark.

When the brazen theft was discovered, deputies of Sheriff Jean A. Purdome and city detectives began a frantic, embarrassed investigation. They were joined quickly by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Missouri Highway Patrol.

Early in the investigation, police learned that 17 janitors and maintenance men worked in the building from 5 to 11 o'clock on the night of the theft. Among them were Joe Falco, head janitor, who had served a term for arson; Wilbur Davis, Negro, who served six months in jail for manslaughter, and Joe Russo, who had been convicted of liquor law violations and carrying concealed weapons. Each janitor had a passkey to the offices.

Then it developed that dozens of persons had keys that would open any door in the building. It would have been very simple, police found, for the thieves to get a key that would open the courthouse and also the Election Board storage room.

INSIDE THE VAULT THE THIEVES FOUND FOUR GREEN STEEL BOXES. THREE WERE PADLOCKED. THEY BROKE THE PADLOCKS WITH EASE, THEN SELECTED 7965 BALLOTS WHICH THEY CARRIED AWAY.

Next, police sought to learn who was in the building between midnight and 7:30 a.m. They found the only building attendant on duty during those hours was a one-legged elevator operator and watchman, Harry Sutton, 61 years old. The regular watchman, who is deaf, was on vacation.

Sutton reported all the janitors and maintenance men had left the building by 11:30 p.m. But Sutton's freight elevator was several hundred feet from the vault of the Election Board, and around a corner.

Then the investigators turned their attention again to the clues found at the scene. These were meager—the disassembled flashlight, the batteries, a piece of twine, a bar of yellow soap, the wire used in setting off the charge and a pillow tick with marks of the explosion. There were no fingerprints.

About 10 days after the burglary, an odd thing was discovered. Two more sacks of ballots were missing from the vault. These had not been examined by the grand jury. The ballots were from Second Ward precincts, McKissick's territory. Two sisters of McKissick had worked in one of those precincts, the Seventeenth. Apparently the thieves expected indictments if those ballots ever were examined. They, therefore, selected the sacks containing those ballots from among many sacks in the room. That added further emphasis to the highly-selective nature of the theft.

Reporters noted that the Election Board vault was only a few steps from the courtroom of Magistrate Louis Mazuch, a member of the Binaggio organization. Both Binaggio and McKissick were daily visitors to the courthouse and used the corridor around Mazuch's courtroom as their "unofficial office."

SIX of the 71 persons indicted worked in the courthouse and most of the others had good friends there. Among those indicted were Morris (Snag) Klein, a Binaggio lieutenant; Pershing Wilson, former assistant attorney general of Missouri; Joseph M. Tanner, then and now a member of the State Legislature, where he looks out for Binaggio's interests; two deputy sheriffs, a constable and a deputy coroner.

A few days after the burglary, Binaggio told Ted Link of the Post-Dispatch staff that he was in Mazuch's court the morning the crime was discovered. "I was amazed at what happened," he said.

Binaggio offered a technical criticism of the burglary. He said that if anyone had wanted to steal the evidence he would have been "smarter" to do it before the grand jury had gathered so much proof of fraud.

"There is something more behind the burglary than the newspapers have shown or the police have found out," Binaggio volunteered. "It goes deeper than just the stealing of some evidence."

Jim Pendergast declared 46 of the 71 defendants were not affiliated with his organization, although many were Democrats. He dismissed the ballot theft as "stupid."

ON the night of the successful safe-cracking, police learned, there were many impromptu celebrations in saloons frequented by members of the Binaggio, McKissick and Moran groups. Police hoped someone would talk a little freely at one of the celebrations and a helpful "stool pigeon" would carry the word to Police Headquarters. But no useful information came in.

Although FBI agents took over the investigation by agreement of all the law-enforcement agencies the afternoon the crime was discovered, an intensive inquiry by the FBI did not begin until June 3, almost a week later. The belated full-scale investigation was ordered by the Department of Justice after the county prosecutor, James G. Kimbrell, said he had evidence that Federal laws had been violated in the primary election. Until then, Attorney General Tom Clark, now a member of the United States Supreme Court, had held there was insufficient evidence for a federal inquiry.

Now 31 months have elapsed since the brazen burglary, one of the boldest crimes committed in a city long accustomed to crimes contemptuous of law-enforcement agencies. The FBI, the Kansas City police, the Jackson county sheriff and the Missouri Highway Patrol still are working on the case, but have not succeeded in cracking it.

TOMORROW: Election day killings, ghost voters, miscounted ballots, purchased votes and other phases of the election process in Kansas City.

Contract Bridge

By Ely Culbertson

AFTER today's hand was over, South offered the opinion that there had been no logical or safe way to investigate slam possibilities, but one thing is sure: he did not make a very valiant effort!

North, dealer.

	♠KQ10 ♥KJ8 ♦A96 ♣K754
♠53 ♥A107 ♦Q10854 ♣1063	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠74 ♥9653 ♦KJ72 ♣J98
	♠AJ9862 ♥Q42 ♦3 ♣AQ2

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 club	Pass	1 spade	Pass
2 spades	Pass	4 spades	Pass
Pass	Pass

As may be seen at a glance, the heart ace was the only trick that could conceivably be won by the defense, and so a vulnerable small slam was missed.

Considering the fact that the slam depended specifically on heart strength in the North hand, and that this would have been somewhat difficult for South to locate, there was a grain of truth in South's assertion that the slam could not be safely reached. However, it is far more pertinent to observe that South gave up his slam prospects without even a struggle! Moreover, an expert pair should arrive at six spades, using the following sequence:

North	South
1 club	1 spade
2 spades	3 clubs
3 diamonds	4 spades

At this point, the ball would be passed back to North for his action—and any North worth his salt would make one more try. The fact that South had here interpolated the club bid would change the entire complexion of North's hand! Now, the weakness of the club suit would no longer be a menace, and with South not only showing his club support but then jumping over three diamonds to four spades, North would have a perfect four-no-trump bid—and he would not have to care whether South read this as a conventional four no-trump, or merely as showing strength in the unbid heart suit. From that point on, the partnership could scarcely stop short of six spades!

Veterans in the pop song industry say a thing like "Mule Train" couldn't have been any bigger if it had first been set to music."

The only "instant" backed by 85 years of coffee experience!

My Morning Mail

BY LIBBY TUCKER

J. F. A. of Westport, Conn., writes:

"Our old coffee pot is on its last legs, and we simply have to get a new one soon. What type would you recommend—vacuum, drip or percolator? Which makes the best coffee? Why?"

Dear J. F. A.: You'll get good results from any type of coffee maker if you use good quality coffee, buy the correct grind, and follow directions carefully. However, before you buy any coffee maker, why not try Instant Chase & Sanborn? It's the only "instant" made by a company with 85 years' experience in coffee! It makes delicious coffee right in the cup—and you'll never have to bother with pots or grounds again! It's economical, too—saves you up to 20¢ over ground coffee!

F. M. G. of Bronxville, N. Y., writes:

"My husband is crazy about coffee-flavored puddings, icings and frozen desserts—but I can't seem to get them flavorful enough by using ordinary 'left-over' coffee as directed in some recipes. If I use too much, I find it makes desserts watery. Is there a better way?"

Dear F. M. G.: Of course there is—and it's so simple! By using Instant Chase & Sanborn, you can get as much full, rich strength and flavor as you want by using only a little hot water to dissolve it. Try it—it's delicious!

Art Bazaar

A GROUP of St. Louis women interested in art will sponsor a children's art bazaar to be held in the exhibition hall of Famous-Barr from Feb. 4 to 11 inclusive. The exhibit serves the dual purpose of encouraging an interest in art among young children, and of raising funds to be turned over to the St. Louis Heart Association for use in the children's heart clinics recently establised at Washington and St. Louis Universities medical schools.

ANY CHILD in the first six grades of private, public or parochial schools in the area is eligible to submit a picture for consideration by the committee, which is now making its selections. Originally planned as a one-day county fair, the project received such enthusiastic encouragement from local artists and business men that a more ambitious program was arranged. Plans were made after consultation with specialists of The Museum of Modern Art in New York, which maintains a collection of children's work, and with the endorsement of Chancellor Arthur H. Compton of Washington University and the Rev. Paul C. Reinert, S.J. president of St. Louis University. Perry T. Rathbone, director of the City Art Museum, heads the committee to select the pictures to be shown in the exhibition.

Members of the sponsoring committee of the bazaar are Mrs. J. Barrett Brown, Mrs. Alfred C. Carr, Jr., Mrs. Charles E. Claggett, Mrs. Ellis Humphreys, Mrs. Willard Van Beuren King, Mrs. Frances A. Mesker, Mrs. James L. O'Leary, Mrs. Frank E. Pelton Jr., Mrs. Arthur F. G. Raikes, Mrs. John R. Shepley and Mrs. Theodore M. Simmons.

Plans for Drucie Snyder's Wedding Of Great Interest in Washington

By Elise Morrow

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.

"DO we have to go through all this just to get married?"

Thus spoke the bridegroom-to-be as preparations for the first Cabinet wedding of the Truman administration approached the customary state of total chaos this week.

Maj. John Ernest Horton, a quiet, rather shy White House aid, and Miss Drucie Snyder, daughter of the Secretary of the Treasury, will be married Thursday, Jan. 26, at Washington Cathedral. Margaret Truman will be maid of honor, and President and Mrs. Truman will attend.

There hasn't been such hysteria in Washington since the battle over unification of the armed forces. Like any other confused bridegroom, Maj. Horton — ignored and useless — is floating around on frenzied waves of invitations, flowers, trousseau trouble and hourly crises.

Unlike the typical father of the bride, however, Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder has a firm hand on the helm. Secretary Snyder is a man of vast patience and great attention to details, and he adores his only child, Drucie. Amid all the uproar, he appears to be the person who is enjoying it most.

Mrs. Snyder has sensibly and gently retreated from the active front. She has limited herself to trousseau problems and coping with the vast amount of wedding presents which are pouring in.

THE WEDDING is being managed by Carolyn Hagner Shaw, the editor of the Washington Social List and an old hand at complex operations like this. Between conferences with the fire department, the Secret Service and the traffic cops, Mrs. Shaw is slightly frantic herself.

Drucie is thinner than she has ever been, and slightly drawn, but she will doubtless recover in time to be a beautiful bride come Thursday a week. Her wedding dress is a thing of surpassing beauty, made from creamy brocade her father brought from Japan, matching silk he brought from China, and American rayon for the slip. The bridal gown is almost severely simple and classic, and Drucie looks very regal in it. She will wear a Juliet cap of white satin.

All this was designed and made by Mme. Louise Brune, an overly-plump, Iowa-born prima donna, and a real designing genius. Mme. Brune also did the dresses for the maid of honor, Margaret Truman, and the bridesmaids, who will be gowned alike in turquoise and forest green.

MME. BRUNE (pronounced Brunay) is famous for her beautiful petticoats, and a fiend for detail. She was dissatisfied with the hem on Drucie's eight-foot-wide train, so she took it all out and did it over herself. The brocade is extremely soft and of a narrow width, and the Secretary brought back only 12 yards of it, so Mme Brune appliqued it on to the silk. The construction of the dress was really an engineering feat, she said.

Vice President Barkley's daughter, Mrs. Max Truitt, was one of Mme. Brune's first customers here. The Veep's new bride, Jane Barkley, also plans to drop around as soon as she gets time to buy some new clothes.

Drucie had asked many of her friends to wait until she and Johnnie returned from their honeymoon before throwing any parties for them, but there have been at least 10 cocktail parties and dinners in their honor already.

Georgia Neese Clark, the Treasurer of the United States, had a girls' luncheon for Drucie, and, Saturday, Margaret Truman is having a dinner dance at Blair House. Jane Lingo, one of the bridesmaids and Margaret's best and oldest friend, is having a brunch Sunday at the Army-Navy Country Club.

Miss Nancy Lee and Miss Patricia Benoist Kinsella will be hostesses Saturday evening at a small cocktail party at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Reid Kinsella, 4623 Pershing avenue.

Winter Wedding

MISS ANNE NESBITT, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hugh Nesbitt, 934 Newport avenue, Webster Groves, will be married to Daniel P. Pierson the night of Saturday, Jan. 28. The Rev. Dr. Harry T. Scherer will perform the ceremony at Webster Groves Presbyterian Church at 8:30 o'clock after which Mr. and Mrs. Nesbitt will give a reception at Le Chateau.

Mrs. George L. Noelkes Jr., the former Miss Peggy Nesbitt, will be her sister's matron of honor. Bridesmaids will be Miss Nesbitt's sister-in-law, Mrs. Edward H. Nesbitt; Mrs. Robert E. Salisbury; Mrs. Chester A. Yard Jr., Miss Joanna Mozley and Mr. Pierson's sister, Miss Polly Pierson. Aaron A. Pierson will attend his brother as best man. Another brother, Stuart L. Pierson, Edward H. Nesbitt, Dee Herrick, Lawrence Stern and Charles Eberle will be ushers.

THE BRIDE-ELECT was guest of honor at a dessert luncheon Saturday given by Mrs. Salisbury, Mrs. William Gerstung and Mrs. Joseph W. Widmer at the home of Mrs. Widmer, 25 Elm avenue, Webster Groves. A dessert bridge will be given tonight by Mrs. Charles Edward Tuttle and Mrs. Edward H. Nesbitt at Mrs. Tuttle's home, 205 Bristol road, Webster Groves. Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Pierson and the Aaron Piersons will give an evening party Saturday at the home of the latter for the engaged pair. Another evening party is planned for Jan. 23 by Miss Mozley to be given at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Mozley, 63 Hanley downs. The rehearsal dinner will be given Jan. 27 by the prospective bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Pierson Jr., at their home, 327 South Elm avenue, Webster Groves. A party previously given for Miss Nesbitt took place Jan. 4 at the home of Mrs. Hugh Sherman, 23 Plant avenue, Webster Groves, with Mrs. Yard as assistant hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren P. Elmer Jr. and their two children, Virginia and Warren P. Elmer III, are visiting in St. Louis as the guests of his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Warren P. Elmer, 26 Crestwood drive, Clayton. Mr. Elmer, formerly a member of the faculty at St. Louis Country Day School, is now associated with the administrative staff of Princeton University, of which he is an alumnus. He and his family will be here for two weeks before returning to their home in Princeton, N.J.

Miss Loubard To Wed

THE marriage of Miss Odette Janine Loubard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Loubard, 400 Barnes road, Ladue, and Richard A. Craighead will take place Saturday, Jan. 28 in Indianapolis. A reception and breakfast at the Lincoln Hotel will follow the 10:30 o'clock ceremony at St. Joan of Arc Church.

THE BRIDE-ELECT is a graduate of St. Agnes Academy, Indianapolis. She is now a senior at the Jordan College of Music, which is affiliated with Butler University there. Her fiancee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Craighead, Fort Wayne, Ind., is also a student at Butler University.

Mr. Loubard, manager of the St. Louis Country Club, and Mrs. Loubard will attend the wedding. They formerly lived in Indianapolis.

To Visit in Michigan

Mrs. Ralph A. Morriss, 550 Donne avenue, University City, will depart Jan. 24 for Grosse Pointe, Mich., for a few days' sojourn. While there she will serve as matron of honor at the wedding the following Saturday, Jan. 28, of Miss Joyce Middleditch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leigh B. Middleditch, and Roy Tolleson. The ceremony will be performed at Christ Church and will be followed by a reception at the Detroit Country Club. A frequent visitor in St. Louis, the bride-elect attended Mrs. Morriss (Suzanne Mullins) as maid of honor when the former Miss Mullins and Mr. Morriss were married here two years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Morriss, who spent the late winter at Delray Beach, Fla., last year, will return to the resort next month.

WILBUR K. JORDAN, president of Radcliffe College, Cambridge, Mass., and Mrs. Jordan, will be guests of honor at a dinner this evening, to be given by the St. Louis Radcliffe Club at the home of Mrs. Christian B. Peper, 6334 McPherson avenue. Mrs. Peper is president of the local club. After the dinner, to be attended by Radcliffe Club members and their husbands, there will be a meeting which prospective students and their parents may attend.

Plans for the dinner were made at a recent meeting at the home of Mrs. Thomas F. Latzer, 30 Wydown terrace.

INVITATIONS have been issued to members of the teen-age set for a dance Saturday evening, Feb. 4 at the St. Louis Woman's Club. Hostess will be Miss Betty Schroth, a junior at Mary Institute. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore F. Schroth, 30 Southmoor, Clayton.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Harper Cobbs have recently leased an apartment at the St. Regis apartments and will move there from their home at 6224 Waterman avenue within the next six weeks.

Kirkwood Notes

INFORMAL luncheons are planned for tomorrow and Thursday for out-of-town guests and attendants for the wedding of Miss Mary Elliot Henderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Pullis Henderson, 220 West Washington avenue, and Nelson Bryan, which will take place Thursday night at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. John Hartley Jordan, 440 East Argonne drive, will be hostess for tomorrow's party and Mrs. L. Frederick Good, 222 East Jefferson avenue, will give Thursday's affair.

Miss Florence Starr Taylor is here from Lancaster, Pa., spending the winter months with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James S. Taylor, 217 South Woodlawn avenue. Mr. Taylor was in the East last week and spent a few days with his mother, Mrs. W. S. Taylor, at her home in Lancaster.

MR. AND MRS. HOWARD L. CONNER, 516 Angenette avenue, have made informal announcement of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Jeanne Lorraine, and William Franklin Hendrickson. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Orvel Hendrickson of Plainfield, Ind.

Both Miss Conner and her fiance are former students of the University of Indiana. He was graduated later from Indiana State Teachers College, Terre Haute. He is a member of two honorary fraternities, Delta Kappa Pi and Phi Mu Alpha. He served two and a half years in the Navy.

The bride-to-be, who has not made definite wedding plans, is a member of Alpha Delta Pi sorority.

Miss Julia Winfrey returned to Washington Saturday after a visit here with her mother, Mrs. Claude Winfrey, 237 West Adams avenue. Among informal parties for her was a small gathering at the home of Mrs. Ryland M. Ayres, 947 North Clay avenue, Friday afternoon.

MRS. JOHN D'ARCY, 203 South Woodlawn avenue, entertained members of the Rowena Clark Garden Club at her home yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Mrs. Oliver K. Bovard spoke on "Color in the Garden."

Mrs. Lawrence D. Arnold, 418 North Taylor avenue, and her son, Bob, and daughter, Betsy, expect to leave next month for Kansas City where they will join Mr. Arnold. They plan to make their home there.

Now...Just Lift a Lever and Go!

Selecto-Lift Starting is here—combined with Hydra-Matic Drive, in the 1950 Nash Ambassador!

Simply lift a lever and go! There isn't a clutch pedal—not even a starter button! You can drive all day without shifting gears or even having to think about it.

And here's the thrill of America's top high compression engine that uses regular gasoline—a Nash Ambassador development.

You've never known such performance and gasoline mileage in a fine car before. Or such quietness—for Airflyte design cuts through the wind with 20.7% less air drag than the average of all current cars tested.

And no other fine car can match the comfort and luxury of the Nash Ambassador, with its Airliner Reclining Seat, its Weather Eye Conditioned Air System, its Twin-Bed spaciousness, and the rigidity and lasting silence of Airflyte Construction.

Everyway you look at it, here is the most modern of fine cars, yet the price of a Nash Ambassador, even a Custom model regally tailored to your order—is as much as a thousand dollars less than cars of comparable size and quality would cost you!

See your Nash dealer, and make this frank comparison yourself!

Ambassador AIRFLYTE
Companion to the Nash Statesman
The Finest Values in America's Fine Cars
Nash Motors, Division Nash-Kelvinator Corporation, Detroit, Mich.

ONLY NASH AMBASSADOR OWNERS ENJOY ALL THESE FINE-CAR FEATURES

Turbo-Head high-compression engine—now 7.3 to 1. The only American engine with the jeweled smoothness of 7-bearing, 100% counter-balanced crankshaft. Knock-free performance with regular gasoline.

3 Driving Options. The Nash Ambassador offers you all three transmission choices: Hydra-Matic Drive or Automatic Overdrive at extra cost, or standard drive.

Automatic Weather Eye. Fresh air ventilation and heat control. You never have dust, or know cold, front seat or back, in any weather. Only Nash has it.

Twin Beds for luxurious sleeping-car comfort at night or so that one passenger may rest while his partner drives. Only in Nash.

Airflyte Construction. Different from all others, in Nash the entire frame and body, floor and roof are here welded into one single, super-strong unit, squeak-free and rattle-proof. Twice as rigid, it makes possible new performance, economy and riding smoothness.

SUNFLOWER STREET—By Tom Little and Tom Sims

Today's Pattern

Stuffed Celery

Method: Cut leafy tops from celery as well as narrow ends of stalks that will not take much filling; reserve for use in soups and salads. Wash remaining stalks well with vegetable brush in cold water and scrape off any outside bruises. Dry thoroughly with a towel. Have cream cheese at room temperature and mash with a mixing spoon; add the gorgonzola cheese (also at room temperature) and beat in well. Beat in mayonnaise. Fill stalks with cheese mixture and sprinkle lightly with paprika. Chill. Cut in wedges or serve as is. Makes about six servings.

Sweet Potato and Pineapple Pudding

Ingredients: Twelve medium-sized yam sweet potatoes (about six pounds), one-fourth pound (one-half cup) butter or margarine, one teaspoon salt, three-fourths cup firmly packed brown sugar, one No. 2 can crushed pineapple (drained), two eggs (beaten).

Method: Cook the yams in a small amount of boiling salted water until they are tender; peel and put them through a ricer. Add the butter or margarine, salt, brown sugar, well-drained pineapple, and eggs and mix thoroughly. Turn into a large casserole and bake in a moderate (350F.) oven for about one and one-half hours or until top is partly glazed looking and lightly browned. Makes twelve to sixteen servings.

Vary hot biscuits made from a packaged mix by adding a half cup of grated yellow cheese or a half cup of chopped cooked ham to the standard recipe. Cut the biscuits small, split and butter them, and serve them up piping hot.

"Reader's Digest" Hails Formula! Bristol-Myers Makes It!
Here is How RESISTAB
TRADE MARK
Kills COLDS in One Day

AT THE FIRST SIGN OF A COLD take one RESISTAB immediately! Don't wait! For RESISTAB's spectacular ability to stop colds fast depends on its use at the first sneeze, running nose or scratchy throat.

THEN—BEFORE EACH MEAL—and at bedtime—take another RESISTAB. When you take RESISTAB this way, it helps strengthen your body's natural defenses against colds, helps you resist colds better.

IN THE FIRST 24 HOURS RESISTAB may completely stop your cold! For in clinical tests, those people who started RESISTAB treatment at once got rid of their colds in an average of one day!

Clinic-proven RESISTAB is the antihistamine formula reported in "Reader's Digest"!

You've probably read about, heard about the remarkable antihistamine tests published in December's "Reader's Digest"! For antihistamines are now big news for all who suffer from colds.

But one all-important fact you may not know is this:

The identical formula used in these clinical tests was the RESISTAB formula. Yes, the RESISTAB formula.

Even when treatment was started on the second day, RESISTAB was found to stop colds within one to three days.

But frankly, to get the greatest benefits from RESISTAB, you must start taking it at once. After your cold has progressed as much as 48 hours, RESISTAB may give you some relief, but at this late stage neither it nor any other antihistamine can completely stop your cold.

So have RESISTAB handy at all times—at home, at work, in your pocket or purse. Start taking it the minute you feel a cold coming on—or have been exposed to someone else's cold! That's when RESISTAB can best help you to resist a cold!

RESISTAB is absolutely safe when used as recommended—even for children. Your druggist can sell it to you without prescription. See him—ask for clinic-proven RESISTAB today!

"We've used Bristol-Myers' fine products for years," Says Mrs. William E. Huston of New York City
"That's why I'm buying Bristol-Myers' new RESISTAB to guard my family against colds. Bristol-Myers is a name I rely on."

12-tablet envelopes to carry with you... 36-tablet bottles for home and office...

Rely On RESISTAB

Fix It Yourself

By Hubbard Cobb

Clogged Hot Water Coils.

If you live in one of the many sections of this country where the water contains lime, then you are doubtless familiar with a situation known as "clogged-up hot water heating coils."

What you can do in this situation is to have a new set of coils installed; but this can be sort of expensive after a few times. A better remedy, if the coils are made of brass or copper tubing, is to remove the lime deposit with some acid.

You have to take the coil out of the heater and set it upright in a pan. Now you mix one part muriatic acid with seven parts water and pour this in at the top opening of the coil. It will drain through and flow out into the pan. Scoop it up and run it through until the acid has dissolved the deposits in the coil. At this point it's time to stop with the acid and start rinsing out the coils with plenty of fresh water. After this has been done, the coils can be returned to the heater.

Men's Umbrellas Sized to Height

The remainder of the winter and the first of spring add up to wet weather—so how's the supply of family umbrellas? Certainly stores have never had a greater variety—both strictly service and novelty items.

About the only umbrellas that continue in the conventional styling are those for men. But even here you can find as many as three different handle lengths. The idea is that, since men like a style of umbrella that looks like or even doubles as a walking stick when not in use, the length should correspond to the height of the user.

Of course, women's umbrellas have taken to Victorian styling in a big way. They are far more ornamental than at any time since the fluffy ruffles era. In the strict umbrella category—that is, excluding the parasol or sunshade—you'll find most of them still giving you good protection against the wet.

Another practical feature has been introduced into many umbrellas for women and children—the use of clear plastic as a cover, largely as a safety measure in traffic. Those for children even feature safety slogans imprinted on the clear plastic. One of the new ones for women now in many stores is in clear vinylite with a smart black and white handle which is equipped with coin slots. This means that the change for transportation, telephone, or newspaper is easily accessible, despite gloved fingers.

Tasty Tricks

Fruit compote may be varied endlessly. For instance, dried stewed figs mixed with a can of apricots for a change. Makes a delicious dessert that's good to eat and good for you.
